Preface

We praise and thank Allaah, and we ask Him to increase Prophet Muhammad's honor and to protect his nation from what he feared for it. Thereafter, Allaah praised Islamic knowledge, elevated the status of the Muslim scholars and distinguished the students of the Islamic sciences over others. Since the scholars of Islam confirmed that every accountable person is obligated to acquire a certain portion of religious knowledge, which is essential to enable the person to fulfill what Allaah ordained, many scholars authored books to fill this need. Among these books is that of the prominent Sheikh ^Abdullaah, son of Muhammad al-Harariyy (born in 1334 AH and died in 1429 AH), known as The Summary of ^Abdullaah al-Harariyy.

The Islamic Studies and Research Department of the Association of Islamic Charitable Projects endeavored to join in serving the Muslim community by presenting an English version of The Summary of ^Abdullaah al-Harariyy with one of its renowned commentaries: The Lucid Word. Together, these texts provide introductory students with the essential stepping-stone they require to proceed in their pursuit of knowledge, and educators with the necessary material to teach them. They also offer advanced students a useful tool that facilitates the retention of a great portion of Islamic knowledge owing to the skillful choice of expression. For centuries scholars authored influential books combining both brevity and detail. These scholars were wordsmiths, who crafted sentences with less words (making them easier to memorize), and still loaded with meaning (making it easier for us to remember a considerable amount of information). We are beholden to them for their efforts.

Before you start reading this book, it is imperative to have insight into the method of its structure, owing to its unfamiliarity to people of the English tongue. In reality, as we mentioned before, this book comprises two books. The text on the top of the page is The Summary of Sheikh Abdullaah al-Harariyy, and the text below is the explanation, The Lucid Word. The way this explanation was authored is a common method (in Arabic) adopted by numerous scholars throughout Muslim history to explain well-known texts of various Islamic sciences. Both the source text and explanatory text are combined and woven together to produce one integrated text. The efficacy of this method in explaining the individual terms and the syntax of the phrases is undeniable. The inherent fluidity and flexibility of the Arabic language significantly facilitates such a style of authorship. Because of this unique style, many brothers opted to translate the text in their respective languages, employing the more familiar method of separating the source text from the explanatory text completely. We auspiciously resolved to embark on this untrodden path for the purpose of fidelity to the phraseology of the authors, as well as other reasons.

To distinguish between the explanatory text and the original text, the former is in boldface and the latter in standard. It is also important to know that words in Italics are originally Arabic words transliterated into English. We regularly attached the transliterated words with the actual Arabic words because in reality they are just makeshift calques the English Muslim community use to familiarize themselves with the original Arabic terms. Many times they do not reflect the correct pronunciation of the originals, thus they shouldn't be regarded as standalone identicals rather only secondary terms that serve the foreigner with relatable hints and semi-indicators to the authentic Arabic lexicon. We hope that this method will assist the reader to attain proper articulation; however this can only be guaranteed by learning how to pronounce them properly. To better understand our method of transliteration, please refer to the transliteration chart at the end of the book.

Our translation is not flawless. We accept the advice of anyone who points out anything that seems like an error in translation or the like, after careful research and examination. We humbly ask Allaah to benefit the Muslims by this and greatly reward the authors, translators, and all the Muslims who study it. Ameen.

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ

I start with the name of Allaah الرحمن (Ar-Rahmaan) Whose abundant mercy is inclusive of the believers and non-believers in this life and specific to the believers in the Hereafter; الرحيم (Ar-Raheem) Whose abundant mercy is for the believers.

Praise is due to Allaah, the Lord of the worlds, الحي (Al-Hayy) the One Who is attributed with Life, القيوم (Al-Qayyoom) the One Who is everlasting, and the One Who

The Summary of عبد الله (^Abdullaah) al-Harariyy

Which is comprehensive of the personal essential knowledge of the Religion

I start my authorship of this book with the name of Allaah, الرحمن (Ar-Rahmaan) The one whose abundant mercy is inclusive of the believers and non-believers in this life and specific to the believers in the Hereafter, and الرحيم (Ar-Raheem) The one whose abundant mercy is for the believers, i.e., I mention His name seeking blessings by it along with affirming that all praise is due to Allaah, the Lord of the worlds, i.e., the Owner of everything that came into existence, Who is الحي (Al-Hayy) the One Who is attributed with Life, and القيوم (Al-Qayyoom) the One Who is everlasting, and the One Who preordained all the creations. I ask Allaah to raise the rank of our Prophet مُحَمَّد (Muhammad), his pious followers and companions, and to protect his nation from that which he feared for it.

Thereafter, this book is an abridgement (known as the Summary) inclusive of most of the essential knowledge which is sinful for any accountable person to be ignorant of it. This comprises the [Obligatory] Knowledge pertaining to Belief, Islamic jurisprudence issues from purification up to Pilgrimage الْحَجَّ (Hajj) and some rules of dealings according to the school of Imaam الشافعي (ash-Shaafi'iy).

preordained all the entities, acts, sayings, and conditions of the creations. I ask Allaah to raise the rank of our Prophet مُحَمَّد (Muhammad), his pious followers and his good and pure companions and to protect his nation from that which he feared for it.

Thereafter, this book is an abridgement known as The Summary, i.e., a text of minimal wording and abundant meaning, inclusive of most of the essential knowledge of the religion which one cannot do without and is sinful for any accountable person to be ignorant of it. This comprises the Obligatory Knowledge pertaining to matters of Belief, Islamic jurisprudence issues from purification up to Pilgrimage الْحَجَّ (Hajj), including prayer, Zakaah, and fasting and some rules of dealings, like renting and hiring, engaging in a profit-sharing venture, putting up collateral, and the like along with clarifying the judgment of riba and some forbidden sales according to the school of the prestigious Mujtahid and Imaam مُحَمَّد بن إدريس Muhammad Ibn Idrees ash-Shaafi'iy

The sins of the heart and of other body parts, such as the tongue and others, are explained subsequently.

The original book was written by عَبْدُ اللَّهِ بْنُ حُسَيْنِ بْنِ طَاهِرٍ (^Abdullaah Ibn Husayn Ibn Taahir) a jurist from حَضْرَمَوْت (Hadramawt). Many precious issues were then added to the book while omitting what the original al-Qurashiyy<sup>1</sup> al-Muttalibiyy<sup>2</sup>, may Allaah raise his rank. He was born in the year 150 after the Hijrah and died in the year 204. The author then dedicated part of the book to enumerate the obligations of the heart, sins of the heart and of other body parts, such as the tongue and others, which are the abdomen, the eyes, the ears, the hands, the private parts, and the feet, as well as clarifying the sins of the body (which are not exclusive to a particular body part) are explained subsequently. Lastly, the book closes on a section dedicated to explaining repentance.

The original book, from which the author derived his book 'the Summary' is سلم التوفيق (Sullamut-tawfeeq) which was written by عَبْدُ اللَّهِ بْنُ حُسَيْنِ بْنِ طَاهِرٍ (^Abdullaah Ibn Husayn Ibn Taahir) a shaafi'yy jurist<sup>3</sup> from Hadramawt whose lineage goes back to the Prophet ﷺ. He was born in the year 1191 and died in the year 1272. His book was summarized and many precious issues were then added to the book unveiling the underlying meanings of the text and clarifying it while omitting what the original author Sheikh ^Abdullaah Ibn Husayn mentioned regarding Sufism<sup>1</sup> which does not pertain to the subject matter of the Summary because the author of the Summary may Allaah have mercy upon him intended to compile the essential knowledge of the religion in this book<sup>2</sup>, and what he omitted regarding Sufism does not fall under that category. Some phrases were changed with clearer ones in such a way that the subject matter would not be altered. The author may Allaah have mercy upon him said: In a few cases I mentioned what some shaafi`iyy jurists like Imaam Siraajud-Deen ^Omar Ibn Raslaan al-Bulqeeniiyy, who was born in the year 724 and died in the year 805, gave preponderance to; therefore judging what was mentioned in the original book as weak. Hence, the accountable one must pay due attention to this book, by learning it, studying it, and reviewing the issues raised in this book until he memorizes them

1) Sufism is a term describing the state of the pious Muslims who perform acts of obedience to Allaah while in compliance with القرآن (the Qur'aan), الحديث (Hadeeth), consensus of the nation (ijmaa^), and the sayings of the companions while their hearts are detached from worldly interests.

2) Note that Sheikh ^Abdullaah, may Allaah have mercy upon him, mentioned some matters in his Summary that are not among the Personal Obligatory Knowledge of the religion for certain benefits he had insight upon.

in order to have one's deeds accepted. I named it:

The Summary of ^Abdullaah al-Harariyy which is comprehensive of the personal essential knowledge of the Religion.

Essentials of Belief

(Section 1)

It is obligatory upon all accountable persons to embrace

and they become embedded in his heart. All this must be done while having a sincere intention in seeking the reward from Allaah, in order to have one's deeds accepted. I named it: The Summary of ^Abdullaah al-Harariyy which is comprehensive of the personal essential knowledge of the Religion, which is the knowledge that includes knowing Allaah, His Messenger, and other essential creedal issues, it also includes knowing the rules of worship and other matters designated as essential knowledge of the religion. Since knowing Allaah and His messenger and believing in them is the most important and best obligation, the author may Allaah have mercy upon him, started his book by discussing the essentials of belief, i.e., the creedal issues which the accountable person cannot do without.

This is a section dedicated to explaining the meaning of the two Testifications of Faith.

It is obligatory upon all accountable persons, who are pubescent, sane and received the basic call of Islam, i.e., whoever has been informed that no one is God but Allaah, and that مُحَمَّدٌ (Muḥammad) is the Messenger of Allaah, to embrace the Religion of Islam, to remain steadfast to it, and to comply with what is obligatory upon them of its rules.

the Religion of Islam immediately if they were kaafirs<sup>1</sup>, to remain steadfast to it in such a manner that the heart would be clear of any intent to renounce Islam in the future or any hesitation about it, because whoever intends to disbelieve in the future or hesitates about doing so, falls into kufr immediately, and it is also obligatory upon the accountable person to comply with what is obligatory upon them of its rules that the religion ordered them to follow. This is attained by fulfilling all the obligations and abstaining from all the prohibitions. From this, it is known that the child who dies before pubescence is not held accountable in the Hereafter for what they did. Likewise is the person who becomes insane before pubescence and their insanity continues until after pubescence and dies while insane. Similarly, one is not accountable if they were pubescent and sane but never received the call of Islam, i.e., the two Testifications of Faith. Therefore, anyone who understands Arabic then hears the Testifications of Faith in the Adhaan (call to the prayer), while being pubescent and sane, is accountable. So, if they were to die without embracing Islam they deserve the everlasting torture in Hellfire.

1) The word “Kaafir” used in this book is an Islamic term used in القرآن (the Qur’aan) and the sayings of the Prophet referring to a person who is not a Muslim, and “Kufr” referring to an incident which renders a person as a (Kaafir). Such incidents demonstrate irreverence to God, His Religion or what He ordained as glorified.

Among what one must know and believe in absolutely (i.e., at all times) and utter immediately if one was a kaafir (non-muslim), or otherwise [one must utter] in the prayer are the two Testifications of Faith, which are:

أَشْهَدُ أَنْ لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا اللَّهُ وَأَشْهَدُ أَنَّ مُحَمَّدًا رَسُولُ اللَّهِ

(Ashhadu allaa ilaaha illallaah, wa ashhadu anna Muḥammad-Rasoolullaah)

I testify that no one is God except Allaah and that مُحَمَّد (Muḥammad) is the Messenger of Allaah (may Allaah raise his rank and protect his nation from what he fears for it).

Among what the accountable one, whether a Muslim or a non-Muslim, must know, accept, and believe in absolutely in one's heart at all times, and utter immediately if one was an original kaafir or an apostate, are the two Shahaadas, or otherwise if the accountable person was already a Muslim one must utter them in the prayer. The two Shahaadas are called in English the two Testifications of Faith, which are:

أَشْهَدُ أَنْ لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا اللَّهُ وَأَشْهَدُ أَنَّ مُحَمَّدًا رَسُولُ اللَّهِ

(Ashhadu allaa ilaaha illallaah, wa ashhadu anna Muḥammad-Rasoolullaah)

I testify that no one is God except Allaah and that محمد (Muḥammad) is the Messenger of Allaah ﷺ. May Allaah raise his rank and protect his nation from what he fears for it

Since the Testifications of Faith are the basis of the call to Islam, it is an obligation for the Muslim to know their meaning. Hence, the author, may Allaah have mercy upon him, started to explain the first Testification by saying:

The meaning of أَشْهَدُ أَنْ لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا اللَّهُ (I testify that no one is God except Allaah) is: I know, I believe in my heart, and I declare with my tongue that nothing is worshipped rightfully except Allaah, Who is الواحدُ (Al-Waahid) One, الأحدُ (Al-'Ahad) Indivisible,

The meaning of أَشْهَدُ أَنْ لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا اللَّهُ (I testify that no one is God except Allaah) is: I know, I believe, i.e., I accept in my heart, and I declare with my tongue that nothing is worshipped rightfully except Allaah: i.e., nothing deserves to be worshipped (which means nothing deserves to be offered the utmost degree of humbleness and humility) except Allaah. The meaning of worship in the Arabic language is the maximal degree of submission and subjugation as stated by the linguist and Haafidh<sup>1</sup> Taghiyyud-Deen as-Subkiyy. Hence, it is known that worship does not mean just obedience, calling upon, seeking rescue or help, fearing, or hoping as some people think. [The author may Allaah have mercy upon him began to explain who Allaah is and what are His attributes because worshipping and believing in Him are only satisfied if the worshipper properly knows what they are worshipping.]<sup>2</sup> Allaah is الواحدُ (Al-Waahid) One, the One who has no partner in Godhood, الأحدُ (Al-'Ahad) Indivisible, the One Who is not subject to division or partition

1) A highly ranked scholar of Hadeeth is called a Haafidh. This title is usually given to a person who memorizes most of the sayings of the Prophet along with the chain of narrators of each Hadeeth.

because He is not a body. He is neither a tangible<sup>3</sup> body like humans, trees, and stones, nor an intangible body like light, darkness, and wind. الأوّل (Al-'Awwal), القديم (Al-Qadeem) without a beginning (Eternal). Al-'Awwal means the One Whose Existence is without a beginning. His Existence was not preceded by inexistence. Synonymous to Al-'Awwal is Al-Qadeem when used in reference to Allaah because the eternity of Allaah is essential<sup>1</sup> and is not temporal<sup>2</sup>. الحيّ (Al-Hayy) Alive, the One attributed with Eternal and Everlasting Life, i.e., not by means of a soul, flesh, blood, ligaments, or bone marrow. Life is a beginningless, attribute of Allaah with real existence, i.e., it is a positive<sup>3</sup> attribute of Allaah. القيّوم (Al-Qayyoom)<sup>4</sup> the Independent Who does not need others. الدائم (Ad-Daa'im) Everlasting, the One Who will not become nonexistent nor is it

1) This means that the attribute of القدم (Qidam) is inherent and necessary to the Being of Allaah and it is intellectually impossible for the Being of Allaah not to have this attribute.

2) Hence, this attribute of Allaah does not relate to time.

3) Positive attribute in this context means that which has real existence. Thus, rejecting the misguided doctrine of the Mu^tazilah that Allaah's attributes like life, knowledge, and power are not really existing.

4) Ahlus-Sunnah scholars have explained the meaning of the name of Allaah القيّوم (al-Qayyoom) in different meanings one of them is the everlasting and another is the One Who does not need others. Sheikh Abdullaah explained it in some of his books as the everlasting. The explainer of this Summary chose the other meaning.

الخالق (Al-Khaaliq) the Creator, الرَّازِقُ (Ar-Raaziq) the Sustainer, العالم (Al-^aalim) the Omniscient, القدير (Al-Qadeer) the Omnipotent, the One Who does whatever He wills, whatever Allaah willed to be shall be and possible, because the sound intellect dictates that it is impossible<sup>1</sup> for Allaah to be nonexistent. Hence, no one is Everlasting in that sense except Allaah. الخالق (Al-Khaaliq) the Creator, the One Who brought all the creations from inexistence into existence. الرَّازِقُ (Ar-Raaziq) the Sustainer, the One Who makes livelihood reach His slaves. العالم (Al-^aalim) the Omniscient, the One Who is attributed with the Eternal and Everlasting attribute of Knowledge that does not change, increase, decrease, or get renewed. He is Knowledgeable not like other knowledgeable beings because His Knowledge is Eternal and the knowledge of others is originated. القدير (Al-Qadeer) the Omnipotent, the One attributed with the consummate Power. The Power of Allaah is an Eternal and Everlasting attribute by which Allaah produces an effect on the contingent beings, i.e., anything whose existence at one time and inexistence at another is intellectually possible. By His Power Allaah makes things exist and He makes them cease to exist. The One Who does whatever He wills, i.e., Allaah has the Power to bring into existence whatever He eternally willed to exist. Nothing can render Allaah powerless to do so. He does whatever He wills without toil and no one prevents Him from doing it. Whatever Allaah willed eternally to be existing shall be existing and whatever Allaah did not will to be shall not be; The One without Whom no sin is avoided and no obedience is fulfilled; The One Who is attributed with all proper attributes of perfection, and is exalted above all what is considered imperfection if attributed to Him.

whatever Allaah did not will eternally to be existing shall not be existing. The Will of Allaah does not change because the change of the will implies origination and origination is impossible to be attributed to Allaah. The One without Whom no sin is avoided and no obedience is fulfilled, i.e., no one can evade sinning except with Allaah's protection and no one has the ability to obey Him except with Allaah's help. The One Who is attributed with all proper attributes of perfection, like Knowledge, Power, and Will and is exalted above all what is considered imperfection if attributed to Him, i.e., whatever does not befit Him, like ignorance, powerlessness, color, boundaries, and occupying a direction and place because they are all attributes of the creation. Hence, Allaah exists without a place. As Allaah said:

﴿لَيْسَ كَمِثْلِهِ شَيْءٌ وَهُوَ السَّمِيعُ الْبَصِيرُ﴾<sup>1</sup>

Which means: Nothing resembles Allaah in any way and He is attributed with Hearing and Sight. Allaah mentioned first [in this verse] ﴿لَيْسَ كَمِثْلِهِ شَيْءٌ﴾ “nothing resembles Allaah in any way” prior to mentioning ﴿وَهُوَ السَّمِيعُ الْبَصِيرُ﴾ “and He is attributed with Hearing and Sight” so no one would misconstrue that the Hearing and Sight of Allaah are like the hearing and sight of others because Allaah is dissimilar to the creations as Dhunoon al-Misriyy, may Allaah raise his rank said: “Whatever you imagine in your mind, Allaah is different from it.”

Thus, Allaah is Eternal without a beginning to His existence and everything else is originated, which means everything other than Allaah existed after inexistence; and He is the only Creator of all beings and everything else, i.e., the whole universe is a creation that has a beginning to its existence. The whole universe: with all its generic kinds and individual components is originated. Ibn Taymiyah disagreed with the former and stated, like the philosophers, that the generic kinds of the universe are eternal without a beginning. Consequently, the Muslims deemed him a kaafir. Every creation that came into existence whether among entities which are things that have a volume or deeds, whether voluntary or involuntary, exists by the Creating of Allaah. All entities from the particle of fine dust or smaller to the Grand Throne, which is the largest creation of Allaah, exists by the Creating of Allaah. A particle of fine dust is the smallest particle we can see (unattached to anything else) with the naked eye; it is visible when light passes through an opening. Along with every movement and rest, intentions, and thoughts of the slaves are [all] created by Allaah. It was not created by anything other than Allaah -be it- nature or cause عِلَّة (^illah). Rather things come into existence by Allaah's [Eternal] Will, Power, with His Destining and Eternal Knowledge as signified by the saying of Allaah:

﴿وَخَلَقَ كُلَّ شَيْءٍ﴾

This means: “Allaah created everything”, that is He brought with the aforementioned physical beings, Allaah created the outward deeds: every movement and rest, and inward deeds: intentions, and thoughts of the slaves that occur involuntarily. These originated things which came into existence are all created by Allaah. It was not created by anything other than Allaah -be it- nature or cause عِلَّة (^illah). Nature is defined as the normal characteristics Allaah made entities characterized with, such as the nature of fire is burning. ^illah is a cause that necessitates the existence of its effect if present and necessitates the nonexistence of its effect if absent like the movement of a finger (with a ring) is the cause for the movement of the ring. Rather, things come into existence by Allaah's Eternal Will, Power, with His Destining, and Eternal Knowledge as signified by the saying of Allaah: in سورة الفرقان (Soorah<sup>1</sup> of Al-Furqaan) all the creations from non-existence into existence. Creating in the said meaning is attributed to none but Allaah. Allaah said :

﴿هَلْ مِنْ خَلْقٍ غَيْرُ اللَّهِ﴾

This means: “No one is the Creator except Allaah.”

An-Nasafiyy said that if a person hit glass with a stone and broke it, the acts of hitting and breaking, and the state of [the glass] being broken were created by Allaah. Hence, the slave all the creations from non-existence into existence. Creating in the said meaning, i.e., bringing from nonexistence into existence is attributed to none but Allaah. Allaah said in سورة فاطر (Soorat Faatir):

﴿هَلْ مِنْ خَلْقٍ غَيْرُ اللَّهِ﴾

This means: “No one is the Creator except Allaah”. The Mu^tazilah disagreed on this issue and said the slave creates his own voluntary acts. The Muslims deemed them non-Muslims for this.

Aboo Hafs ^Omar An-Nasafiyy, may Allaah have mercy upon him, said in his famous book “The Nasafiyy Creed” what means: that if a person hit glass with a stone and broke it, the acts of hitting which is the act carried out by the slave with the stone, which may or may not result in breaking, and breaking, which is the act of the slave done to the glass by throwing the stone and the state of the glass being broken which is the effect that occurs in the glass such as being cracked, shattered into pieces etc. were all created by Allaah, not by the slave. Hence, the slave only acquires the act; whereas, creating is for none other than Allaah. Allaah said :

﴿لَهَا مَا كَسَبَتْ وَعَلَيْهَا مَا اكْتَسَبَتْ﴾

This means: “Every individual self will be rewarded by Allaah for the good deeds it acquired and will be held accountable for the sins it committed.”

الكَلَامُ (The Kalaam) Speech of Allaah is without a beginning like the rest of His attributes, only acquires the act. This means that the slave directs his intention towards the deed, and Allaah creates it at that time. Whereas, creating is for none other than Allaah. Allaah said: in سورة البقرة (Soorat al-Baqarah).

﴿لَهَا مَا كَسَبَتْ وَعَلَيْهَا مَا اكْتَسَبَتْ﴾

This means: “Every individual self will be rewarded by Allaah for the good deeds it acquired, i.e., the person will benefit from that and will be held accountable for the sins it committed”, i.e., this person will bear the consequence for doing evil, meaning he will be harmed by it. Hence, the slave is attributed with acquiring the deeds not creating them and he is judged for what he acquired.

Let it be known that الكَلَامُ (the Kalaam) Speech of Allaah is an attribute among the Positive<sup>1</sup>, Eternal, and Everlasting attributes of the Being of Allaah. The Kalaam of Allaah is without a beginning like the rest of His Positive attributes: Life, Will,

1) An attribute that has real existence.

because He, the Exalted, is unlike all the creations in His Being, Attributes, and Doings. Allaah, the Exalted, is greatly clear of what the unjust ones attribute to Him.

Everlastingness, Omniscience, Omnipotence, Hearing, and Sight. They are Eternal because the Eternal Being is not attributed with an originated attribute. From this, it is known that the Kalaam of Allaah is not letters, sounds, or a language, and is neither started nor finished. As for revealed scripture, it is expressions of the Eternal Kalaam and thus it is referred to as the Kalaam of Allaah. The Kalaam of Allaah and the rest of His attributes are beginningless because He, the Exalted, is unlike all the creations in His Being, Attributes and Doings. This means that Allaah's Being, Attributes and Doings do not resemble that of the creation in anyway whatsoever. Allaah, the Exalted, is greatly and absolutely clear of whatever imperfection the unjust ones falsely attribute to Him. The unjust ones the author is referring to are the non-Muslims whether they are polytheists, anthropomorphists<sup>1</sup>, or the like.

Consequently, the general meaning which is understood from what was previously mentioned concludes affirming thirteen attributes of Allaah which were repeatedly mentioned time and after in القرآن (the Qur'aan), and الحديث (Hadeeth) either explicitly or implicitly. Its recurrence in the Hadeeth of the Prophet is because the Prophet ﷺ was keen to teach them to everyone. These attributes are: الوجود Existence; Allaah exists without any doubt in His existence. الوحدانية Oneness; He is One without a partner. الأزلية Eternity; there is no beginning to Allaah's Existence. البقاء Everlastingness; there is no end to Allaah's Existence. He does not die, perish, or change. بالثبوت Non-neediness of others, i.e., He does not need anyone, and everyone needs Him. القدرة Power; Allaah has power over everything. In this context "everything" refers to all contingent beings. Contingent beings are those whose (nonsimultaneous) existence and inexistence is intellectually possible. الإرادة Will which specifies the contingent being with some characteristics that are possible to be attributed to it (according to the sound mind), instead of others and with an exact time versus another. العلم Knowledge, i.e., Allaah knows everything with His Eternal Knowledge. He knows His Being, His Attributes, and what He originates of His creations with one Knowledge comprehensive to all knowable things. His Knowledge does not change, decrease, increase or become renewed. السمع Hearing, i.e., Allaah hears with His Eternal Hearing that is not like the hearing of others. The Hearing of Allaah is without a beginning and the hearing of others is originated. Allaah hears with His attribute of Hearing all hearable things without the need of an ear or any other instrument. البصر Sight, i.e., Allaah sees with His attribute of Sight that is not like the sight of others. The Sight of Allaah is without a beginning and the sight of others is originated. With His Sight, Allaah sees all that is seeable. Hence, He sees His Being and His creations without the need of a pupil or any other instrument. الحياة Life, i.e., Allaah is alive with a Life which is Eternal and Everlasting that does not resemble our lives. It is not by soul, flesh, blood, ligaments, or bone marrow. الكلام Speech, i.e., Allaah speaks with one Eternal and Everlasting Speech that does not start or stop. It is neither letters, sounds, nor a language. And المخالفة للحوادث Non-resemblance to the creation, i.e., He does not resemble anything of the creation. Because these thirteen attributes were mentioned many times in the Islamic texts, meaning القرآن (the Qur'aan) and الحديث (Hadeeth) as mentioned before, the scholars said that knowing them is a personal obligation upon every accountable person. They also said: Since eternity has been affirmed to the Being of Allaah<sup>1</sup> by

1) “The Being of Allaah” is a translation of the Arabic term ذات الله dhaatullaah. It is commonly employed by scholars of Islamic doctrine as a way to clarify that Allaah has (independent and necessary) existence and He is attributed with attributes of perfection. In the words of the scholars “Allaah is a Being who has attributes”. In previous translations of the Summary “Self” was used instead of “Being”. The reason “Self” was replaced is because it is not linguistically used with the meaning that is intended here.

His attributes must be eternal; because the origination of an attribute entails that the [attributed] being is originated.

The meaning of أَشْهَدُ أَنَّ مُحَمَّدًا رَسُولُ اللَّهِ is “I testify that مُحَمَّد (Muhammad) is the Messenger of Allaah” which means I know, believe, and declare that مُحَمَّد (Muhammad) the son of عَبْدُ اللَّهِ (^Abdullaah), who is the son of عَبْدُ الْمُطَّلِبِ (^Abdul-Muttalib), who is the son of هَاشِم (Haashim), who is the son of مَنَافٍ (^Abdu Manaaf), textual and mental proofs, His attributes must be eternal; because the origination of an attribute entails that the attributed being is originated. Which means that the being changes from one state to another, and anything attributed with change is in need of someone that brings about this change; and so, anyone attributed with change cannot be an eternal god, rather they are an originated creation. Since it has been definitely proven by reason that Allaah is eternal, His attributes too must be eternal. By this, the author completed the discussion about the first Testification and its explanation.

After that the author began discussing the meaning of the second Testification; he said:

The meaning of the second Testification which is: أَشْهَدُ أَنَّ مُحَمَّدًا رَسُولُ اللَّهِ “I testify that مُحَمَّد (Muhammad) is the Messenger of Allaah” is: I know, believe and accept in my heart, and declare with my tongue that مُحَمَّد (Muhammad), the son of عَبْدُ اللَّهِ (^Abdullaah), who is the son of عَبْدُ الْمُطَّلِبِ (^Abdul-Muttalib), who is the son of هَاشِم (Haashim), who is the son of مَنَافٍ (^Abdu-Manaaf), who is the son of قُصَيٍّ (Qusayy), who is the son of كِلَابٍ (Kilaab), who is the son of مُرَّةٍ (Murrah), who is the son necessitates believing that he was truthful in everything he told about and conveyed from Allaah and he does not (in any circumstances) err in what he conveys, whether it's regarding the historical accounts of the previous nations and the beginning of creation, rules of permissibility or prohibition, or prophecies of future occurrences. As for what he told of the worldly matters which were not revealed to him by Allaah, it is possible for him to make mistakes. Among that which he conveyed which one must believe in firmly are the torment in the grave by both soul and body, such as showing Hellfire to the unbelievers twice a day, once at the beginning of the day and once at the end of the day. They suffer by looking and seeing the place in which they will remain in the Hereafter. Another example of torture is being disturbed by the darkness and the loneliness of the grave. And the enjoyment therein, i.e., the enjoyment in the grave such as widening the grave 70 cubits by 70 cubits and being illuminated with a light that resembles the light of the full moon. The questioning of the two Angels, *Munkar and Nakeer, the believer and the unbeliever of this nation will be asked about the belief they died believing and each will answer according to their situation. The Prophet also informed us about الْمِيزَانُ the Balance in which the deeds of the people are weighed in the Hereafter. النَّارُ Hellfire, the abode in which Allaah has prepared to torture the unbelievers and some of the Muslim sinners. It exists now and will remain without an end. الصِّرَاطُ The Bridge which is extended over Hellfire which the people will come and cross at a pace of difficulty or ease proportional to their deeds. One end of the bridge is on the changed Earth and the other end is after Hellfire towards Paradise. الْحَوْضُ The Basin which is a place that Allaah has prepared a drink for the inhabitants of Paradise from which they drink after crossing the Bridge and before entering Paradise, after which they will not feel any thirst. الشَّفَاعَةُ The Intercession, the intercessors in the Hereafter ask Allaah to absolve some of the Muslim sinners from punishment. The Intercession is exclusive to Muslims. Believing in what the Prophet told about also includes الْجَنَّةُ Paradise which is a place Allaah has prepared to bestow the believers with enjoyment. It now exists and will remain forever. Also, the Prophet informed us that seeing Allaah, the Exalted, with the eye in the Hereafter is a reality. This is exclusive to the believers. They will see Allaah while they are in Paradise, without a condition inquired about by “How” or without Him being in a place or a direction and without any resemblance to the creations as stated by Imaam Aboo Haneefah, may Allaah raise his rank, He will be seen unlike the way a creation is seen because the creation is seen in a direction in respect to the other creation who sees it. The believers will be in their place in Paradise and they see Allaah without Allaah being in a place. The Prophet taught us about the dwelling forever in Paradise or Hellfire. It is an obligation to believe that the believers will dwell forever in Paradise and the unbelievers will dwell forever in Hellfire and that there is no death after that. And believing in Allaah’s Angels, i.e., believing in their existence, that they are honorable slaves, who never disobey the orders of Allaah, and always do what they are ordered. They are neither males nor females. They do not eat, drink, sleep, or reproduce. This also includes the belief in Allaah’s Messengers, i.e., His Prophets including those who were Messengers sent with a new law and those who were not. A Prophet who is not a Messenger is a human being who did not receive a new law, rather he had to follow the laws of the Messenger who was before him. The first Messenger of Allaah was our Master Adam

Books, and الْقَدَرُ (Al-Qadar) Predestination whether the destined is good or evil. And that مُحَمَّدٌ (Muhammad) is the last of the Prophets and the best of all the children of Adam.

Moreover, it is obligatory to believe that every Prophet of Allaah must be attributed with truthfulness, trustworthiness, and intelligence.

and the last was our Master مُحَمَّدٌ (Muhammad). We must believe in the Holy Books. The most famous are four, they are القرآن (Al-Qur'aan), At-Tawraah, Al-Injeel, and Az-Zaboor. And we must believe in الْقَدَرُ (Al-Qadar) Predestination, i.e., to believe that everything that happens is by Allaah predestining it, along with accepting His Predestination, and not objecting to Allaah's predestining of good and evil, sweet and bitter. Whether the destined is good or evil it happens by the Predestining of Allaah, His Creating, and His Will. The good He preordained, we love, and whatever is evil, we hate. Similar to what was previously mentioned, the belief in the Prophethood of مُحَمَّدٌ (Muhammad) also necessitates the belief that مُحَمَّدٌ (Muhammad), is the last of the Prophets. There is no Prophet after him and none will abrogate his law. And that he is the best of all the children of aadam, for he is the best of the creations of Allaah and the highest among them in rank in Allaah's Judgment.

Moreover, it is obligatory to believe that every Prophet of Allaah must be attributed with truthfulness, trustworthiness, and intelligence. All Prophets are intelligent. It is impossible for them to be stupid because stupidity (which is weakness of understanding) is incompatible with the office of Prophethood, because Allaah sent them to convey the message and establish proofs against stubborn unbelievers. Consequently, lying and dishonesty are imperfections incompatible with the office of Prophethood. Hence, Prophets do not lie, betray, nor deceive. They do not cheat people when they seek advice from them, and they do not unjustly consume people's money. Also, vileness is a defect impossible to be among the attributes of the Prophets. Vileness is characteristic of the degenerate people. There is no Prophet who is vile, who sneaks lustful looks at marriageable women for example, and there is no Prophet who steals, not even a single grape. It is impossible for them to be attributed with foolishness, i.e., behaving unwisely. There is no Prophet among them who utters vulgar words that are repulsive by accepted standards of morality. It is impossible for them to be attributed with obtuseness<sup>1</sup>. There is no Prophet who is obtuse: unable to establish proofs against those who oppose him nor were any of the Prophets slow in perception, i.e., unable to grasp what they were addressed with from the first time and thus needing it to be repeated for them several times. It is impossible for them to be attributed with cowardice. However it is not impossible for them to have natural fear<sup>2</sup>. It is impossible for the

They [i.e., the Prophets] must be attributed with impeccability, that is, they are protected from ever committing kufr, enormous sins, and small sins that reflect a low character before and after Prophethood. It is possible for them to commit other small sins; they are, however, immediately guided to repent before others imitate them in that. Hence, Prophethood was not bestowed upon the brothers of [Prophet] يُوسُف (Yoosuf) Joseph, who,

Prophets to commit a slip of the tongue in religious and non-religious matters. All the deficient qualities mentioned previously and every other unbefitting and unprophetic quality that repels people from accepting the call from them are impossible to be among their attributes, such as repulsive ailments like worms coming out of the body. They [i.e., the Prophets] must be attributed with total impeccability, without exception, that is, they are protected from ever committing kufr, enormous sins, and despicable small sins that reflect low character before and after Prophethood. In other words all the Prophets are protected from falling into kufr and major sins or engaging in minor sins of an abject or mean nature, such as stealing a single grape, before Prophethood or afterwards. It is possible for them to commit other small sins that do not indicate low character, just as what happened with our Master aadam. They are, however immediately guided to repent if they commit such sins before others of their communities imitate them in that small sin, or else they would follow the Prophets in this minor sin, because they are models for the people. Hence, Prophethood was not bestowed upon the ten brothers of Prophet يُوسُف (Yoosuf) Joseph, who, excluding بنيامين Binyaameen, committed the mean deeds mentioned [in القرآن the Qur'aan].

The descendants [of Prophet يَعْقُوب (Ya^qoob) Jacob referred to in القرآن (the Qur'aan) as الأَسْبَاط (Asbaat)] who received the revelation and were chosen for Prophethood are the descendants of يُوسُف (Yoosuf's) brothers.

excluding بنيامين (Binyaameen) committed the mean deeds mentioned in القرآن (the Qur'aan): hitting يُوسُف (Yoosuf), throwing him in a well, and ascribing their father Prophet يَعْقُوب (Ya^qoob) with foolishness which is kufr. بنيامين (Binyaameen) did not partake in what his brothers committed. The descendants of Prophet يَعْقُوب (Ya^qoob) Jacob referred to in القرآن (the Qur'aan) as أَسْبَاط (Asbaat) who received the revelation and were chosen for Prophethood are not those who hurt (Yoosuf) rather the Asbaat are the descendants of يُوسُف (Yoosuf's) brothers because some of those who descended from them were granted Prophethood. The word سِبْط (sibt) in the Arabic language means the offspring of a person, whether a direct child or the offspring of their child.

[Chapter of Apostasy]

(Section 2)

It is obligatory upon every Muslim to preserve one's faith in Islam and protect it against whatever invalidates, abolishes, and interrupts it, namely, apostasy; we seek refuge with Allaah from it. An-Nawawiyy and others said: "Apostasy is the most abhorrent type of kufr." ### Apostasy

After the author finished discussing the essentials of belief, he, may Allaah have mercy upon him, started talking about apostasy. It is defined as interrupting Islam by a kufr saying, action, or belief.

Section 2 It is obligatory upon every Muslim who is accountable to preserve one's faith in Islam and protect it against whatever invalidates, abolishes, and interrupts it, namely, apostasy; we seek refuge with Allaah from it because kufr is the most grievous sin; it is the sin that Allaah does not forgive if the person dies in that state and He forgives whatever is less than that for whomever He wills.

Al-Haafidh Yahyaa Ibn Sharaf an-Nawawiyy who died in the year 676 and others said: "Apostasy is the most abhorrent type of kufr", meaning it is the ugliest type of kufr in the sense that it erases all the good deeds and that it is a conversion from truth to falsehood, but not in the sense that it is the worst kufr in all situations. In this age, it has become common for the ignorant to speak carelessly to the extent that some people utter words which take them out of Islam without them even deeming such words sinful let alone deeming them kufr. This confirms the truthfulness of the Prophet's saying:

«إِنَّ الْعَبْدَ لَيَتَكَلَّمُ بِالْكَلِمَةِ لَا يَرَىٰ فِيهَا بَأْسًا يَهْوِي بِهَا فِي النَّارِ سَبْعِينَ خَرِيفًا»

This means: “A person may utter an expression that they perceive harmless, however it results in their falling the depth of seventy years into Hellfire”. This falling distance of seventy years leads to the bottom of Hellfire which is exclusive to those who are kaafir. This حَدِيث (Hadeeth) was related by التِّرْمِذِيُّ (At-Tirmidhiyy) and he classified it as a حَدِيثٌ حَسَنٌ people to speak carelessly to the extent that some people utter kufr words which take them out of the religion of Islam without them even deeming such kufr words sinful, let alone deeming them kufr so they think that they are still Muslims.

This fulfills what the Prophet foretold and confirms the truthfulness of the Prophet's saying:

«إِنَّ الْعَبْدَ لَيَتَكَلَّمُ بِالْكَلِمَةِ لَا يَرَىٰ فِيهَا بَأْسًا يَهْوِي بِهَا فِي النَّارِ سَبْعِينَ خَرِيفًا»

This means “A person may utter an expression of kufr that they perceive harmless, however it results in their falling the depth of seventy years into Hellfire”.

This falling distance of seventy years leads to the bottom of Hellfire which is exclusive to those who are kaafir as indicated by the religious texts. This حَدِيث (Hadeeth) was related by التِّرْمِذِيُّ (at-Tirmidhiyy) in his Jaami^ and he classified it as a حَدِيثٌ حَسَنٌ well-authenticated Hadeeth. البخاري (Al-Bukhaariyy) and Muslim related a Hadeeth with a similar meaning. This Hadeeth stands as evidence that committing kufr is not conditional on having learned the judgment of the uttered kufr expressions nor on having liked or believed in their well-authenticated Hadeeth. The two Sheikhs البخاري (al-Bukhaariyy) and Muslim related a Hadeeth with a similar meaning. The verbatim narration of the two Sheikhs is

«إِنَّ الْعَبْدَ لَيَتَكَلَّمُ بِالْكَلِمَةِ مَا يَتَّبِعُن فِيهَا يَزِلُّ بِهَا فِي النَّارِ أَبْعَدَ مِمَّا بَيْنَ الْمَشْرِقِ وَالْمَغْرِبِ»

“A person may utter an expression that they do not take heed of its consequence by which they fall into Hellfire [a depth which is] farther than what is between east and west.”

The Hadeeth of Tirmidhiyy explains this Hadeeth. This Hadeeth stands as evidence that committing kufr is not conditional on having learned the judgment of the uttered kufr expressions because the Prophet judged the person who said the kufr expression with torture at the bottom of Hellfire, even though they did not know the judgment of such an expression. This is clearly displayed in their misperception that this expression is harmless, as proven in the beforementioned Hadeeth. Thus, it is known that whoever says kufr expressions while understanding their meanings becomes a kaafir whether or not they know that the expressions are judged as kufr. Nor is committing kufr contingent on having liked what was said; rather, one becomes a kaafir for saying the kufr statement whether they liked what was said or not, or believed in their meaning as falsely stated in Fiqh-us-Sunnah. Likewise, not being angry is not a condition for one to fall into kufr as an-Nawawiyy indicated; he said: “If a man was angry with his child or young slave and hit him severely, then another man said to him: “Are you not a Muslim?”, and to that his deliberate answer was “No”, he becomes a kaafir.” This also was mentioned by other than an-Nawawiyy such as حَنْفِيَّة (Hanafiyyah) meaning or not. Whoever says kufr intentionally becomes a kaafir even if they do not believe in the meaning of the words that were uttered. Like if someone says, “O son of God” without believing that God has a son, then this person would be judged as a kaafir. May Allaah protect us from such statements. The Egyptian, Sayyid Saabiq dissented from what was previously mentioned, as he falsely stated in a book that he authored named Fiqh-us-Sunnah. He said: A Muslim is not regarded out of the fold of Islam nor is he judged with apostasy unless he feels pleased with unbelief and his heart has accepted it and he actually embraces a religion other than Islam. The aforementioned Hadeeth related by Tirmidhiyy suffices in refuting him. Likewise, not being angry is not a condition for one to fall into kufr as al-Haafidh an-Nawawiyy indicated; he said: “If a man was angry with his child or young slave and hit him severely, then another man said to him “How could you beat him this sinful severe beating? Are you not a Muslim?” and to that his deliberate answer, i.e., it was not a slip of the tongue, was “No I am not a Muslim,” he becomes a kaafir” because he willfully said a kufr expression. This judgment (that the absence of anger is not a condition for one to be judged as a kaafir) was mentioned by other than an-Nawawiyy such as حَنْفِيَّة (Hanafiyyah) scholars and other scholars.

Apostasy is of three types as categorized by an-Nawawiyy and others among شَافِعِيَّة the (Shaafi'iyyah), حَنَفِيَّة (Hanafiyyah) and others: beliefs, actions, and sayings. Each type of apostasy is divided into many subdivisions.

Among the [examples of the] first category of apostasy are:

- * Having doubt in Allaah, His Messenger, القرآن (the Qur'aan), the Day of Judgment, Paradise, Hell, Reward, Punishment, and other scholars of different schools of thought.

Apostasy is of three types as categorized by scholars of the four schools such as an-Nawawiyy and others among the شَافِعِيَّة (Shaafi'iyyah) and حَنَفِيَّة (Hanafiyyah) scholars and others. The first category is beliefs which occurs in the heart. The second category is actions carried out by various parts of the body. And the third category of apostasy is apostasy by sayings which are uttered by the tongue. Each type of apostasy is divided and branched out into many subdivisions.

Among the examples of the first category of apostasy, i.e., kufr beliefs, are:

- * Having doubt in the existence of Allaah, His Oneness, His Non-resemblance to the creation, or doubting in the truthfulness of His Messenger مُحَمَّد (Muhammad), or His Messengership, such as doubting whether or not he was a Messenger of Allaah. Or having doubt whether القرآن (the Qur'aan) is from Allaah or from مُحَمَّد (Muhammad). Or doubting whether or not the Day of Judgment will happen. Or doubting in Paradise, Hell, Reward, or Punishment, i.e., in their or having doubt in similar matters which there has been scholarly consensus and is commonly known among the Muslims to be of the religion

- * Believing that the world is eternal by kind and elements or by kind only
  - * Denying one of the attributes of Allaah, which are confirmed by consensus that He is attributed with, such as being Omniscient
  - * Ascribing to Allaah what does not befit Him by consensus such as being a body

existence in the Hereafter; or having doubt in similar matters which there has been scholarly consensus and is commonly known among the Muslims to be of the religion.

- * Believing the world is eternal by kind and elements as some philosophers said or by kind only as said by other philosophers. Aḥmad Ibn Taymiyah followed them in this misguidance.
- * Denying one or more than one of the thirteen attributes of Allaah, which are confirmed by consensus that He is attributed with, such as being Omniscient, Omnipotent, All-Hearing, All-Seeing, Alive or a Willer<sup>1</sup>.
- * Ascribing to Allaah what does not befit Him, by consensus, such as being a body, i.e., for one to believe that Allaah is a body that has length, width, and depth. Also, it is kufr to attribute powerlessness, ignorance, and death to Allaah because it entails belying the Religion.

- * Legitimizing what is unlawful by consensus and commonly known among the Muslims to be unlawful, i.e., its unlawful character is famous among the scholars as well as the commonality, while it is known by the legitimizer to be unlawful under religious law such as adultery and fornication, sodomy, killing unjustly, stealing, and forcefully taking money of others unjustly. However if the person was a new Muslim who did not know that these acts were prohibited and said about them that they are permissible, this person does not fall into kufir.
- * Likewise, to deem unlawful what is commonly known among the Muslims to be lawful, i.e., knowledge of its lawfulness is unequivocally known among the Muslims to be part of the religion. This is the case if the prohibitor of the lawful act knows that it is lawful, such as selling and marriage. Whoever deems them forbidden becomes a kaafir.
- * Likewise, renouncing the obligation of the matters, which are by consensus and commonly recognized among the Muslims to be as such, i.e., they are well known among the scholars and lay Muslims to be obligatory, such as the five obligatory prayers or one of their prostrations, the obligation of Zakaah, Fasting of رَمَضَانَ (Ramadaan), Pilgrimage, and Ablution. Hence, whoever believes any of these matters are not obligatory becomes a kaafir.

- * Likewise, deeming obligatory the matters which are not obligatory by consensus such as requiring an additional رَكْعَةً (rak'ah) to the two rak'ahs of the obligatory Dawn Prayer.
- * Likewise renouncing what is, by consensus, religiously exhorted as such, i.e., its exhortation is unequivocally and definitely known by the Muslims; such as the supererogatory prayers associated with the ritual prayers: rawaatib and witr prayers.
- * To intend to commit kufr in the future such as if someone intends to do so the following day, or in a month or a year or more, then they become a kaafir instantly. Or if one intends to do any of the aforementioned kufr matters or hesitates in doing so, but not the mere involuntary thought of it

- * To deny the companionship of our Master Aboo Bakr may Allaah raise his rank
  - * [To deny] the Prophethood of whomever is recognized by consensus as a Messenger or a Prophet
  - * To reject a letter of القرآن (the Qur'aan), which is part of it by consensus; or to add a letter to it doing so such as saying in one's heart "Should I or should I not do that", then one becomes a kaafir immediately. But not the mere involuntary thought of it because this does not nullify the Muslim's faith. For example if an intrusive and involuntary thought entailing the renunciation of the existence of Allaah occurs in one's heart while believing firmly in the truth then one does not become a kaafir, because the involuntary thought does not negate certainty.

- * To deny the companionship of our Master Aboo Bakr may Allaah raise his rank. This is kufr owing to the denier's repudiation of القرآن (the Qur'aan) because Allaah stated his companionship explicitly in القرآن (the Qur'aan).
- * To deny the Prophethood of whomever is recognized by consensus among Muslims as a Messenger or a Prophet such as aadam, مُوسَى (Moosaa), عيسى (^Eesaa) and مُحَمَّد (Muhammad), peace be upon them, and may Allaah raise their ranks.
- * To reject a letter of القرآن (the Qur'aan) which is confirmed to be a part of it by consensus, i.e., rejecting it while knowing that it is a letter of القرآن (the Qur'aan); or to add a letter to it which is by consensus not recognized as a part of it with the conviction that it is part of it out of stubbornness

- * To belie a Messenger, demean him, or use a diminutive form of his name with the purpose of degrading him
- * To believe in the possibility of Prophethood of someone after our Prophet مُحَمَّد (Muhammad) which is by consensus not recognized as part of it, i.e., Muslims unanimously do not consider this addition to be part of القرآن (the Qur'aan). Provided he added it with the conviction that it is part of it out of stubbornness. However, if this extraneous addition was due to his belief that it is part of القرآن (the Qur'aan) out of ignorance then he is not judged with kufr.

The second category of apostasy is actions, such as

- * To belie a Messenger or demean him by ascribing an unbefitting attribute to him or to use a diminutive form of his name such as calling Prophet مُوسَى (Moosaa) “Muwaysaa” (which is the diminutive form of Moosaa) with the purpose of degrading him.
- * To believe in the possibility of Prophethood of someone after our Prophet مُحَمَّد (Muhammad), i.e., to believe it is possible for prophetic revelation to be granted to a person who was not chosen to be a prophet before Prophet مُحَمَّد (Muhammad)<sup>1</sup>.

The second category of apostasy is actions, such as

1) That is to be sent by God as a Prophet or Messenger.

prostrating to an idol, the sun, or the moon; also, such as prostrating to a human out of worship.

The third category of apostasy is sayings, which are too many to be counted by us. Some examples are:

- * To say to a Muslim: 'O kaafir', 'O Jew', 'O Christian', or 'O you without religion', meaning by that the religion of the addressed person is kufr, Judaism, Christianity, or not a religion. It is not the case [i.e., it is not kufr] if prostrating to an idol, i.e., an object worshipped instead of Allaah, whether it was made of stone, wood, or otherwise. Or prostrating to the sun or the moon on any account, i.e., it is kufr and apostasy whether or not one intended to worship them. Also, such as prostrating to a human, if the prostrator prostrates out of worship to this human like the prostration of some ignorant people to some fraudulent Sufis out of worship then it is kufr. However, if a person prostrates to another not out of worship such as prostrating to salute them only then it is not kufr rather it is considered sinful in the religious law of our Master مُحَمَّد (Muhammad). Although, it was permissible under previous Prophetic laws.

The third category of apostasy is sayings, which are too many to be counted by us. Some examples are:

- * To say to a Muslim: 'O kaafir', 'O Jew', 'O Christian', or 'O you without religion', provided that the meaning intended by the speaker is that the religion of the addressed person is kufr, Judaism, Christianity, or not a religion, then these expressions are apostasy and kufr. It is not the case [i.e., it is not kufr] if the speaker did not intend the apparent meaning of these expressions. For example, if a person addressed a it was [said] with the purpose of likening [him to these non-Muslims]

- * To ridicule one of the names of Allaah, the Exalted, His Promise, or His Threat by a person who is not ignorant that these matters are confirmed by Allaah, the Exalted
- * To say: “If Allaah ordered me with such a matter I would not do it”; or to say: “If القِبْلَة (the Qiblah) was at such [a specific] direction, I would not

Muslim as ‘O kaafir’ and it was said to him with the purpose of likening him to these non-Muslims regarding the abjectness of the addressee’s actions or his poor mistreatment of Muslims as unbelievers mistreat them, then it is not kufr but it is an enormous sin and the speaker becomes a فاسق (faasiq)<sup>1</sup>.

- * To ridicule one of the names of Allaah, the Exalted, His Promise of Paradise and the enjoyment therein, or His Threat of Hellfire and torture, by a person who is not ignorant that these matters: the name, promise, and threat that were ridiculed are confirmed by Allaah, the Exalted, like the statement said by some vile people “Tomorrow we will be cozy in the fire of Hell” as it mocks the Religion and belies the the Book of God.
- * To say, with the intent to belittle the command of Allaah, “If Allaah ordered me with such a matter I would not do it”; or to say, out of belittlement of القِبْلَة (the Qiblah), “If القِبْلَة (the Qiblah)<sup>2</sup> was at such a specific direction I would not

- * To say: “If Allaah punishes me for leaving out prayers despite my sickness He would be unjust to me”

pray towards it”; or to say: “If Allaah gave me Paradise I would not enter it” with belittlement or demonstrating obstinacy against the religion in all these cases. However if they were not said out of belittlement, stubbornness, or belying the Religion then it is not kufr.

- * For a sick person to say for example, after being ordered to pray: “If Allaah punishes me for leaving out prayers despite my sickness He would be unjust to me.” He becomes a kaafir because he attributed injustice to Allaah.
- * To say about an occurrence: “This occurrence happened without the Predestining of Allaah” whether the occurrence was good or evil.
- * To say: “If the Prophets, or the Angels, or all the Muslims testified before me that something is so, I would not accept it from them” that is, I would not believe them in what they said. In such a case, one becomes a kaafir for belying the known religious texts.

- * To say, with the purpose of belittlement: “I will not do that even if it is a recommended matter (sunnah)”
  - * To say: “If this person were a prophet I would not believe in him”
  - * To say when a scholar issues a religious judgment فتوى (fatwaa): “What is this law?” with the purpose of belittling the judgment of the Islamic law

- * To say after being told to practice one of the sunnahs<sup>1</sup>, like using the siwaak<sup>2</sup> with the purpose of belittlement of the Prophet’s sunnah “I will not do that even if it is a recommended matter (sunnah)” then one falls into kufr. Unlike the person who says that not intending mockery of the Prophet’s sunnah. Such a person does not become a kaafir.
- * To say about an enemy, for example: “If this person were a prophet I would not believe in him” then one becomes a kaafir due to their mockery of the office of Prophethood that this statement implies.
- * To say when a scholar issues a religious judgment فتوى (fatwaa): “What is this law?” with the purpose of belittling the judgment of the Islamic law and objecting to it, then one becomes a kaafir. However, if one did not intend to include all the religious scholars, but he meant specific scholars because of what he believes of their corrupt condition, [and this statement was said] within a context which indicates that [intended] meaning, then one would not become a kaafir. - * To say: “May Allaah's damn be upon every religious scholar” intending comprehensiveness, i.e., generalizing it to all religious scholars, as a result the speaker becomes a kaafir. However, if one did not intend to include all the religious scholars but he meant specific scholars because of what he believes of their corrupt condition and this statement was said within a context which indicates that intended meaning, for example if the issue of corrupt scholars of a certain area was raised then following that he said: “may Allaah's damn be upon every scholar” while intending the said scholars then one would not become a kaafir. Although, the utterance of such statement is not sinless, i.e., his statement is sinful. However, if there was no context indicating his intention of specification then he becomes a kaafir even if he says “I meant the scholars of my time.”

Nevertheless, this is prohibited as Sheikh أحمد بن حنبل (Ahmad Ibn Hajar) said: “This is not far from being prohibited”, i.e., saying that it is prohibited is credible (which means it is the preponderant position) because such expressions constitute lack of proper etiquette with القرآن (the Qur'aan).

* Or to say anything similar to those aforementioned abhorrent and ugly words, may Allaah protect us from them.

A large number of jurists of the four schools like the Hanafiyy scholar, Badrur-Rasheed, who lived in the eighth century, and authored a treatise clarifying certain expressions that nullify Islam, and the Maalikiyy Judge عياض (^Iyaad), who lived in the sixth century, in his book “Ash-Shifaa” may Allaah have mercy upon both of them, enumerated many things that pertain to these issues namely kufr beliefs, acts, and sayings, after their emergence in their time to warn people against them which one is urged to look at because whoever does not know evil is more likely to fall into it and the worst evil is unbelief in Allaah.

The rule upon which scholars based their judgments in these cases is: Any belief, action, or saying which indicates belittling Allaah, His Books, His Prophets, His Angels, His Rites, the Indicators of His Religion, i.e., the obvious matters known to be of the Religion like the prayer, Adhaan and mosques, His Rules,

His Promise of Paradise and reward, or His Threat of Hellfire and torture is kufr. Hence, one must use caution with utmost effort to avoid these various nullifiers of faith at all times, i.e., the person should make the greatest effort to avoid that, and be extremely careful about it, because whoever dies beyond the fold of Islam is a loser in this life and the Hereafter.

After the author may Allaah have mercy upon him explained the types of apostasy, he began to discuss judgments that apply to the apostate. He said:

Section 3

Clarifying the rules that apply to the apostate

It is obligatory upon the one who has committed apostasy whether male or female to return to the Religion of Islam immediately by uttering the Testifications of Faith which are

أَشْهَدُ أَنْ لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا اللَّهُ وَأَشْهَدُ أَنَّ مُحَمَّدًا رَسُولُ اللَّهِ

“I testify that no one is God but Allaah and I testify that Muhammad is the Messenger of Allaah” or what gives their meaning even in other than Arabic, and they must abandon whatever caused apostasy. If one renounces the cause of

Moreover, it is an obligation upon one to regret having apostatized, and to be determined never to return to committing anything similar.

If one does not abandon the kufr they committed by uttering the Testifications of Faith, they must be ordered to repent by doing so. Nothing is accepted from the apostate but Islam or being killed because of it. This punishment is administered by the caliph after he orders the apostate to re-embrace Islam.

apostasy and utters the Testifications of Faith, one has returned to Islam. Moreover, it is an obligation upon one, besides returning to Islam, to do two additional things for the purpose of being free from sin: first, to regret having apostatized by abhorring in one's heart what was done and second, to be determined in one's heart never to return to committing anything similar, i.e., any similar nullifier of Islam. If a person does not regret or it does not occur to him not to return to unbelief, their Islam is valid, but they are sinful. However, whoever intends or hesitates to commit kufr nullifies their Islam immediately. If one does not abandon the kufr and apostasy they committed by uttering the Testifications of Faith, they must be ordered to repent by doing so. The caliph or his deputy is obligated to order the apostate to return to Islam. Nothing is accepted from the apostate, i.e., the caliph or his deputy do not permit anything but re-embracing Islam or being killed because of one's apostasy. It is enforced by decapitation with the like of a sword if they do not repent. This punishment is administered by the caliph or his deputy after he orders the apostate to re-embrace Islam. It is

The caliph will rely on the testimony of two upright عَدْل (^Adl) male witnesses or upon the person's own admission [of committing kufir]. This is done pursuant to الْحَدِيث (the Hadeeth) related by الْبُخَارِي (Al-Bukhaariyy):

(مَنْ بَدَّلَ دِينَهُ فَاقْتُلُوهُ)

This means: “Kill the one who changes his religion.”

Apostasy invalidates one's fasting, dry purification تَيَمُّم (Tayammum), one's marriage before the marital consummation not permissible to do so beforehand. The caliph will rely in verifying a person's apostasy on the testimony of two upright عَدْل (^Adl) male witnesses or upon the person's, i.e., the apostate's own admission of committing kufir. This is done pursuant to الْحَدِيث (the Hadeeth) related by الْبُخَارِي (al-Bukhaariyy): مَنْ بَدَّلَ دِينَهُ فَاقْتُلُوهُ. This means: “Kill the one who changes his religion,” i.e., kill whomever leaves Islam for another religion, if you ordered them to revert and they did not.

Among the rules of apostasy is that it invalidates one's fasting because fasting is not valid from a kaafir. It also invalidates the apostate's dry purification تَيَمُّم (Tayammum) but not their Ablution. Whoever apostatizes after making Ablution then returns to Islam before the occurrence of anything which annuls their state of legal purity [like defecation or urination] then their Ablution is still valid. The mere apostasy of either spouse also invalidates one's marriage before the marital consummation, i.e., the first sexual intercourse after marriage. If they want to reunite, a new marriage contract is required after the apostate and marriage after the marital consummation if the apostate did not return to Islam within the post-marital waiting period. Conducting a marriage contract for an apostate is not valid with a Muslim or a non-Muslim. It is unlawful to eat from what the apostate slaughters. returns to Islam. And it also invalidates one's marriage if apostasy occurs after the marital consummation if the apostate did not return to Islam within the post-marital waiting period. Thus, a new marriage contract is required after the apostate's return to Islam. If the apostate returns to Islam before the expiration of the post-marital waiting period, their original marriage contract is valid. The post-marital waiting period consists of three intervals between menstruations for menstruating women, three lunar months for non-menstruating women, and for pregnant women until delivery.

Conducting a marriage contract for an apostate is not valid with a Muslim or a non-Muslim even with an apostate like oneself. It is unlawful to eat from what the apostate slaughters. The animals an apostate slaughters is judged as مَيْتَةٌ (maytah)<sup>1</sup>. The apostate does not inherit the wealth of their dead Muslim relatives nor is their wealth inherited by their Muslim relatives. The Non-Muslim (whether an apostate or original kaafir) is neither prayed or supplicated for, due to their kufir, i.e., it is prohibited to pray for a dead kaafir and to ask Allaah to forgive

1) Maytah applies to an animal that has not been slaughtered in the manner prescribed by Islamic law.

them, nor is the kaafir washed, nor shrouded, i.e., it is not an obligation to wash or shroud a dead kaafir (excluding the original kaafir who is a ذمي (dhimmy) which will be discussed later on) however it is permitted to do so; nor is it allowed for a kaafir (apostate or original) to be buried in Islamic cemeteries because they are not Muslims. The apostate's money after death is judged as a spoil فَيء (fay'). Hence, it is deposited in a sound Muslim treasury. However, in the absence of a sound treasury (as has been the case for Muslims up till now), a pious and honest man who knows how the money is properly spent will take it and spend it in the Muslims' interests if he's able to do so.

Section 4

Performing the obligations and avoiding the prohibitions

You should know that every accountable person is obligated to perform all of what Allaah made obligatory on them, such as prayer, Zakaah, fasting, returning what they have taken from people unjustly, etc. One must also perform that in the manner which Allaah ordered, by fulfilling the integrals and the conditions of these obligatory matters. An integral is part of

Also, one must avoid their invalidators. If someone knows of another person leaving out any of these obligations or performing them incorrectly, they must order the wrongdoer to perform these obligations and force them to do so if able. Otherwise, one must denounce that wrongdoing in one's heart when unable to force or order its change; for this is the weakest [degree] of faith, i.e., the least that is required if unable to enact a change.

It is obligatory to leave out all the prohibited matters, forbid

an act of worship that must be fulfilled and without which the act is not valid and a condition is a requirement that is not part of the worship but without which the act of worship is not valid. Also, one must avoid doing their invalidators. If someone accountable knows of another person leaving out any of these obligations or performing them incorrectly in such a way that the obligation will not be fulfilled if one carries on, they must order the wrongdoer to perform these obligations in the manner that will make it valid. And it is obligatory upon the accountable person, if they see an individual performing their duties incorrectly to force them to do so, i.e., to impose on them the performance of the obligations correctly if one is able to compel and order the wrongdoer. Otherwise, one must denounce that wrongdoing in one's heart when unable to force or order its change; for this condemnation in the heart is the weakest degree of faith, i.e., the least that is required if unable to enact a change by physical or verbal means.

It is obligatory upon the accountable person to leave out all the prohibited matters, both small and enormous, forbid whoever commits them, and to forcefully prevent the wrongdoer from committing them if able; or else one must reject those actions in one's heart.

The unlawful حَرَام (haraam) is what Allaah threatened its perpetrator with punishment and promised its avoider with reward, and the obligatory وَاجِب (waajib) is its opposite.

whoever commits them, and to forcefully prevent the wrongdoer by physical or verbal measures from committing them if able, provided that censuring the wrongdoer does not result in a graver sin than the original; or else, if unable to eliminate it, one must reject those prohibited actions in one's heart.

The definition of unlawful حَرَام (haraam) is what Allaah threatened its perpetrator with punishment, i.e., the misdeed which makes its committer deserving of punishment in the Hereafter and promised its avoider (in obedience to the order of Allaah) with reward; and the definition of obligatory وَاجِب (waajib) is its opposite, i.e., what Allaah promised its doer (with the purpose of following the order of Allaah) with reward and threatened its neglecter with punishment.

Purification and Prayer

After the author concluded discussing the issues of belief he started with the rules of purification, which is what makes prayer permissible, such as وضوء (Wudoo') and غُسل (Ghusl), and that which is similar in appearance. He also started explaining the rules of prayer, which is a set of sayings and actions initiated by saying (Allaahu Akbar) and terminated by saying السلام عليكم (as-salaamu ^alaykum).

Section 5

Clarifying the times of the five prayers and what pertains to them

Among the obligations upon every accountable person are five prayers to be performed throughout the day and the night. We know from this, that a person is not sinful if they were to leave out praying the witr or rawaatib prayers.

Since knowing the times of these prayers is obligatory upon every accountable person, the author started to clarify these times. The first prayer is the Early Afternoon Prayer الظُّهْر (adh-Dhuhr). Its time begins when the sun declines westward from the middle of the sky [and remains] until the shadow of an object becomes equal to the length of the object itself in addition to its zenithal shadow.

Its time begins when the time of Dhuhr ends, [and remains] until the sun sets.

Sunset الْمَغْرِبُ (al-Maghrib):

Its time begins after the setting of the sun, [and remains] until the disappearance of the reddish twilight.

the middle of the sky and remains until the shadow of an object becomes equal to the length of the object itself in addition to its zenithal shadow, i.e., for the shadow of the object to extend pass the object by [the length of the] shadow when the sun was at its zenith -if any. Hence, when the object casts a shadow as long as the object itself plus the length of the zenithal shadow, the time of ظَهْر (Dhuhr) has ended and the time of عَصْر (^Aṣr) has started. The zenithal shadow is the shadow when the sun is in the middle of the sky. The second prayer is the Late Afternoon Prayer الْعَصْر (al-^Aṣr). Its time begins when the time of Dhuhr ends, without an interval between them and remains until the whole disc of the sun sets. The third prayer is the Sunset Prayer الْمَغْرِبُ (al-Maghrib). Its time begins after the setting of the sun and remains until the disappearance of the reddish twilight which is a redness that appears after sunset in the western horizon. The fourth prayer is the Nightfall Prayer الْعِشَاءُ (al-^Ishaa’).

Its time begins when المغرب (al-Maghrib) time ends, [and remains] until the appearance of the true dawn.

Dawn الصُّبْح (as-Subh):

Its time begins when العشاء (al-^Ishaa') time ends, [and remains] until the appearance of [part of] the sun.

It is obligatory upon every pubescent, sane, pure (not during menses or post-partum bleeding) Muslim to perform these prayers in their prescribed times.

It is unlawful to perform these prayers ahead of their prescribed times or to

Its time begins when المغرب (al-Maghrib) time ends and remains until the appearance of the true dawn which is a horizontal illumination that appears thin in the eastern horizon then expands and spreads gradually. By saying true dawn, it is known that the false dawn is eliminated from being considered as an indication that the Nightfall Prayer time has ended. The fifth prayer is the Dawn Prayer الصُّبْح (as-Subh). Its time begins when العشاء (al-^Ishaa') time ends and remains until the appearance of the first part of the sun.

It is obligatory upon every pubescent, sane, pure (not during menses or postpartum bleeding) Muslim to learn the times of these prayers and to perform these prayers in their prescribed times. Hence, prayer is not incumbent on the impubescent, the insane, and the original non-Muslim. The original non-Muslim is not obligated to pray in the sense that we do not compel them to pray while being a kaafir. It is unlawful to perform these prayers ahead of their prescribed times or to delay them after their prescribed times without an excuse.

If an inhibitive matter-such as menses-occurs after sufficient time to perform the prayer has passed since the setting in of the prayer time, or [if an inhibitive matter occurs] after sufficient time to perform the prayer and its purification [has passed] in the case of the [one afflicted with a] matter such as incontinence of urine, one must make up that missed prayer.

delay them after their prescribed times without an excuse.

Hence, if anyone prays ahead of the prayer time without an excuse they bear a sin and their prayer is not valid. They also bear a sin if they delay the prayer until after its time passes, but their prayer is valid. On the other hand, if the delay was for an excuse such as traveling and the like, then it is not sinful.

If an inhibitive matter which prevents the prayer from being an obligation on a person such as menses, postpartum bleeding, insanity, or fainting occurs after sufficient time to only perform the prayer has passed since the setting in of the prayer time, then they must make up that missed prayer provided that they have the latitude (religiously) to perform purification before the setting in of the prayer's time. Or if an inhibitive matter occurs after sufficient time to perform the prayer and its purification has passed, given the person is not permitted to perform purification before the setting in of the prayer's time like the case of the one afflicted with a matter such as incontinence of urine, or استحاضة (istihaadah)<sup>1</sup> then one also must make up that missed prayer when the inhibitive matter terminates.

1) For the woman to discharge blood outside the normal period.

If the inhibitive matter ends and there was enough time left, of the prayer time, to say “Allaahu Akbar”, one is obligated to make up this prayer and the prayer before it if they are combinable.

Hence, it is an obligation to pray both the Late Afternoon and Early Afternoon prayers if the inhibitive matter ended and there was enough time left to say “Allaahu Akbar” before sunset; likewise, [it is an obligation to pray] both the Nightfall and Sunset prayers if there was enough time left to say “Allaahu Akbar” before dawn.

If the inhibitive matter which prevents the prayer from being an obligation ends and there was enough time left of the prayer time to say Allaahu Akbar or more than that, not less, one is obligated (i.e., liable) to make up this prayer and the prayer before it if they are combinable in the case of an excuse, i.e., if it is permissible to combine the previous prayer with the current prayer (during which the inhibitive matter ended) for an excuse such as traveling. Hence, it is an obligation to pray both the Late Afternoon and Early Afternoon Prayers because they are combined together for an excuse if the inhibitive matter such as menses or others ended and there was enough time left to say Allaahu Akbar before sunset. Likewise it is an obligation to pray both the Nightfall and Sunset Prayers because they are combined together when there is an excuse if there was enough time left to say Allaahu Akbar before dawn, i.e., provided the inhibitive matter ended before dawn by the duration it takes a person to say Allaahu Akbar or more, not less.

[Obligations of the Guardian]

(Section 6)

It is obligatory on the guardian of (both male and female) children who are مُمَيِّز (mumayyiz) [i.e., the child who has the capacity to reason and discern] to order them to pray and to teach them the rules pertaining to it after they turn seven lunar years old and to hit them for neglecting the prayer after completing ten years. The same is done in the case of fasting if the children can bear it.

---

Section 6

The religious obligations upon the child's guardian

It is obligatory (as a communal obligation) on the guardian of both male and female children who are مُمَيِّز (mumayyiz), i.e., the child who has the capacity to reason and discern and understands when addressed and responds adequately, to order them to pray, even the makeup prayer, in a serious manner indicating to the child the prayer's importance; and to teach them the rules pertaining to it after they turn seven lunar years old. However, if the child becomes mumayyiz before completing seven lunar years, it is not an obligation to order the child to pray. And it is an obligation to hit them (not in an abusive way that causes harm) for neglecting the prayer after completing ten lunar years. The same is done in the case of fasting, if the children can bear it, i.e., the guardian is obligated to order the child to fast at seven and hit them for not fasting, while able, at ten; however, if the child cannot bear fasting then they are not ordered to do so.

It is also an obligation to teach the children the matters of the belief and the rules of the religion, i.e., “this is an obligation, and this is unlawful,” and to teach them that using the siwaak and the congregational prayer are religiously encouraged.

It is obligatory on the Muslim rulers to execute the one who neglects the prayer

It is also an obligation on the guardian to teach the mumayyiz children males and females the fundamental and essential matters of the belief such as the existence of Allaah, His Oneness, that He does not resemble His creation, and that He is not a body. The guardian teaches the child that مُحَمَّدٌ (Muḥammad), may Allaah raise his rank is the Messenger of Allaah, that he was truthful in all that he had conveyed from Allaah, that he was the last of the Prophets, and that he received القرآن (the Qur’aan) from Allaah. They also must teach them that Allaah created Angels and that He will annihilate the Earth and what is on it and that He has created for the obedient people a place of residence in which they live in enjoyment called al-Jannah (Paradise) and for the kaafirs a place of residence in which they live in torment called an-Naar (Hell) etc. And the guardian must also teach the mumayyiz child the rules of the religion, i.e., “this is an obligation” such as the five prayers and fasting رمضان (Ramadaan), “and this is unlawful” like stealing, lying (even while joking), fornication, sodomy, gossip, and tale bearing, and to teach them that using the siwaak, and the congregational prayer are religiously encouraged and other similar matters.

It is obligatory on the Muslim rulers, i.e., the caliph or his deputy to execute the one who neglects the prayer. They are out of laziness if that person does not repent. This person is still judged as a Muslim.

Every Muslim is obligated to order his family to pray and whomever else he can order to pray if they do not pray.

executed after warning them that they will be killed if they neglect praying until the primary time of prayer and its secondary time (originally offered to the excused person) expires, provided there is such a period for that neglected prayer. This is the judgment if one neglected the prayer out of laziness or lack of concern not out of denying its obligation. This punishment is fulfilled if that person does not repent by starting to pray before getting killed. Killing them would cleanse them from that sin. This person, i.e., the person who neglected praying out of laziness is still judged as a Muslim. Therefore, the rulings pertaining to Muslims are applicable to them: they are washed, shrouded, prayed for, and buried in a Muslim cemetery. As for the one who does not pray out of denying its obligation, such a person is an apostate and is treated as such.

Every Muslim is obligated (as a communal obligation) to order his family, i.e., his wife and the like to pray after teaching them the rules of prayer himself or arranging for someone else to do so. And it is an obligation to order whomever else he can order to pray if they do not pray.

(Section 7)

Among the conditions of [valid] prayer is الْوُضُوءُ (Wudoo') Ablution.

Its integrals are six:

The first integral is: The intention of purification for the prayer-or any other valid intention-when washing one's face, i.e., the intention accompanies the washing of one's face according to as-Shaafi'iyy. According to Imaam Maalik,

Section 7

Clarifying the integrals of الوُضُوء (Ablution)

Among the conditions of valid prayer is الوُضُوء (Wudoo') Ablution, which is using water on specific parts of the body initiated with an intention. Its integrals are six. The first integral is the intention of purification for the prayer in one's heart or any other valid intention like intending: "I am now making الوُضُوء (Wudoo') or the obligatory الوُضُوء (Wudoo') or intending to make permissible that which requires Ablution like intending to make prayer or touching القرآن (the Qur'aan) permissible for them. It is not sufficient for one to utter the intention with one's tongue without having it in one's heart, nor is it sufficient to intend performing purification only. The intention must occur when washing one's face, i.e., when washing the first part of the face not before or after that. It is a requirement that the intention accompanies the washing of one's face according to Imaam as-Shaafi'iyy, may Allaah raise his rank. According to Imaam Maalik it suffices if the intention was made a short time prior to washing one's face.

The second integral is: Washing the whole face including hair and skin from the hairline to the chin and from ear to ear. However, it is not an obligation to wash the inside of a man's thick beard.

The third integral is: Washing the hands and forearms up to and including the elbows and what is on them.

The fourth integral is: Wiping

Ibn Anas, may Allaah raise his rank it suffices if the intention was made a short time prior to washing one's face.

The second integral is washing what is apparent of the whole face once. Everything that is within the boundary of the face must be washed including hair and skin. The boundary of the face lengthwise is from the hairline for most people to the bottom of the chin where the jaw bones meet, and widthwise from the tragus of the ear to the tragus of the other ear. However, it is not an obligation to wash the inside of a man's thick beard which is the hair grown on the chin and the lower jawbones, rather it is sufficient to wash the exterior part of the beard. If the beard is not thick then he is obligated to wash both the inner and the outer part of the beard. It is considered thick when his skin is not apparent, and it is considered thin if the opposite is true. The third integral is washing once the hands and forearms up to and including the elbows where the upper arm and forearm join and what is on them, i.e., hair even if thick, nails, growths, cracks, and scabs. The fourth integral is wiping

[with damp hands] the head or part of it even if it is only one hair within the boundary of the head.

The fifth integral is: Washing the feet including the ankles, or wiping [with a damp hand] one's footgear خُفَّ (khuff) if its requirements are satisfied.

The sixth integral is: To fulfill these integrals according to the above [mentioned] order.

the head or part of it once, even if the part is hairless. It is sufficient even if it is only one hair or part of a single hair because the term “wipe” applies to both. The wiped part must be within the boundary of the head. Hence, it is invalid to wipe part of the hair that hangs below the limits of the head when extended to the side where it normally falls. The fifth integral is washing the feet and what is on them, i.e., hair, nails, growths, and cracks, once, including the ankles, which are the protruding bones below the shin. This is true if one is not wearing خُفَّ (khuff), wherein such a case the obligation is either washing one's feet or wiping one's footgear خُفَّ (khuff) if its requirements are satisfied. The requirements are for the footgear to be pure, to cover the whole foot including the ankles, and to withstand walking in them without additional footwear for the necessary errands normally performed by a traveler when getting off to rest and packing up to leave. It is also a condition that the footgear is worn when one is in the state of complete purification and that they prevent water from going through to the feet. The sixth integral is to fulfill these integrals according to the above mentioned order, i.e., by starting with washing the face accompanied with the valid intention then washing the hands and forearms then wiping the head and then washing the feet.

(Section 8)

Ablution is nullified by:

- * That which is emitted from the eliminatory outlets with the exception of مَنِيّ (maniyy) [fluid usually discharged by males and females during orgasm]
  - * Touching the penis, vulva, or anus of a human being with the inside part of the hand

Section 8

The nullifiers of وضوء (Wudoo') Ablution

Ablution is nullified by four occurrences. The first nullifier is that which is emitted, be it customary or not, a tangible substance or gas from the eliminatory outlets, which are the anus, vulva, and penis, with the exception of مَنِيّ (maniyy) [fluid usually discharged by males and females during orgasm], i.e., if one's own maniyy is emitted it does not nullify one's Ablution according to Imaam as-Shaafi'iyy, may Allaah raise his rank. The second nullifier is touching the penis, vulva, or anus of a human being; therefore, touching that of an animal does not nullify one's وضوء (Wudoo'). The Wudoo' is nullified by touching a male's penis or touching the line of contact between the two folds of the labia minora<sup>1</sup> adjacent to the vagina and urethra with the inside part of the bare hand or touching the rim of a human's anus, i.e., the edges of the outlet that touch [when closed] not the mere touching of the buttocks with the inside part of the hand. The inside part of the hands is defined as the area

1) of the female's vulva...

without a barrier

- * Touching the skin of a marriageable female who reached an age at which she is normally desired
  - * Losing one's consciousness or sanity except if one is sleeping with one's buttocks firmly seated

concealed when placing one palm on the other while applying slight pressure and spreading the fingers apart. Therefore, touching the aforementioned areas with other than the inside part of the hand such as the back of the hand, does not nullify one's Ablution. Also, for the touching to nullify الوُضوء (the Wudoo') it must be without a barrier. Thus, if there was a barrier, الوُضوء (the Wudoo') is not nullified. The third nullifier is touching between the opposite sexes, i.e., for a male who reached an age at which he is normally desired to touch with his skin the skin of a marriageable female who reached an age at which she is normally desired. Therefore, if a young boy who is not normally desired touches the skin of a young girl who is not normally desired or the skin of a woman, or if a man touches the skin of a young girl who is not normally desired or touches the skin of a woman with a barrier or if he touches other than her skin such as her hair, his Ablution is not nullified. The fourth nullifier is losing one's consciousness or sanity, by insanity, epilepsy, intoxication, or sleeping, except if one is sleeping with one's buttocks firmly seated, be it on the floor, on an animal's back, or other than that.

[الاستنجاء (Istinjaa'), i.e., To clean oneself after defecation and urination for example]

(Section 9)

It is an obligation to make اِسْتِنْجَاء (istinjaa') with water whenever any moist substance is emitted from any of the eliminatory outlets, with the exception of maniyy, until that area becomes pure, or by wiping [that area] three or more times with an object that is pure,

---

Section 9

Occurrences which necessitate اِسْتِنْجَاء (istinjaa') and clarifying its conditions

It is an obligation to make اِسْتِنْجَاء (istinjaa') with purifying water when one wants to perform prayer whenever any moist substance which soils the outlet is emitted from any of the eliminatory outlets, i.e., the penis, vulva, and anus. This is the case whether the emitted substance is usual like urine or unusual like blood. The emission of a non-moist substance does not make istinjaa' obligatory to perform since it does not soil the outlet. Istinjaa' is an obligation for all moist substances with the exception of maniyy. Istinjaa' is not obligatory if maniyy is emitted because it is pure. Istinjaa' is satisfied when the waste is removed by using one of two things: 1. pure and purifying water until that area, i.e., the penis, vulva, or anus becomes pure. The area attains purity when the najas entity and its attributes are removed. Or 2. by wiping that area three times, not less, or more than three times if the area did not become pure with three wipes. The wiping is done with an object that is pure; therefore, it solid, unrespectable, and adequate for the removal of the najas filth such as stone or paper until the area becomes clean even if a trace remains. This is valid even if water is present provided the moist najas filth does not move or become dry. If the emitted substance moves from where it initially settled is not sufficient to use an object which is intrinsically najas such as solid dry dung or an object which is contaminated with something najas such as a rock soiled with najas. The object must also be solid; therefore, neither a liquid substance such as rose water nor a moist substance such as a wet piece of cloth is sufficient. Lastly, the object must be unrespectable and adequate for the removal of the najas filth; therefore, it is not permissible nor is it sufficient to perform istinjaa' with what is religiously respectable such as Islamic books or what is sought for food by humans like bread and what is similar. Also, it is not sufficient with an object that is not adequate for the removal of the filth like glass, bamboo, and loose soil. An object such as stone or paper satisfies all four conditions. Wiping the soiled outlet is carried out until the area becomes clean even if a trace remains. This wiping is valid even if water is present provided the moist najas filth does not move or become dry. If the emitted substance moves from where it initially settled to a separate spot, then using water is required for the separated substance. If the emitted substance that moved from where it first settled remained coalescent then water is also required for its removal. Whereas if the emitted substance did not become separated nor did it move from where it reached and initially settled nor did urine or similar waste spread past the glans of a or dries, then water must be used.

man or the orifice of the vagina of a woman nor did feces spread past the natal-cleft, i.e., the line of contact between the buttocks when standing, then using stone or the like is sufficient. If it spreads beyond these areas or it dries, then water must be used.

(Section 10)

Among the conditions of the prayer is purification from major ritual impurity الْحَدَثُ الْأَكْبَرُ (al-hadath al-akbar) by performing the obligatory whole body wash غُسْلٌ (Ghusl) or Tayammum when one is unable to perform the obligatory wash.

There are five occurrences which render the whole body wash غُسْلٌ (Ghusl) an obligation:

* The emission of مَنِيٍّ (maniyy)

Section 10

The integrals of the obligatory غُسْلٌ (Ghusl)
and what necessitates it

Among the conditions for the validity of the prayer is purification from major ritual impurity الْحَدَثُ الْأَكْبَرُ (al-hadath akbar) by performing the obligatory whole body wash غُسْلٌ (Ghusl), or Tayammum when one is unable to perform the obligatory wash. There are five occurrences which render the whole body wash غُسْلٌ (Ghusl) an obligation, two of these events apply to both men and women. The first occurrence is the emission of the person's own مَنِيٍّ (maniyy). Emission here means for maniyy to reach the outside of a man's penis, the outside of a virgin's vulva, or the part of a nonvirgin woman's vulva that is apparent when she squats on her feet to relieve herself. Otherwise if the maniyy did not reach the forgoing points then it does not necessitate the obligatory wash. Maniyy is known by its signs: it exits in spurts gushing out one spurt after another, it exits with pleasure and it smells like dough when wet and like egg

- * Sexual intercourse
  - * Menses
  - * Post-partum bleeding
  - * Childbirth

white when dry. When any of these three signs are present the substance is maniyy. Hence, it is not a condition for all the signs to occur.

The second occurrence requiring غُسل (Ghusl) is sexual intercourse which is defined as inserting the glans of the penis, or its equivalent -size wise- for a person deprived of it, in a vagina or an anus, even if no ejaculation occurs. The following three occurrences are specific to women. The first is menses which is the blood emitted from the uterus of a woman not due to illness nor childbirth. The minimum duration of menses is one day and one night and the maximum duration is fifteen days. The termination of menses necessitates the obligatory wash. The second occurrence is postpartum bleeding which is the blood emitted from the uterus of a woman after giving birth. The minimum duration of postpartum bleeding is a moment and the maximum duration is sixty days. The termination of postpartum bleeding necessitates the obligatory wash. The third occurrence is childbirth even if no wetness accompanies the birth of the child. This concludes the five occurrences that necessitate the obligatory غُسل (Ghusl).

The integrals of the obligatory whole body wash غُسل (Ghusl) are two:

- * The intention to remove the major ritual impurity الحَدَثُ الْأَكْبَرُ (al-hadath al-akbar) or the like
  - * To wash the entire body with water, i.e., the skin and hair, even if the hair was thick

The integrals of the whole body wash غُسل (Ghusl) are two: the first integral is the intention to remove the major ritual impurity الحَدَثُ الْأَكْبَرُ (al-hadath al-akbar) or the like such as intending to perform the obligatory غُسل (Ghusl) or to be permitted to pray. Therefore, merely intending to wash or clean the body is insufficient. The intention must accompany washing the first part of the body. Anything washed before the intention is disregarded. The second integral is to wash the apparent parts of the entire body with pure and purifying water, i.e., the skin and the inside and outside of the hair even if the hair was thick, i.e., regardless of it being thin or thick.

(Section 11)

The conditions of [valid] purification are:

- * Islam
  - * At-Tamyeez* (the capacity to reason and discern)
  - * The absence of anything which prevents the water from reaching the part that must be washed
  - * For water to flow [on the part that must be washed]

Section 11

Clarifying the conditions for the validity of purification and the rules of تَيَمُّم (Tayammum)

The conditions of valid purification, be it وُضُوء (Wudoo') or غُسل (Ghusl) are five, the first is Islam; therefore, a non-Muslim's purification from the minor and major ritual impurities is not valid. The second condition is at-Tamyeez* (the capacity to reason and discern). So, the purification of a non-mumayyiz person such as a young child or an insane person is not valid. The third condition is the absence of anything which prevents the water from reaching the part that must be washed or wiped. Hence if there was something preventing the water from reaching the part to be washed or wiped, such as grease sticking to the skin, purification is not valid. However, a substance that conceals the color of the skin but does not prevent water from reaching the body part, such as ink, does not prevent purification from being valid. The fourth condition is for water to flow on the part that must be washed, while maintaining its natural properties, even if assisted by rubbing with the hand. Therefore, wiping the part that must be washed will not suffice. The fifth condition is to use water that is pure in itself and purifying for others. This is called absolute water, i.e., that which we call water without any necessary restriction, as is the case with rainwater. Water remains absolute as long as it is not stripped of its name as a result of being mixed with a pure substance from which the water can be easily shielded. This means if the word 'water' is no longer applicable to the liquid (owing to its significant change) then it is no longer absolute-for example, if the water were mixed with milk, ink, or the like. A mixable substance is visually indistinguishable from the water it was mixed in, contrary to an unmixable substance that only comes in contact with the water. Any change as a result of coming in contact with an unmixable substance does not affect the purifying character of water. If the mixable substance alters the water, causing a major change in its color, taste, or smell, in such a way that the name water may not be applied to it, then it is no longer considered absolute water, thus losing its quality of affecting purification. If this is a slight change, whereby water retains its name, then it remains purifying. If, however, the water changes because it mixed with that which it is hard to shield water from, then the purifying property of the water remains, even if the change is extreme: an example of this is a substance that is in the water's natural place (like weeds) or its pathway (such as earth containing sulfur or another similar substance

- * To use purifying water-water not stripped of its name as a result of being mixed with a pure substance from which the water can be easily shielded

The water [used for purification] must not have changed by najas filth even if it was a slight change. If the water was less than قُلَّتَان (two gullahs), it is a condition that it does not come in contact with najas filth that is not exempted.

It is also a condition

which cannot be easily avoided). It is also a condition that the water used for purification must not have changed by najas filth like urine whether the amount of water the najas came in contact with was small or large even if it was a slight change because any change due to contact with najas makes the water impure regardless of whether the change is small or big. However, if there is a large amount of water and no change occurs as a result of the contact with the najas, the water remains pure and purifying. If the water was a little amount, i.e., less than قُلَّتَان (two gullahs)<sup>1</sup> - two gullahs is the amount of water contained in a cubic container with the dimensions of one cubit and a quarter in length, width, and depth - then it is a condition in order for the purification with this water to be valid that it does not come in contact with najas filth that is not exempted because the water becomes impure through this contact. However, if the water comes in contact with an exempted impurity, like if an insect that does not possess flowing blood dies in the water or dies before falling into the water and then is thrown in by the wind for instance provided no change occurs in both cases; then the water is not rendered impure. It is also a condition in order for the purification with this water to be valid

1) A قُلَّة (gullah) is a container which holds approximately 95 liters of water.

that this water has not been used to remove [major or minor ritual impurity] حَدَث (ḥadath) or najas filth.

[Tayammum]

The person who cannot find water or is harmed by water, makes Tayammum after the time [of what the person is performing Tayammum for] has set in and the non-exempted najas filth has been removed.

that this small amount of water has not been used to remove major or minor ritual impurity حَدَث (ḥadath) unlike the water used for the second or third wash and the like; it remains purifying. It is also a condition that the small amount of water has not been used to remove najas filth. However, if the water was neither changed by the najas it removed, nor increased in weight because of it, then it is pure but not purifying.

The person who cannot physically find water, i.e., they searched for water and did not find it neither within their belongings nor with the company traveling with them nor in the distance they are required to go to while searching for it, or the person who lacks the capacity to use water (even though it is present) for example if they needed it to drink or were harmed by using water: whether they feared death, impairment of a body part, or prolonging the period of their illness for instance, in all the aforementioned cases one makes Tayammum.

It is a condition for the validity of one's Tayammum that it be performed after the time of worship (that one intends to perform with this Tayammum like prayer or طواف (Tawaaf) has set in and it is also a condition for the validity of the Tayammum for it to be performed after the non-exempted najas filth has been removed from one's body. Hence, if they were to perform Tayammum with the said najas on their body, their Tayammum would not be valid. This is true if they had water to remove the najas or else they perform Tayammum and pray, then make up that prayer [later on]. And some scholars said that their judgment is similar to the one who has no water nor soil.

[Tayammum is performed] by wiping one's face and hands including forearms with the [dust of] unmixed, purifying, and dusty soil in the aforementioned order in two strikes with the intention of making the performance of the obligatory prayer permissible while transferring the [dust of the] soil and wiping the first part of the face.

Tayammum* is performed by wiping ones face and hands including forearms and elbows with the dust of unmixed, purifying, and dusty soil. Hence, using soil mixed with extraneous substances such as ashes, or using other than soil like rock or using soil contaminated with an impure substance like urine, is invalid. Also, Tayammum must be performed in the aforementioned order. So, wiping the face must precede wiping the hands and forearms. The minimum requirement for Tayammum is that it is performed in two strikes, i.e., transferring the dust of the soil twice. Therefore, one strike will not be enough, but more than two is permissible. It is also a condition for the Tayammum to be valid that it is performed with the intention of making the performance of the obligatory prayer permissible. The intention is made while transferring the dust of the soil to the body part that will be wiped in Tayammum and wiping the first part of the face.

(Section 12)

It is not permissible for the one whose Ablution is nullified to:

- * Perform prayer
  - * Circumambulate الكعبة (the Ka^bah)
  - * Carry or touch the Book of God. However, the mumayyiz child who does not have Ablution is permitted to carry and touch the Book of God for

Section 12

The prohibitions upon the person who is in the state of minor ritual impurity, the جُنُب (junub)<sup>1</sup>, and the menstruating or postpartum-bleeding woman

It is not permissible for the one whose Ablution is nullified to do four things, the first prohibition is to perform prayer, whether an obligatory, optional, or funeral prayer. The second prohibition is to circumambulate الكعبة (the Ka^bah), whether obligatory or optional. The third and fourth prohibitions are to carry or touch the Book of God<sup>2</sup>. The same judgment applies to what has some of القرآن (the Qur'aan) written on it for the purpose of reading, not what has Qur'aan written in it for protection. Touching القرآن (the Qur'aan) means touching its papers, its cover bound to it, and its margins. However, the mumayyiz child whether male or female who does not have Ablution is permitted to carry and touch the Book of God for

1) A junub is a person who had sexual intercourse or emitted maniyy and has not yet performed the obligatory whole body wash (Ghusl).

2) The Book of God means القرآن (the Qur'aan).

the purpose of studying.

It is unlawful for the one who is junub to do any of the aforementioned actions. Additionally, it is unlawful for the junub to:

- * Recite القرآن (the Qur'aan)
- * Stay in a mosque

[It is unlawful] for the woman who is menstruating or has postpartum bleeding to do any of the aforementioned actions. Additionally, she may not:

- * Fast before the bleeding ceases

the purpose of studying and learning from it not for any other purpose such as carrying it from one person to another.

It is unlawful for the one who is junub to do any of the four aforementioned actions. Additionally it is unlawful for the junub to do two other actions, the first action is to recite القرآن (the Qur'aan) with the tongue in the manner that the recitation is audible to the reciter, even one letter with the intent to recite القرآن (the Qur'aan). The second prohibited action is to stay in a mosque or to go back and forth within the mosque, not merely passing through.

It is unlawful for the woman who is menstruating or has postpartum-bleeding to do any of the six aforementioned actions and additionally two other actions. The first is she may not fast before the bleeding ceases. However, it is permissible for her to fast after the bleeding ceases before performing (Ghusl). She is obligated to make up fasting the days she missed

- * Allow her husband or owner to enjoy the area which is between her navel and knees before she makes the obligatory whole body wash. Some scholars said that anything [in reference to this issue] other than sexual intercourse is not prohibited.

from رَمَضَانَ (Ramadan). Secondly she cannot allow her husband (or in the case of a slave woman; her owner) to enjoy the area which is between her navel and knees by lustfully looking at her or touching her without a barrier (i.e., skin to skin contact) before she makes the obligatory whole body wash even after the cessation of bleeding. However, some scholars said that anything in reference to this issue, i.e., enjoyment of what is between the woman's navel and knees other than sexual intercourse is not prohibited.

(Section 13)

Among the conditions of the [valid] prayer is: to be clear of najas filth on one's body, clothing, place of prayer, and what one is carrying, like a bottle in one's pocket.

If najas filth comes in contact with one's person, or what they are carrying, their prayer is invalidated unless they cast it off immediately, or this najas filth is exempted (like

Section 13

Purification from najas and the manner of removing it

Among the conditions of the valid prayer is to be clear of najas filth on one's body, even inside one's mouth and nose, clothing, place of prayer, i.e., what the body comes in contact with while praying, and what one is carrying like a bottle containing najas or a tissue contaminated with najas kept in one's pocket.

If najas filth comes in contact with one's person, i.e., their body or clothing or what they are carrying like a رداة (ridaa')<sup>1</sup> one puts over their shoulders, their prayer is invalidated whether the najas is dry or moist unless they cast it off immediately by shaking off the dry najas that had fallen on one's clothing or by immediately removing the ridaa' (contaminated with either the dry or moist najas filth), then one's prayer is not invalidated. This is also the case if the najas filth is exempted, like being stained the blood of one's wound).

1) The ridaa' is an unseamed garment similar to a shawl usually placed on the shoulders and head or just the shoulders.

It is an obligation to remove the non-exempted najas filth by removing its entity [and properties] by using purifying water.

النَّجَاسَةُ الْحُكْمِيَّةُ (The najaasah hukmiyyah) is removed by pouring water on it. The najaasah hukmiyyah is the najas filth which does not have a discernable color, taste, or odor [any longer].

النَّجَاسَةُ الْكَلْبِيَّةُ (The najaasah kalbiyyah) is removed by washing the najas filthy area with the blood of one's wound; in which case one's prayer is not invalidated either.

It is an obligation to remove the non-exempted najas filth for the validity of prayer. This is done by removing its entity, i.e., the entity of the najas and its properties (color, taste and odor) by using purifying water. Najas is not legitimately purged by other liquids because water is the agent of purification. The forgoing judgment is specific to النَّجَاسَةُ عَيْنِيَّةٌ (najaasah ^ayniyyah) [najas filth that has discernible characteristics.] As for النَّجَاسَةُ الْحُكْمِيَّةُ (the najaasah hukmiyyah), it is removed by merely pouring purifying water on it. The najaasah hukmiyyah is the najas filth which does not have a discernable color, taste, or odor any longer such as urine that has dried and no odor, taste, or color is detected.

النَّجَاسَةُ الْكَلْبِيَّةُ (The najaasah kalbiyyah) is a najas filth that pertains to a dog, pig, or a hybrid bred by both or one of them. This type of najaasah is removed by washing the najas filthy area seven times, one wash of which is mixed with purifying soil.

The washing which removes the physical presence of the najas filth is deemed one wash-even if there was a need for numerous washes.

It is a condition for the water to flow over [the area containing] najas filth if the water [used for purification] is a small amount.

seven times, one wash of which is mixed with purifying soil until the water becomes murky and the soil reaches every part of the contaminated area by the agency of the water it was mixed in. The washing which removes the physical presence of the najas filth is deemed one wash, even if there was a need for numerous washes. This means that the washing that is needed to remove the entity of the najaasah kalbiyyah along with its characteristics of taste, color, and odor whether this is accomplished by one or several washes is considered one wash, hence six more washes are needed.

It is a condition in order to remove impurities of any sort for the water to flow over the area containing najas filth not to submerge it in the water if the water used for purification is a small amount, i.e., less than فُلَّتَان (two qullahs). The najaasah must not be submerged in a small amount of water because if this happens the water becomes impure on contact. This is different if the najaasah is submerged in a large amount of water in which case there is no such condition, because the water does not become impure through contact with the impurity unless it is altered.

(Section 14)

Among the conditions of the [valid] prayer are:

- * To direct oneself towards القبلة (the Qiblah)
  - * The setting in of the prayer time
  - * To be Muslim
  - * At-Tamyeez, i.e.,

Section 14

Clarifying additional conditions of prayer

Among the conditions of the valid prayer are:

1. To direct oneself towards القبلة (the Qiblah), i.e., the structure of الكعبة (the Ka^bah) or the space extending from (the Ka^bah) in length: upward to the seventh sky and downward to the seventh earth. This is done by directing the chest towards it when standing or sitting and directing most of the body towards it in رُكُوع (rukoo^) and سُجُود (sujood).

2. Knowledge of the setting in of the prayer time either by absolute certainty (by means of visual observation) or by conviction (by means of credible deduction). Such as the case of a person who has a وِرْد (wird) which they usually perform and know that it will not be finished until after the onset of the prayer time.

3. For one to be Muslim. Hence, prayer is not valid if performed by a non-Muslim.

4. At-Tamyeez, i.e., the capacity to reason and discern. The young child who did not attain these faculties is not mumayyiz for a child to reach a stage at which they understand when addressed and are able to answer

- * To deem the prayer an obligation when it is obligatory]
- * For one not to deem any of the prayer integrals recommended
- * To cover-with what conceals the color of the skin-the entire body of a free woman except her face and hands;

and prayer is not valid if performed by a non-mumayyiz. For a child to be considered mumayyiz, they must reach a stage at which they understand when addressed and are able to answer.

5. To deem the prayer an obligation when it is obligatory, i.e., for the individual praying an obligatory prayer to know that it is obligatory. Therefore, if one were to deem it a supererogatory prayer, their prayer would not be valid.

6. For one not to deem any of the prayer integrals that the shaafi'iyy scholars agreed to classify as obligations, as recommended such as reciting الفاتحة (al-Faatiḥah) or رُكُوع (rukooʿ).

7. To cover العَوْرَة (the ʿawrah) even if one were alone or in the dark -with what conceals the color of the skin- provided that one cannot see the skin color through the cover in a normal distance where people sit to converse; therefore, it is not sufficient if one is able to distinguish between dark and fair skin through a cover in such a setting. The cover must conceal the entire body of a free woman except her face and hands because

neither are part of العَوْرَة (the ^awrah). And it is a condition to cover the area between the navel and the knees of a male [free or not] and a female slave because العَوْرَة (the ^awrah) of both is the area between the navel and the knees. The concealment needs to be from all sides of العَوْرَة (the ^awrah) except from underneath, i.e., العَوْرَة (the ^awrah) from underneath does not need to be covered.

[Nullifiers of the Prayer]

(Section 15)

The prayer is nullified by:

- * Speaking inasmuch as two letters or a single letter which carries a meaning, unless the person forgets and the statements [uttered] are few
- * Performing many moves, which according to some scholars are [continuous] movements lasting for the duration of one cycle رَكْعَةً (rak^ah). Another saying is that three

---

Section 15

Clarifying the nullifiers of prayer

The prayer is nullified by uttering any expression within the broad scope of human speech excluding dhikr, supplication, and reciting the Book of God. This nullifies the prayer if a person does so voluntarily, remembering that one is praying and knowing that doing so is prohibited. The prayer is nullified by speaking inasmuch as two letters whether they carry a meaning or not, or by uttering a single letter which carries a meaning, unless the person forgets that they are praying and the statements uttered are few such as six phrases by customary standards or less, in which case their prayer is not nullified. The second nullifier is performing many moves. The shaafi^iyy scholars differed on what is defined as many moves; which according to some scholars many moves are continuous movements lasting for the duration of one cycle رَكْعَةً (rak^ah). Another saying is that three consecutive motions nullify the prayer. However, the first saying is supported by stronger evidence

- * Performing a single excessive movement
- * Adding an extra physical integral
- * Performing a move with the purpose of playing
- * Eating or drinking except if one forgets and it is little
- * Intending to interrupt the prayer
- * Deciding to interrupt one's prayer if such and such a

consecutive motions nullify the prayer even if performed with different limbs of the body, such as walking three consecutive steps. The latter is the famous ruling in the school of as-Shaafi'iyy. There are other legal opinions as well. The Sheikh, may Allaah have mercy upon him, said: However, the first saying, i.e., performing many moves is what would add up to the duration of one رُكُوعَة (rak'ah), is supported by stronger evidence because it conforms with the apparent meaning of some Hadeeths. The third nullifier is performing a single excessive movement such as jumping. The fourth nullifier is adding an extra physical integral intentionally such as performing رُكُوعَان (two rukoo's) in one رُكُوعَة (rak'ah) in an obligatory prayer. The fifth nullifier is performing a move with the purpose of playing even if it were not excessive. The sixth nullifier is eating or drinking, i.e., ingesting food or drink into the body cavities except if one forgets that one is praying and it, i.e., what one ate or drank is little. The seventh nullifier is intending to interrupt the prayer immediately or later. The eighth nullifier is deciding to interrupt one's prayer if such and such a thing occurs

- * Hesitating about interrupting the prayer
  - * To complete an integral while the doubt persists whether or not one has established the intention to perform the prayer in the opening statement “Allaahu Akbar”, or if the duration of that doubt is long thing occurs, for example intending to interrupt one's prayer upon the arrival of Zayd, consequently one's prayer is immediately nullified. Also, the prayer is immediately nullified by merely hesitating about interrupting the prayer, unlike an involuntary thought which does not result in hesitation or a decision to interrupt the prayer. This does not affect the prayer's validity. Lastly, to complete an integral of the prayer while the doubt persists, whether or not one has established the intention to perform the prayer in the opening statement “Allaahu Akbar” such as moving from a physical integral to another physical integral while still in doubt of the said intention, or if the duration of that doubt is long regardless of whether or not one moved to another physical integral. This also nullifies the prayer.

[Conditions for earning reward for one's Prayer]

(Section 16)

In addition to what has been previously mentioned [of the conditions], in order for the prayer to merit reward from Allaah it is a condition:

- * To perform the prayer exclusively for the sake of Allaah
  - * For one's food, clothing, and place of prayer to be permissible
  - * For one to be in awe of Allaah during the prayer, even if it is for a moment. Hence, if this does not occur, one's prayer is valid, however without reward

Section 16

Clarifying the conditions for the rewardableness of prayer

In addition to what has been previously mentioned of the conditions, in order for the prayer to merit reward from Allaah, i.e., for the individual praying to be granted reward from Allaah, it is a condition to perform the prayer exclusively for the sake of Allaah without seeking the praise of people for praying or else one would be committing the sin of insincerity (riyaa). It is also a condition for one's food which is in one's abdomen while praying, clothing which is worn while praying, and place of prayer to be permissible. Lastly, it is a condition for one to be in awe of Allaah during the prayer even if it is for a moment. Hence, if this does not occur throughout the entirety of the prayer one's prayer is valid, however without reward. The aforementioned feeling of awe is to feel fearful reverence and glorification of Allaah.

[Integrals of Prayer]

(Section 17)

The integrals of prayer are seventeen.

The first [integral] is the intention in the heart to perform the prayer, to specify the cause or time of prayer, and to specify it being obligatory when it is so.

Section 17

Clarifying the integrals of prayer

The integrals of prayer are seventeen. The first integral is the intention in the heart to perform the prayer. Not uttering the intention with the tongue does not affect the validity of the prayer as long as the intention was established in the heart. The intention must coincide with the opening statement “Allaahu Akbar”. It is mandatory to specify in one’s intention the cause of prayer if the intended prayer is prayed on grounds of a particular cause such as the خُسُوف (Khusoof) Eclipse Prayer or اِسْتِسْقَاء (Istisqaa) Drought Prayer, or else one must specify the time of prayer if the intended prayer is prayed on grounds of a particular time such as the عَصْر (^Asr) and ضُحَى (Duhaa) Prayers.<sup>1</sup> And it is a requirement to specify it being obligatory when it is so. Hence, on account of what was mentioned before the valid intention is for example “I now pray the obligatory ^Asr Prayer” and the like.

1) Supererogatory Midmorning Prayer.

The second integral is to say “Allaahu Akbar” loud enough to hear oneself as is required in every verbal integral.

The third [integral] is to stand for the obligatory prayer when one is able.

The second integral is to say “Allaahu Akbar” loud enough to hear oneself, as is required in every verbal integral such as الْفَاتِحَةُ (al-Faatiḥah) and the last تَشَهُّد (Tashahhud). When saying Allaahu Akbar one must not elongate the first letter of the name of Allaah: the hamzah ا, nor the letter ba ب of Akbar, also one must not add the letter waaw و before the word Allaah or between the word Allaah and the word Akbar. It is also prohibited to replace the letter hamzah in the word Akbar with the letter waaw. One’s prayer is legally not considered to have begun if the opening “Allaahu Akbar” is misrecited in such a manner. The third integral is to stand for the obligatory prayer, even if the prayer were a nadhr (Vowed Prayer) or a Janazah (Funeral Prayer) when one is able to stand. This is done by standing on one’s feet with one’s spine upright. Those who are unable to stand, pray while sitting down; if unable to sit, then they pray while lying down on their sides; and if unable to do so, they pray while lying on their backs.

The fourth integral is to recite the Soorah of الْفَاتِحَةُ (al-Faatiḥah) whether one is the imaam, مَأْمُوم (ma’moom)<sup>1</sup>, or

1) The person following the imaam in prayer.

including the Basmalah بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ and doubling the letters which must be doubled; it is also mandatory to maintain the succession and order of the Soorah, to articulate its letters properly, and to avoid the error which breaches the meaning such as applying [the ou vowel] الضَّمَّة to the [letter] taa' ت of [the word] أَنْعَمْتَ (an^amta). The error that does not breach the meaning is sinful; however, it does not invalidate the prayer.

praying alone. All of the verses of الفاتحة (al-Faatiḥah) must be recited including the Basmalah بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَنِ الرَّحِيمِ because it is the first verse of الفَاتِحَة (al-Faatiḥah); and doubling the letters which must be doubled, there are fourteen doubled letters. It is also mandatory to maintain the succession and order of the *Soorah, i.e., not to pause between the words of the Faatiḥah longer than one usually pauses to take a breath while speaking. It is also mandatory to articulate its letters properly. The letter saad ص deserves more attention owing to the abundant number of people who do not articulate it from its proper point of articulation, rather they pronounce it between the letter seen س and the letter saad ص, i.e., not a pure seen nor a pure saad. And the person is required to avoid the error while reciting الفَاتِحَة (al-Faatiḥah) which breaches the meaning of the verse, either by giving it a new and different meaning such as applying the ou or e vowels الضَّمَّة or (الكَسْرَة) to the letter taa' ت of the word أَنْعَمْتَ (an^amta) or by making it meaningless such as saying al-ladheena with the letter zaay ز instead of the letter dhaal ذ. The error that does not breach the meaning is sinful, however it does not invalidate the prayer such as applying the (e vowel) الكَسْرَة to the letter noon ن of the word نَعْبُدُ (na^budu).

The fifth [integral] is الرُّكُوعُ (ar-rukoo^), i.e., to bow until one's palms could reach one's knees.

The sixth [integral] is الطَّمَأْنِينَةُ (at-tuma'neenah) after bowing for the duration of saying سُبْحَانَ اللَّهِ (Subhaanallaah), i.e., for each bone to settle in its place simultaneously.

The seventh [integral] is الاعتِدَالُ (al-'i^tidaal) to straighten up after rukoo^.

The eighth [integral] is الطَّمَأْنِينَةُ (at-tuma'neenah) in اعتِدَالٍ ('i^tidaal).

The ninth [integral] is to prostrate السُّجُودُ (sujood) twice by pressing all or part of one's bare forehead onto one's place of prayer

The fifth integral is الرُّكُوعُ (ar-rukoo^), i.e., to bow without bending the knees excessively, to the point until one's palms could reach one's knees if they were to put their palms on their knees, provided that their body parts are proportionate and free of deformity. Therefore, it is not sufficient if one bows down until one's fingers only could touch the knees. The sixth integral is الطَّمَأْنِينَةُ (at-tuma'neenah) after bowing for the duration of saying سُبْحَانَ اللَّهِ (Subhaanallaah) i.e. for each bone to settle in its place simultaneously. The seventh integral is الاعتِدَالُ (al-'i^tidaal), which is to return to the position as one was before رُكُوعٍ (rukoo^). Hence, if one was standing before رُكُوعٍ (rukoo^), then it is required to straighten up after رُكُوعٍ (rukoo^) and so forth. The eighth integral is الطَّمَأْنِينَةُ (at-tuma'neenah) in اعتِدَالٍ ('i^tidaal). The ninth integral is to prostrate السُّجُودُ (sujood) twice in each رَكْعَةٍ (rak^ah) by pressing all or part of one's bare forehead onto one's place of prayer, i.e., the place on which one prostrates.

while keeping the lower half of one's body higher than the upper half تَنْكِيس (tankees) along with placing part of one's knees, part of the inside of one's hands, and the bottom part of one's toes on the place of prayer. Some non-shaafi'iyy scholars said that tankees is not a condition. Therefore, according to this saying if one's head was higher than their buttocks while making sujood, their prayer would still be valid.

The tenth [integral] is الطُّمَأْنِينَةُ (at-tuma'neenah) in prostration.

Pressing the forehead on the place of prostration is carried out in such a manner that if there were cotton underneath the forehead, the cotton would be compressed and the downward pressure of the forehead would be felt on one's hand (if it were underneath the cotton). It is also a requirement that sujood is performed while keeping the lower half of one's body higher than the upper half تَنْكِيس (tankees), along with placing even a small part of one's knees, part of the inside of one's hands and the bottom part of one's toes on the place of prayer. Unlike the forehead these parts are not required to be uncovered. Some non-shaafi'iyy scholars, namely the hanbali scholars, said that tankees is not a condition. Therefore, according to this saying if one's head was higher than their buttocks while making sujood, their prayer would still be valid. The tenth integral is الطُّمَأْنِينَةُ (at-tuma'neenah) in prostration. The eleventh integral is to sit between the two prostrations.

The twelfth [integral] is الطُّمَأْنِينَةُ (at-tuma'neenah) in this sitting.

The thirteenth [integral] is to sit for [recitation of] the last Tashahhud and what follows it, namely الصَّلَاةُ عَلَى النَّبِيِّ (as-Salaatu ^alan-Nabiyy) and the closing salaam.

The fourteenth [integral] is the last Tashahhud, wherein one says:

التَّحِيَّاتُ الْمُبَارَكَاتُ الصَّلَوَاتُ الطَّيِّبَاتُ لِلَّهِ السَّلَامُ عَلَيْكَ أَيُّهَا النَّبِيُّ وَرَحْمَةُ اللَّهِ
وَبَرَكَاتُهُ السَّلَامُ عَلَيْنَا وَعَلَى عِبَادِ اللَّهِ الصَّالِحِينَ أَشْهَدُ أَنْ لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا اللَّهُ وَأَشْهَدُ أَنَّ مُحَمَّدًا رَسُولُ اللَّهِ

Or the minimum, which is:

The twelfth integral is الطُّمَأْنِينَةُ (at-tuma'neenah) in this sitting. The thirteenth integral is to sit for recitation of the last Tashahhud and what follows it, namely الصلاة على النبي (as-Salaatu ^alan-Nabiyy), and the closing salaam. The fourteenth integral is the last Tashahhud wherein one says:

التحيات المباركات الصلوات الطيبات لله، السلام عليك أيها النبي ورحمة الله
وبركاته السلام علينا وعلى عباد الله الصالحين أشهد أن لا إله إلا الله وأشهد

The above is the optimal version of the Tashahhud. Or else one must say the minimum version of the Tashahhud which is:

1) The proper pronunciation is to be taught by a teacher.

التَّحِيَّاتُ لِلَّهِ سَلَامٌ عَلَيْكَ أَيُّهَا النَّبِيُّ وَرَحْمَةُ اللَّهِ وَبَرَكَاتُهُ سَلَامٌ عَلَيْنَا وَعَلَى عِبَادِ اللَّهِ الصَّالِحِينَ أَشْهَدُ أَنْ لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا اللَّهُ وَأَنَّ مُحَمَّدًا رَسُولُ اللَّهِ

The fifteenth [integral] is الصَّلَاةُ عَلَى النَّبِيِّ (as-Salaatu ^alan-Nabiyy). The minimum is to say:

اللَّهُمَّ صَلِّ عَلَى مُحَمَّدٍ (Allaahumma salli ^alaa Muḥammad)

The sixteenth [integral] is [to say] the salaam, the minimum of which is :

السَّلَامُ عَلَيْكُمْ (as-Salaamu ^alaykum)

The seventeenth [integral] is to observe the aforementioned order; therefore, intentionally neglecting it

التَّحِيَّاتُ لِلَّهِ سَلَامٌ عَلَيْكَ أَيُّهَا النَّبِيُّ وَرَحْمَةُ اللَّهِ وَبَرَكَاتُهُ سَلَامٌ عَلَيْنَا وَعَلَى عِبَادِ اللَّهِ الصَّالِحِينَ أَشْهَدُ أَنْ لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا اللَّهُ وَأَنَّ مُحَمَّدًا رَسُولُ اللَّهِ<sup>1</sup>.

The fifteenth integral is الصَّلَاةُ عَلَى النَّبِيِّ (as-Salaatu ^alan-Nabiyy). The minimum is to say اللَّهُمَّ صَلِّ عَلَى مُحَمَّدٍ (Allaahumma salli ^alaa Muḥammad) or a similar phrase like صَلِّ عَلَى مُحَمَّدٍ (sallallaahu ^ala Muḥammad). The sixteenth integral is the first of the two salaams. The minimum of which is السَّلَامُ (as-Salaamu ^alaykum). The person is required to say the salaam with the first word being definite (i.e., as-Salaamu) and the second word with the attached plural pronoun (i.e., ^alaykum). Also, it is a condition to observe succession without lengthy interruption between the two words. The seventeenth integral is to observe the aforementioned order of the integrals of prayer as previously enumerated. Therefore intentionally neglecting it

- such as intentionally prostrating before bowing - invalidates the prayer. If one forgets [an integral], they must return to it, unless they are performing the same type of integral or what comes after it - [in this case], they complete the cycle, and what was performed in between is disregarded. For instance, if one does not remember leaving out bowing الرُّكُوع (ar-rukoo^ ) until after one bows in the subsequent cycle or in the sujood after that subsequent bowing, then what was performed in between is nullified.

by prematurely bringing forward a verbal integral (namely the closing salaam) or a physical integral -such as intentionally prostrating before bowing- invalidates the prayer owing to one's disregard of the prayer's sanctity. However, if one forgets to perform an integral, they must return to it, i.e., the forgotten integral, and then continue on with their prayer. Unless they do not remember leaving out that omitted integral until they are performing the same type of integral or what comes after it - in this case, they complete the cycle. This is because the similar integral in the current cycle took the place of the forgotten integral in the previous cycle. Therefore, the incomplete رَكْعَة (rak^ah) which was missing an integral, is now considered complete. And what was performed in between the omitted integral and its similar in the following رَكْعَة (rak^ah) is disregarded. For instance, if one does not remember leaving out bowing الرُّكُوع (ar-rukoo^ ) until after one bows in the subsequent cycle or in the sujood after that subsequent bowing, then their previously incomplete رَكْعَة (rak^ah) is now considered complete upon performing the aforementioned bow, thus what was performed in between is nullified.

[Congregational Prayer]

(Section 18)

Praying [the five prayers] in congregation is a communal obligation فَرَضُ كِفَايَةِ (Fardu Kifaayah) upon the free pubescent resident males who are unexcused;

Section 18

Clarifying the circumstances necessitating the congregational and جُمُعَةٍ (Jumu'ah) prayers, the conditions of the validity of the (Jumu'ah) prayer, and clarifying the integrals and conditions of the two speeches

Praying the five prayers in congregation is a communal obligation فَرَضُ كِفَايَةِ (Fardu Kifaayah) upon the free, sane, pubescent, resident males who are unexcused. Hence, it is not an obligation upon the impubescent, women, slaves, travelers, and others who have an Islamically acceptable excuse that excludes them from being among those who are obligated to perform the five prayers in congregation; such as when it is raining heavily to the point that it soaks the clothing, or having fear of an enemy when going to the place where the congregational prayer is held. This communal obligation is satisfied by performing the five prayers in a way that the rite of the prayer be public<sup>1</sup>.

1) This is fulfilled if the five ritual prayers are performed in congregation in public places that do not cause the congregators unease and timidity to enter and join.

however, it is a personal obligation فَرَضُ عَيْنٍ (Fardu ^Ayn) in صَلَاةُ الْجُمُعَةِ (the Jumu^ah Prayer) upon them if they were forty accountable inhabitants who live in buildings not in tents, because it is not an obligation on tent dwellers. الْجُمُعَةُ (The Jumu^ah) Prayer is also obligatory upon those who intend to stay in the place of جُمُعَةٍ (Jumu^ah) Prayer for four complete days excluding the day of entry and the day of exit. It is also obligatory upon those who can hear the call of a loud-voiced

However, it is a personal obligation فَرَضُ عَيْنٍ (Fardu ^Ayn) in صَلَاةُ الْجُمُعَةِ (the Jumu^ah Prayer) upon them, meaning those who were previously mentioned: the free, sane, pubescent, resident males who are unexcused, if they were forty accountable inhabitants including the imaam, who live in buildings, whether these buildings were made out of wood, stones, or clay, not in tents, because it is not an obligation on tent dwellers, i.e., it is not an obligation upon those forty inhabitants if they were inhabitants of tents.

الْجُمُعَةُ (The Jumu^ah) Prayer is also obligatory upon those who were initially traveling, then intended to stay in the place of جُمُعَةٍ (Jumu^ah) Prayer for four complete days or more excluding the day of entry and the day of exit, because one's travel is interrupted by that intention. It is also personally obligatory upon those who live outside the settlement<sup>1</sup> of الْجُمُعَةُ (the Jumu^ah) Prayer even if they lived in tents provided that they can hear the call to prayer (Adhaan) of a loud-voiced

1) Settlement means an area comprising of dwellings and buildings regardless whether they were a small number or large number. Settlements include villages, towns, cities etc.

person standing at the closest edge of the settlement to them.

Conditions for [a valid] جُمُعَة (Jumu^ah) Prayer are:

- * [To be performed] within the Early Afternoon Prayer time الظُّهْر (adh-Dhuhr)
- * For the forty inhabitants to hear the two speeches during the prescribed time and before الْجُمُعَة (the Jumu^ah) Prayer
- * To be prayed in congregation by the aforementioned forty inhabitants

person standing at the closest edge of the settlement to them wherein the Friday Prayer is performed. Hence, if the call to prayer isn't audible to the outlying residents because it is being recited from the middle of the settlement, then this does not exempt them from being required to attend. It is therefore an obligation to attend, considering the outlying resident heard the Adhaan with normal hearing and he recognized what he heard as the call to prayer even if it was not coherent. Also, this is with the estimation that the call to prayer was recited on a windless day from a leveled and even surface.

Conditions for a valid جُمُعَة (Jumu^ah) Prayer are four. It is a condition for it to be performed within the Early Afternoon Prayer time الظُّهْر (adh-Dhuhr). Hence, if ظُهِر (Dhuhr) time expires, it must be made up as ظُهِر (Dhuhr). The second condition is for the forty inhabitants to hear the integrals of the two speeches during the prescribed time of ظُهِر (Dhuhr) and before الْجُمُعَة (the Jumu^ah) Prayer. The third condition is for الْجُمُعَة (the Jumu^ah) Prayer to be prayed in congregation by the aforementioned forty inhabitants. Hence, جُمُعَة (Jumu^ah) Prayer is not valid if

- * For there not to be another جُمُعَة (Jumu^ah) Prayer simultaneous with it in the same settlement. If the opening statement “Allaahu Akbar” of one جُمُعَة (Jumu^ah) Prayer preceded that of another, then the former would be valid and the latter would be invalid. This is the case if the people were able to congregate in one place. However, if it is hard for them to congregate in one place, then both the former and the latter would be valid.

Integrals of the Two Speeches are:

- * Praising Allaah حَمْدُ اللَّهِ, الصَّلَاةُ عَلَى النَّبِيِّ (as-Salaatu ^alan-Nabiyy), prayed individually. Lastly, it is a condition for there not to be another جُمُعَة (Jumu^ah) Prayer prior to it or simultaneous with it in the same settlement. If the opening statement “Allaahu Akbar” of one جُمُعَة (Jumu^ah) Prayer preceded that of another then the former would be valid, provided its precedence is known, and the latter would be invalid. The determining factor for precedence or simultaneity is by utterance of the letter raa’ ر of the prayer’s opening statement “Allaahu Akbar”. Some shaafi^iyy scholars said that this is the case if the people were able to congregate in one place but neglected to do so. However, if it is hard for them to congregate in one place, then it is permissible to hold as many جُمُعَة (Jumu^ah) Prayers as are needed and then both the former and the latter would be valid.

The integrals of the Two Speeches are five. The first three integrals are Praising Allaah حَمْدُ اللَّهِ by using the particular phrases الحمد لله (al-hamdu-lillaah) or الحمد لله (lillaahil-hamd), or what is similar. الصلاة على النبي (as-Salaatu ^alan-Nabiyy) by and commanding the attendants to be God-fearing in both speeches

- * [Reciting] a verse that has a sought meaning in either of the two speeches
- * Supplicating Allaah for the believers in the second speech

Conditions for [the validity of] the Two Speeches are:

- * Purification from both states of ritual impurity and from najas filth on the body, place, and what is carried [by the speaker]

saying صَلَّى اللّٰهُ عَلَى مُحَمَّدٍ (sallallaahu ^alaa Muḥammad), or اللّٰهُمَّ صَلِّ عَلَى مُحَمَّدٍ (Allaahumma ṣalli ^alaa Muḥammad), or what is similar. And commanding the attendants to be God-fearing by urging the people to be obedient and to avoid sinning or either of the two. Saying al-ḥamdu lillaah, as-Ṣaalatu ^alan-Nabiyy, and enjoining God-fearingness are mandatory in both speeches. The fourth integral is reciting a verse from القرآن (the Qur'aan) that has a sought meaning in either of the two speeches; therefore, it is not sufficient to recite what is similar to aayah 21 of سورة المائدة (Soorat al-Muddaththir) ﴿ثُمَّ نَظَرَ﴾. The fifth integral is supplicating Allaah for the believers in the second speech, such as saying اللّٰهُمَّ اغْفِرْ لِلْمُؤْمِنِينَ (Allaahumma-ghfir lil-mu'mineen) which means: O Allaah forgive the believers.

Conditions for the validity of the two speeches, in addition to what was mentioned before, are seven. The first condition is purification from both states of ritual impurity, i.e., the minor and major ritual impurities along with purification from non-exempted najas filth on the body, place, and what is carried by the speaker: clothes and the like. The second condition is

- * To cover the unlawful nakedness عَوْرَة (^awrah)
  - * To stand [while giving the two speeches]
  - * To sit between the two speeches
  - * To observe the succession without lengthy interruption between the integrals of the two speeches as well as between the two speeches and the prayer
  - * To say [the integrals of] the two speeches in Arabic

to cover the unlawful nakedness عورة (^awrah<sup>1</sup>), i.e., the area between the navel and the knees, as mentioned before. The third condition is to stand while giving the two speeches if able. Condition number four is to sit between the two speeches for at least the duration of الطُّمَأْنِينَة (at-tuma'neenah). The fifth and sixth conditions are to observe the succession without what is considered normally a lengthy interruption (by that which is not related to the speeches) between the integrals of the two speeches as well as between the two speeches and the prayer. And the seventh condition is to say the integrals of the two speeches in Arabic.

1) العورة (The ^awrah) is the area of one's body that is shameful to expose.

(Section 19)

It is an obligation on the follower in the prayer whether جُمُعَة (Jumu`ah) or otherwise:

- * Not to precede the imaam in the standing position or the opening [statement] “Allaahu Akbar”. In fact, simultaneity with the imaam in the opening [statement] “Allaahu Akbar” invalidates the [follower’s] prayer; however, [simultaneity with the imaam] in other than the opening [statement] “Allaahu Akbar” is disliked with

Section 19

The conditions of following the imaam in prayer

It is an obligation on the follower in the prayer whether جُمُعَة (Jumu`ah) or otherwise to observe seven matters. The first matter is for the follower not to precede the imaam in the standing position, i.e., the place where one is standing. However if someone stands abreast of the imaam their prayer is not nullified although it is disliked to do so. It is also a requirement for the follower to say the opening statement “Allaahu Akbar” after the imaam. Therefore the follower must withhold from saying the opening “Allaahu Akbar” until after the imaam completes his opening “Allaahu Akbar.” In fact, simultaneity with the imaam in the opening statement, “Allaahu Akbar”, invalidates the follower’s prayer, i.e., the follower’s prayer is not considered to have started. However, simultaneity with the imaam in other than the opening statement, “Allaahu Akbar” (i.e., in the physical integrals) is disliked and the congregational merit of the prayer is lost with the exception of saying ءامين ('Ameen). Although this does not invalidate the follower's prayer, they are prohibited from outpacing the Imaam by one physical integral. One's prayer is invalidated if they outpace or lag behind the imaam by two consecutive long physical integrals, or one long and one short physical integral without a valid excuse. Lagging [behind the imaam] by more than three long [physical] integrals, invalidates the follower's prayer even if they have an excuse.

the exception of saying ءامين ('aameen)<sup>1</sup> after reciting الفاتحة (al-Faatihah); it is sunnah for the follower to say 'aameen simultaneously with the imaam. Although this does not invalidate the follower's prayer, they are prohibited from outpacing the imaam by one complete physical integral, such as if the follower bowed then stood upright before the imaam bowed. One's prayer is invalidated if they outpace or lag behind the imaam by two consecutive long physical integrals or one long and one short physical integral without a valid excuse. An example of outpacing the imaam is if the follower bowed, stood upright then began descending to prostration while the imaam is still standing. And an example of lagging behind the imaam is if the imaam ascended from bowing, stood upright, and began descending to prostration while the follower is still standing. In both scenarios the follower's prayer is nullified. Lagging behind the imaam by more than three long physical integrals like bowing and the two prostrations, invalidates the follower's prayer even if they have an excuse, such as the follower's slow

1) To say "aameen" after completing the recitation of الفاتحة (al-Faatihah) is recommended.

Hence, if the follower stays behind to finish reciting الفَاتِحَة (al-Faatiḥah) after the imaam completes bowing and the two prostrations and sits for the Tashahhud or stands up [for the following cycle], then the follower must be in unison with the imaam and perform one cycle after the closing salaam of the imaam. If the follower completes their recitation of الفَاتِحَة (al-Faatiḥah) before this [i.e., before the imaam precedes them by more than three long physical integrals], they continue in the order of their own prayer

* The follower must know the movements of their imaam

recitation of the Faatiḥah. Hence, if the follower stays behind to finish reciting الفَاتِحَة (al-Faatiḥah) after the imaam completes bowing and the two prostrations and sits for the Tashahhud or stands up for the following cycle, then the follower must leave out the remainder of their current cycle to be in unison with the imaam and must perform one cycle after the closing salaam of the imaam because it was left out. If the follower does not follow the imaam, rather they continue with the remainder of the cycle, then their prayer is nullified. However, if the follower completes their recitation of الفَاتِحَة (al-Faatiḥah) before this (i.e., before the imaam precedes them by more than three long physical integrals and commences with a fourth integral) then they continue in the order of their own prayer until they catch up with the imaam.

The second matter is that the follower must know the movements of their imaam by either seeing the imaam, seeing some of the followers who see the imaam, hearing the imaam's voice or the voice of the conveyer. The third matter is

- * The follower must be with their imaam in a mosque, or else within 300 cubits. [However,] there must not be any barrier between the follower and the imaam that prevents them from reaching the *imaam
- * The prayer format of both [the follower and the imaam] must agree. Hence, it is invalid for the performer of the daily obligatory prayer that the follower must be with their imaam in a mosque even if the distance between the two exceeds three hundred cubits, or else, if the follower and the imaam were not praying in a mosque, then the follower must be within approximately 300 cubits of the imaam. However, if there were successive rows of followers, it is a condition that the distance between the follower and the next row not to exceed 300 cubits even if the distance between the follower and the imaam was several فَرْسَخ (farsakhs)<sup>1</sup>. The fourth matter is that there must not be any barrier between the follower and the imaam that prevents them from reaching the *imaam such as a wall or a closed [nonpushable] door, nor a barrier which prevents the follower from seeing the imaam, such as a closed [pushable] door. The said fourth condition must be observed if prayed outside of the mosque. The fifth matter is that the prayer format of both the follower and that of the imaam must agree in their outward movements, even if they differ in their intention and number of cycles. Hence, it is invalid for the performer of the daily obligatory prayer, such as the obligatory

---

1) A farsakh is a unit of distance commonly used in the past equivalent to three Islamic miles. An Islamic mile is the distance of 4000 steps.

to follow the performer of the Funeral Prayer

- * Both, the imaam and the follower must not disagree enormously with each other in a recommended act whether by doing it or leaving it out like sitting for the first Tashahhud.
- * The follower must intend to follow the imaam while saying the opening [statement] “Allaahu Akbar” in the Jumu^ah Prayer. In other prayers, this intention ظُهر (Dhuhr), to follow the performer of the Funeral Prayer because the two prayers differ in format. The sixth matter is that both the imaam and the follower must not disagree enormously with each other in a recommended act whether by doing it or leaving it out like sitting for the first Tashahhud. So if the imaam omits it and the follower does it, then the follower’s prayer is invalidated. The same applies to the sujood performed for forgetting some parts of the prayer, i.e., if either the imaam or the follower does it and the other leaves it out. However, disagreeing with one’s imaam in a recommended act which does not constitute an enormous disagreement, such as جِلْسَةُ الْاِسْتِرَاحَةِ (jilsatul-istiraahah)<sup>1</sup> does not invalidate the follower’s prayer. The seventh matter is that the follower must intend to follow the imaam or to pray in congregation while saying the opening statement “Allaahu Akbar” in the Jumu^ah Prayer, the repeated prayer, the prayer combined because of rain, and the prayer vowed to be performed in congregation. In other prayers, this intention is allowed to occur after the opening “Allaahu Akbar”,

1) A brief sitting after the second prostration before standing up.

must occur before following the imaam [in his moves] after a long wait [for the imaam to move]. It is an obligation upon the imaam to have the intention that he is leading the prayer in الجمعة (the Jumu^ah) Prayer and the repeated prayer الصلاة المعادة (al-mu^aadah). However, this is recommended in other prayers. The repeated prayer is the prayer which one prays again.

although it must occur before following the imaam in his moves after a long wait for the imaam to move. Hence, if the follower proceeded in praying behind an imaam after waiting his movements at length, while neglecting the intention to follow him, then the follower's prayer is nullified. However, if the follower awaits the imaam but does not follow him, follows him coincidentally without the intent to follow him, or follows the imaam intentionally without the lapse of a long wait, then the follower's prayer is not invalidated.

It is an obligation upon the imaam to have the intention that he is leading the prayer in all the prayers which are required to be prayed in congregation such as الجمعة (the Jumu^ah) Prayer and the repeated prayer الصلاة المعادة (al-mu^aadah) while saying the opening “Allaahu Akbar.” However, this is recommended in other prayers, i.e., other than the Friday Prayer and the repeated prayer in order for the imaam to receive the reward of congregation. The repeated prayer is the prayer which one prays again in congregation after having prayed it alone or in congregation.

[The Funeral Prayer]

(Section 20)

Washing, shrouding, praying for, and burying the dead Muslim is a communal obligation if they were born alive.

It is an obligation to shroud and bury a ذِمِّي (dhimmiyy) [a kaafir who pays dues to the Muslims' ruler]; it is also an obligation to wash, shroud, and bury the stillborn. However, the Funeral Prayer is not performed for either.

Section 20

Clarifying the Islamic burial rituals and the Funeral Prayer

Washing, shrouding (after washing), praying for, and burying the dead Muslim is a communal obligation upon everyone who is aware of their death, even if they were a baby provided they were born alive (which is known by manifesting signs of life like crying or voluntary movements). It is not an obligation to perform the aforementioned rituals for the alien kaafir (non-dhimmiyy) or the apostate. It is an obligation to shroud and bury a ذِمِّي (dhimmiyy) if the people of his religion did not do that for him. However, he must not be buried in the Muslim cemeteries. The dhimmiyy is a kaafir who pays dues to the Muslims' ruler.

It is also an obligation to wash, shroud and bury the stillborn, i.e., the baby born without signs of life, provided that it has normal human anatomy, or else it is recommended to wrap it in a piece of cloth and bury it. However, the Funeral Prayer is not performed for neither the dhimmiyy nor the Muslim stillborn baby.

The person who dies in combat against the non-Muslims, (that being the cause of their death), is shrouded in their battle clothes. If these clothes are not enough, more material is added. They are to be buried but not washed or prayed for.

The minimum requirement for washing [the dead] is to remove the najas filth and to use purifying water to wash all of the dead person's skin and hair-even if it is thick- once.

The minimum requirement for the shroud is that which covers the entire body or three

The Muslim person who dies in combat against the non-Muslims even one non-Muslim - that being the cause of their death - is recommendably shrouded in their blood soiled battle clothes. If these clothes are not enough, more material is added to the battle clothes, up to three wraps. They are to be buried in a Muslim cemetery but not washed or prayed for because they are considered a battle martyr.

The minimum requirement for washing the dead is to remove the najas filth on the dead person's body if any, and to use pure and purifying water to wash all of the dead person's body: skin and hair -even if it is thick- once. However, washing them three times is better.

The minimum requirement for the shroud of the dead person is that which covers the entire body except the head of a مُحْرِم (muhrim)<sup>1</sup> male and the face of a muhrim female. Or three

1) A muhrim is a person performing حَجّ (Hajj) or عُمْرَة (^Umrah).

wraps if they [i.e., the deceased] left an inheritance that exceeds their debts and did not request to leave out being wrapped with three wraps.

The minimum requirements for the prayer are:

1. To intend to perform the prayer for the dead person and that it is obligatory, along with specifying it [as the Funeral Prayer]
2. To say “Allaahu Akbar” while standing if able
3. To recite الفَاتِيحَة (al-Faatihah)
4. To say “Allaahu Akbar”

wraps if they [i.e., the deceased] left an inheritance that exceeds their debts or if they had no debts to start with, and they also did not request to leave out being wrapped with three wraps. Hence, if the deceased Muslim requested not to be wrapped in three wraps, then it is an obligation to wrap them in one wrap which covers the entire body.

The minimum requirements for the Funeral Prayer are as follows: To intend to perform the prayer for the dead person and that it is obligatory along with specifying it as the Funeral Prayer. Then to say “Allaahu Akbar” while standing if able and to recite الفَاتِيحَة (al-Faatihah). Reciting الفَاتِيحَة (al-Faatihah) is mandatory, but reciting it after the first “Allaahu Akbar”, is not mandatory rather it is recommended. Hence, delaying it until after is valid. The rules for the validity of reciting الفَاتِيحَة (al-Faatihah) which apply in the five ritual prayers must be observed here as well. Then, it is an obligation to say “Allaahu Akbar” a

5. To say اللَّهُمَّ صَلِّ عَلَى مُحَمَّدٍ (Allaahumma salli ^alaa Muhammad)
6. To say “Allaahu Akbar”
7. To say اللَّهُمَّ اغْفِرْ لَهُ وَارْحَمْهُ (Allaahumma-ghfir lahu warhamhu) i.e. to supplicate Allaah to forgive and have mercy on that dead person
8. To say “Allaahu Akbar”
9. To conclude the prayer with the salaam

It is mandatory [in this prayer] to satisfy the conditions of prayer and to avoid its nullifiers

second time, and to say after the second “Allaahu Akbar” اللَّهُمَّ صَلِّ عَلَى مُحَمَّدٍ (Allaahumma salli ^alaa Muhammad). It is not permissible to bring forward saying Allaahumma salli ^alaa Muhammad before the second “Allaahu Akbar”, nor is it permissible to delay saying it till after the third “Allaahu Akbar”, rather it must be said following the second “Allaahu Akbar”. Then one is obligated to say “Allaahu Akbar” a third time, and to say اللَّهُمَّ اغْفِرْ لَهُ وَارْحَمْهُ (Allaahumma-ghfir lahu warhamhu) i.e., to supplicate Allaah for the welfare of the deceased Muslim’s afterlife such as to ask Allaah to forgive and have mercy on that dead person. The optimal supplication is what was transmitted from the Messenger of Allaah. Then, it is an obligation to say “Allaahu Akbar” a fourth time. And to conclude the prayer with the salaam. It is better, however, for one to go back to supplicating Allaah after the fourth “Allaahu Akbar”. It is mandatory in this prayer to satisfy the conditions of prayer like purification and directing the chest towards الْقِبْلَةَ (the Qiblah) and to avoid its nullifiers. Hence, whatever invalidates the ritual

The minimum requirement for the burial is an excavation that masks the odor of the dead person and protects their body from predatory animals.

It is recommended for the grave to be dug to the depth equal to the height of a person standing with his arms extended over his head and to widen it.

It is an obligation to direct the dead person towards القبلة (the Qiblah).

Burial in a mausoleum is unlawful.

prayers invalidates the Funeral Prayer.

The minimum requirement for the burial is an excavation that masks the odor of the dead person after backfilling the soil into the grave, and protects their body from predatory animals digging them out and eating them. It is recommended for the grave to be dug to the depth equal to the height of a person standing with his arms extended over his head, which is four and a half cubits deep, and to widen it. Having the grave at such dimensions is recommended because it is the most optimal. It is an obligation to direct the dead person's chest towards القبلة (the Qiblah), which is done by laying him on his side. Burial in a mausoleum is unlawful. The mausoleum is a structure where a dead person is admitted into before the previous dead person's body has vanished. Such a place does not prevent a dead person's smell from dispersing.

Zakaah

(Section 21)

Zakaah* is due [as an obligation] on:

- * Camels
  - * Cattle
  - * Sheep and goats
  - * Dates
  - * Raisins

Zakaah

After the author may Allaah have mercy upon him, completed his discourse about purification and prayer, he began discussing Zakaah in accordance with the convention of his predecessors. Zakaah is a word applicable to that which is paid on account of wealth or personhood in a specific way. The author may Allaah have mercy upon him, said:

Section 21

Clarifying the rules of Zakaah

Zakaah* is due as an obligation on specific types of wealth and on personhood. The author began by explaining the types of wealth which are subject to Zakaah. Hence, he stated that paying Zakaah is obligatory on livestock, namely camels whether dromedary or bactrian, cattle including water buffalos, sheep, and goats. It is also obligatory to pay Zakaah on fruits of palm trees and grapevines, namely dates and raisins. And on

- * Staple crops consumed during times of food sufficiency
  - * Gold
  - * Silver
  - * Golden and silver ore and treasure trove
  - * Trade articles
  - * for فِطْر (Fitr)

staple crops consumed during times of food sufficiency. Staple crops are that which people subsist on because they support and sustain the human body such as wheat, barley, and chickpeas contrary to that which is consumed for sustenance in times of food scarcity like fenugreek.

It is also obligatory to pay Zakaah on the two precious metals: gold and silver when coined. However, there is a difference in opinion regarding permissible jewelry made from gold and silver. Zakaah is also obligatory on golden and silver ore, and golden and silver treasure trove. An ore is gold or silver extracted from the place where Allaah created them. Paying Zakaah on golden and silver ore is obligatory after the ore has been cleansed from soil. Treasure trove is gold or silver which were buried during the Era of Ignorance.

Zakaah is also obligatory on trade articles, which are commodities a person conducts trade with to gain profit, as in the case of selling clothing, sugar, salt, horses, and what is similar.

As for the Zakaah paid for personhood, it is called Zakaah of فِطْر (Fitr) and will be discussed later.

The first quotum نَصَاب (niṣaab) for camels is five, thirty for cattle, and forty for sheep or goats.

Zakaah is not due prior to this [set quotum]. A lunar year must elapse [after having the quotum] and the livestock must have grazed in a public pasture, i.e., the livestock must have grazed by its owner or his proxy in a public pasture that has no owner. The livestock must not be working animals. Animals that are put to work, such as plowing animals, are not subject to Zakaah.

After the author, may Allaah have mercy upon him, mentioned the types of wealth on which paying Zakaah is obligatory, he began discussing the conditions under which Zakaah becomes due on each of them. He said: The first quotum نَصَاب (niṣaab) for camels, i.e., the first quantity of camels subject to Zakaah is five. And the first quotum is thirty head of cattle for having cattle and forty head of sheep/goats for having sheep or goats. Zakaah is not due prior to this set quotum, that is no Zakaah is due before the camels, cattle, or sheep and goats reach the aforementioned numbers.

In order for Zakaah to be obligatory a lunar year must elapse after having the quotum and the livestock must have grazed in a public pasture, i.e., the livestock must have grazed by its owner or his proxy in a public pasture that is communally shared among the people and that has no specific owner. Therefore, no Zakaah is due on animals whose feed is brought to them or that graze on their own. The livestock must not be working animals such as animals used for transporting water or plowing. Animals that are put to work, such as plowing animals, are not subject to Zakaah.

The due Zakaah on every five camels is a sheep/goat.

The due Zakaah on forty sheep or goats is a sheep/goat, (Either a one year old ewe, or a two-year-old female goat.)

The due Zakaah on every thirty cattle is a one-year-old bull.

If one's livestock exceeds this, then Zakaah is also due on this surplus and the person is obligated to learn the amount that Allaah made obligatory on them to pay on such [extra] animals.

The first quutum of dates, raisins and crops is five أَوْسُق (wasqs)

The due Zakaah on every five camels is a sheep/goat, meaning it is permissible to offer either a sheep that completed one year of age or lost its baby teeth, or a two year old female goat. The obligatory Zakaah for ten head of camels is two sheep/goats, for fifteen it is three sheep/goats, for twenty it is four and for twenty five it is a one-year-old female camel.

The due Zakaah on forty head of sheep or goats is a sheep/goat -either a one-year-old ewe or a two-year-old female goat.

The due Zakaah on every thirty head of cattle is a one-year-old bull and for every forty head of cattle a two-year-old female cow is due. Any amount of livestock between the set quutums is exempt, i.e., it is not subject to Zakaah. If one's livestock exceeds this, then Zakaah is also due on this surplus. The details of which are acquired from books larger than this summary. And the respective person is obligated to learn the amount that Allaah made obligatory on them to pay on such extra animals.

The first quutum of dates, raisins, and crops which people subsist on during times of food sufficiency, is five أَوْسُق (wasqs).

which is [the equivalent of] 300 صَاع (ṣaa^s) according to the صَاع (ṣaa^) of the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم, the standard unit of which is still existent in الحِجَاز (al-Hijaz.)

Crops of the same year are combined to determine if the quotum is reached. However, crops of a different kind are not combined e.g. barley with wheat.

No Zakaah is due on less than the five wasqs which is the equivalent of 300 صَاع (ṣaa^s) according to the صَاع (ṣaa^) of the Prophet. This is because one وَسْق (wasq) is equivalent to 60 ṣaa^s. Thus, the total of five wasqs is 300 ṣaa^s. A ṣaa^ is equivalent to four mudd, and one mudd is the fill of an average-size pair of cupped hands. For this reason, the author, may Allaah have mercy upon him, said “according to the ṣaa^ of the Prophet” the standard unit of which is still existent in الحِجَاز (al-Hijaz<sup>1</sup>).

Among the rules that pertain to staple crops is that crops of the same year are combined to determine if the quotum is reached provided that they are of the same kind and that they were harvested within one year of each other, in which case Zakaah is due if the sum of both harvests complete the quotum even if they differ in type. However, crops of a different kind are not combined to complete the quotum e.g. barley and wheat. So if a person has barley and wheat, each being less than five wasqs, there is no obligation on them to pay Zakaah even if the sum of both would be five wasqs because they are two different kinds and one may not be added to the other to complete the quotum. This is unlike the case of two types of the same kind of

Zakaah* is due once the fruit ripens and the grain hardens.

Due Zakaah on what exceeds the quotum is paid

crop, such as Levantine wheat and Egyptian wheat, whereas both amounts are calculated together to complete the quotum.

Zakaah* on dates and raisins is due once the fruit ripens even if only one grape or date acquires ripeness. The fruit's ripeness is determined by the appearance of certain properties wherein it is normally sought for consumption, such as a change in color regarding grapes that undergo color changes, or else other indicators of maturity. And Zakaah is also due on staple crops when the grain hardens. Although Zakaah is due when the aforementioned occurs, it is not valid to offer it as Zakaah until after the dates have dried, the grapevine berries become raisins and the wheat has been separated from its spikes etc.

One-tenth is due on the dates, raisins, and staple crops that are watered without expense or significant work such as when the crops are irrigated by rain or river water. In such a case, the due Zakaah on 300  $\text{ṣā}^{\text{a}}$ s is 30  $\text{ṣā}^{\text{a}}$ s. And half of that, i.e., half of one-tenth is due on the crops, dates and raisins that are irrigated with expense or work such as if they are irrigated with water transported on animals from its source to the crops or by using a waterwheel turned by animals, a noria wheel or a water pump; in this case, the due Zakaah on 300  $\text{ṣā}^{\text{a}}$ s is 15  $\text{ṣā}^{\text{a}}$ s. Due Zakaah on what exceeds the aforementioned quotum is paid proportionately.

No Zakaah is due on crops below the quotum; however, one may make a voluntary payment.

The quotum of gold is 20 مِثْقَال (mithqaals) and that of silver is 200 dirham. One-fortieth is due on both. The surplus [beyond the quotum] is calculated proportionately. It is a requirement that one year of ownership elapses on them [after reaching the quotum]; however, Zakaah on gold and silver proportionately even if the surplus was a small amount because exemption between set quotums does not apply here as it does with regards to livestock as was previously mentioned. No Zakaah is due on crops, dates and raisins below the quotum, which is five wasqs. However, one may make a voluntary payment.

The quotum of gold is 20 مِثْقَال (mithqaals)<sup>1</sup>. A mithqaal is the weight of 72 average-size unpeeled grains of barley from al-Hijaaz which have had the long and narrow part of their ends cut off. And that of silver is 200 dirham. A dirham is the weight of 50 average-size grains of barley plus two-fifths of one barley grain. One-fortieth is due on both gold and silver if they reach the quotum. The surplus beyond the quotum is calculated proportionately even if the excess amount was a small amount as was previously mentioned for agricultural goods. It is a requirement that one year of ownership elapses on them after reaching the quotum; however, Zakaah on gold and silver

1) A mithqaal is a measure of weight which equals to the weight of a golden deenaar, i.e., approximately 4.25 grams.

extracted from ore or taken from treasure-trove must be paid immediately. One-fifth is due on treasure-trove.

The quotum of Zakaah on trade articles is the quotum of gold or silver with which they were purchased. Consideration of the quotum is held off until the end of one lunar year. The amount due is one-fortieth of the value.

extracted from ore or taken from treasure-trove which have reached the specified quotum must be paid immediately in which case it is not a requirement for a year to elapse. Although, they are offered after the ore has been cleansed from soil. The amount due for mined materials differs from that which is required to be paid on treasure trove. One-fortieth is paid on the mined materials as in other forms of Zakaah on gold and silver, whereas one-fifth is due on treasure trove. This is due to the work and expense of purifying the ore from soil, which is not incurred on treasure trove.

The quotum of Zakaah on trade articles is the quotum of gold or silver with which they were purchased. This is because Zakaah on trade articles is assessed on the basis of what they were purchased with. Hence, if they were bought with gold, Zakaah is due if the trade articles' market value has reached the gold Zakaah quotum and if they were bought with silver, Zakaah is due if the trade articles' market value has reached the silver Zakaah quotum. And if they were purchased with something other than gold or silver, they are valued based on what is mostly in circulation of gold and silver in his area. Consideration of the quotum is held off until the end of one lunar year. Therefore, if trade goods reach the quotum at the end of the year, Zakaah is due, otherwise it is not. The amount due is one-fortieth of the value of the trade articles. This means the merchant offers gold if the trade articles were assessed in gold or silver if they were assessed in silver.

The Zakaah of فِطْر (Fitr) is obligatory upon every Muslim for himself and upon those whom he is obligated to support if they are Muslims, provided that they lived through part of رَمَضَانَ (Ramadaan) and part of شَوَّال (Shawwaal), and he possesses a surplus beyond that which covers

The mixed wealth of two or more persons is the same as the wealth of one person in regards to the quotum and due Zakaah. So if the merger is enacted and the total wealth reaches the quotum, all partners pay the Zakaah as if the owners of the combined wealth are a single person. This is true if the conditions for mixing wealth are met which are learned from more comprehensive books.

The Zakaah of فِطْر (Fitr) is obligatory upon every Muslim for himself and upon those whom he is obligated to support if they are Muslims provided that they lived through the last part of رَمَضَانَ (Ramadaan) which means that they were alive through sunset of the last day of رَمَضَانَ (Ramadaan) and the first part of شَوَّال (Shawwaal). In other words, their life must remain through the space of time previously mentioned -not under the final death throes due to the departure of the soul. Therefore, if someone dies before sunset or is born afterwards, it is not an obligation to pay Zakaah for them. And it is obligatory on the Muslim only if he possesses a surplus beyond that which covers his debts, clothing [needs], lodging, sustenance, and the sustenance of those whom he must support for the day of Fitr and the night after it. The due Zakaah for each individual is a صَاع (ṣaaʿ) of the most common staple crop of that area.

The intention to pay Zakaah is necessary for every type of Zakaah upon apportioning the amount to be paid as Zakaah.

his debts, including deferred debts, his clothing needs suitable for both the breadwinner and those he is obligated to support, lodging suitable for him and his dependents, his sustenance, and the sustenance of those whom he must support -such as his wife, young children and poor parents- for the day of Fitr and the night after it. The due Zakaah for each free individual is a صَاع (ṣaaʿ) of the most common staple crop of that area. The most common staple crop is wheat in countries such as Syria, Lebanon, Jordan, Palestine and Egypt, rice in parts of India and Indonesia, corn in parts of Ethiopia and others in other countries. He pays one ṣaaʿ for himself and one ṣaaʿ for each of those he is obligated to support, as has been described. It is forbidden to delay payment beyond sunset of the day of عِيْد (ʿEed) without an excuse.

The intention in the heart to pay Zakaah is necessary for every type of Zakaah. It is sufficient to have this intention upon apportioning the amount to be paid as Zakaah, like “I intend this to be the obligatory Zakaah on what I own, “ صَدَقَةٌ (the ṣadaqah) which is an obligation on what I own” or “... the Zakaah on my person”. The act of apportioning means to isolate the amount one wants to pay as Zakaah from the rest of their wealth.

It is an obligation to pay Zakaah to eight categories [of beneficiaries] that are present in the area in which the Zakaah funds exist. These are:

1. The destitute people الْفُقَرَاء (al-Fuqaraa')
  2. The poor people الْمَسَاكِين (al-Masaakeen)
  3. The Zakaah workers الْعَامِلُونَ عَلَيْهَا (al-^Amiloona ^alayhaa)
  4. The ones whose hearts are to be reconciled الْمُؤَلَّفَةُ قُلُوبُهُمْ (al-Mu'allafatu quloobuhum)

It is an obligation to pay Zakaah to eight categories of beneficiaries that were cited by Allaah in the Holy Book. The Zakaah is exclusively paid to the following beneficiaries that are present in the area in which the Zakaah funds exist. These are:

The destitute people الْفُقَرَاء (al-Fuqaraa'); the destitute person is someone who does not have a sponsor who is Islamically required to support them and only acquires less than half of their basic needs, such as someone who needs ten and finds only four.

The poor people الْمَسَاكِين (al-Masaakeen); the poor person is someone that has some of what is sufficient for their subsistence but does not find all of what would fulfill the appropriate needs for their situation, such as someone who needs ten but finds only eight.

The Zakaah workers الْعَامِلُونَ عَلَيْهَا (al-^aamiloona ^alayhaa); the Zakaah workers are those whom the Imaam employed to collect Zakaah from the donors and to distribute it to those entitled to receive it and perform other related tasks. This only applies if the Imaam does not allocate a salary to the Zakaah workers from the Muslim treasury.

The ones whose hearts are to be reconciled الْمُؤَلَّفَةُ قُلُوبُهُمْ (al-Mu'allafatu quloobuhum); this category of beneficiaries is inclusive of

5. The slaves in a contract of emancipation الرِّقَاب (ar-Riqaab)
  6. The insolvent debtors الغَارِمُونَ (al-Ghaarimoon)
  7. The volunteer warriors فِي سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ (Fee-sabeelillaah). It does not mean [here] every philanthropic deed
  8. The traveler who does not possess sufficient funds to various groups, such as those who were unbelievers and then embraced Islam without yet becoming close to the Muslims so they are given some Zakaah to strengthen their commitment to Islam. The slaves in a contract of emancipation الرِّقَاب (ar-Riqaab); they are people in bondage who have a valid emancipation contract, i.e. they have an arrangement with their owners that if they pay a specific amount of money they will be freed. Such slaves receive Zakaah money to help them gain their freedom. The insolvent debtors الغَارِمُونَ (al-Ghaarimoon), i.e., those who received a loan to be spent in a lawful way, then were unable to repay the debt at its time of maturity or those who borrowed money to spend unlawfully but have repented and found themselves unable to repay. The volunteer warriors فِي سَبِيلِ اللَّهِ (Fee-sabeelillaah), even if they are well-off they are given what they need for battle contrary to those who are on the payroll of the Registry of Soldiers. It does not mean here every philanthropic deed. Hence, it is not permissible to pay Zakaah to build a hospital, a mosque, or a school under the pretext that it is an act of charity subsumed under the category “fee sabeelillaah” because it has been established that what is meant by “fee sabeelillaah” in the Qur’aan is what we have previously mentioned. Zakaah is also spent on the traveler or the person who wants to travel who does not possess sufficient funds to reach his destination ابْنُ السَّبِيلِ (Ibnus-sabeel).

It is neither permissible nor valid to pay Zakaah to other than these eight categories of people.

---

reach his destination ابْنُ السَّبِيلِ (Ibnus-sabeel). Therefore, they are given Zakaah money that will suffice them if their journey is permissible, even if they travel for leisure. It is neither permissible nor valid to pay Zakaah to other than these eight categories of people who are entitled to it. These are the eight categories that Allaah mentioned in the Qur'aan. Furthermore, it is only paid to them on the condition that they are Muslims who are not descendants of هَاشِم (Haashim) or المُطَّلِب (al-Muttalib). As for Hashimites and Muttalibites, it is not permissible for them to take Zakaah even if they were poor.

Fasting

After the author completed his discourse about Zakaah, he began discussing Fasting, which is abstention from things that nullify the fast for the entire duration of the day while having a specific intention for doing so.

Section 22

Clarifying the rules of Fasting and what pertains to them

Fasting the month of رَمَضَانَ (Ramadaan) becomes obligatory by the testimony of one upright man that he saw the crescent of رَمَضَانَ (Ramadaan) or by completing thirty days of شَعْبَانَ (Sha^baan). Fasting is obligatory upon every accountable Muslim who is able to fast. Hence, it is not obligatory on the original kaafir, the insane, or the child, except that the guardian of the mumayyiz child is obligated to order them to fast after they turn seven years old provided the child can endure fasting; and it is an obligation to hit them for neglecting it after they turn ten years old, as was mentioned regarding prayer. Fasting is not obligatory on those who cannot endure it due to old age or sickness. It is not valid nor permissible for the woman in the state of menstruation or postpartum bleeding to fast; however, she must make up the days she missed.

It is permissible for the traveler of a distance which permits shortening the prayer to not fast, even if fasting is not difficult for one.

The sick person, pregnant woman, and nursing woman are not obligated to fast if it causes them severe difficulty, but they are obligated to make up these missed days.

It is an obligation:

* To have the intention at night and to

must make up the days she missed.

It is permissible for the traveler of a long distance -which is the distance that permits shortening the prayer- to not fast, provided they passed the residential perimeter before dawn. As for the person who initiates their travel after dawn, then it is not permissible for them to break the fast of that day. The traveler is permitted to omit fasting even if fasting is not difficult for one. Although, if fasting is not difficult, it is better for such a traveler to go through with fasting. The sick person, pregnant woman, and nursing woman are not obligated to fast if it causes them severe difficulty, namely that which permits performing Tayammum such as fear of death, impairment of a body part, or prolongation of one's ailment. But they are obligated to make up these missed days similar to those who broke their fast inexcusably. As for those who break their fast because of old age or an incurable illness, they are only obligated to pay a فِدْيَة (fidyah).

It is an obligation regarding the obligatory fast to have the intention at night, i.e., after sunset and before dawn and to specify [what one is fasting] in their intention. This must be repeated every day.

* To abstain from:

- Sexual intercourse
  - Masturbation, i.e., inducing ejaculation by the likes of one's hand
  - Inducing vomiting
  - Apostasy

specify what one is fasting in their intention such as fasting a day of رَمَضَانَ (Ramadaan), or fasting to fulfill a vow or for expiatory purposes. This intention must be repeated every day one seeks to fast. Hence, it is not sufficient to make an intention at the start of the month of رَمَضَانَ (Ramadaan) for the whole month. Also, it is obligatory to abstain from anything that nullifies the fast: intentionally and willfully engaging in sexual intercourse, in the genitals or the anus of a human or non-human while knowing that it is prohibited; this invalidates the fast of both parties; masturbation, i.e., inducing ejaculation without engaging in sexual intercourse, rather by using the likes of one's own hand, his spouse's, or another's; this nullifies the fast when done knowingly, intentionally, and willfully; inducing vomiting while knowing that it is unlawful and remembering that they are fasting. Induced vomiting means to make oneself regurgitate on purpose by, for example, inserting the finger in the mouth. This nullifies the fast if the vomit reaches the point of articulation of the letter haa' ح, even if none was swallowed. It is an obligation to abstain from committing apostasy. Whoever leaves Islam,

- Introducing any substance into a body cavity except one's pure and unmixed saliva from inside one's mouth

even for a moment, during the daytime invalidates their fast. Lastly, one must abstain from introducing any substance through an open orifice, such as the mouth or the nose, even if it was as small as a sesame seed or inedible, like a pebble, into a body cavity such as the abdomen, the intestines, the interior of the head, and the throat (i.e., the area beyond the point of articulation of the letter (haa') whether its function was digestion, like the stomach, or not, like the urethra. This invalidates the fast when done willfully while knowing it is unlawful and remembering that one is fasting. Hence, if the person fasting eats or drinks absentmindedly, it does not invalidate their fast. Inserting any substance through the aforementioned bodily orifices invalidates the fast except one's pure and unmixed saliva from inside one's mouth with the condition that it does not separate from the mouth before being swallowed. The saliva being swallowed must be pure and unaltered by extraneous substances. Therefore, the person who swallows saliva mixed with a pure or an impure substance invalidates the fast. On the other hand, smelling [air permeated with] perfume or frankincense does not invalidate the fast because they are no longer physical entities.

For the validity of the person's fast, one must not become insane even for a moment or lose consciousness for the entire day. So, if one's unconsciousness did not cover the entire day,

It is invalid to fast the two عِيد (^Eed) [days] and التَّشْرِيق (at-Tashreeq) days. It is also invalid to fast the second half of [the month of] شَعْبَانَ (Sha^baan) and the Day of Doubt unless one joins the fasting of these days to the days before it, or is making up a fast, or fasts because of a vow or a habitual exhorted practice وَرَدٌ (wird).

their fast is valid or else if someone lost consciousness from dawn until sunset their fast is invalid.

It is invalid and sinful to fast the two عِيد (^Eed) days: عِيدُ الْفِطْرِ (^Eed al-Fitr) and عِيدُ الْأَضْحَى (^Eed al-'Ad-haa) which are respectively, the first of شَوَّال (Shawwaal) and the tenth of ذُو الْحِجَّة (Dhul-Hijjah). And it is also invalid to fast the days of التَّشْرِيق (at-Tashreeq) which are the three days after ^Eed al-'Ad-haa. It is also invalid to fast the second half of the month of شَعْبَانَ (Sha^baan) and the Day of Doubt, (which is the 30th of شَعْبَانَ Sha^baan when a group of people whose word is not binding in establishing the beginning of رَمَضَانَ Ramaḍaan, like children and enormous sinners, talk about seeing the crescent of رَمَضَانَ Ramaḍaan), unless one joins the fasting of these days, i.e., if one connects the second half of شَعْبَانَ (Sha^baan) to the days before it by fasting the 15th of شَعْبَانَ (Sha^baan) followed by the 16th and so on; or if one is doing so with the purpose of making up a fast they missed or if one fasts because of a vow they made or a habitual exhorted practice وَرَدٌ (wird) they observe like the one who usually fasts Mondays and Thursdays or every other day. In such cases, it is permissible to fast the second half of شَعْبَانَ (Sha^baan) or the Day of Doubt.

If one invalidates a day of fasting in رَمَضَانَ (Ramadaan) by having sexual intercourse, while having no dispensation permitting him not to fast, one is sinful. In addition, one is obligated to make up the missed day immediately, and expiation of ظَهَار (Dhihaar) is due. The expiation is to free a slave; if unable, then to fast two consecutive months; if unable, then to feed sixty poor people, i.e., to give each person a مُدّ (mudd) of whichever is the most common staple crop in the area.

If one invalidates a day of fasting in رَمَضَانَ (Ramadaan) by having sexual intercourse, while having no dispensation<sup>1</sup> permitting him not to fast, one is sinful. In addition, one is obligated to make up the missed day immediately after عِيد (^Eed) if able and expiation of ظَهَار (Dhihaar) is due. The expiation is to free a Muslim slave who is free of any defect that precludes earning a living or performing labor; if unable to free a slave then he is required to fast two consecutive months. The consecutiveness of which is interrupted even if one excusably skips fasting one day; if unable to fast then he is required to feed sixty poor or destitute people i.e., to give each person a mudd of whatever is valid for زَكَاةُ الْفِطْرِ (Zakaat-ul-Fitr), such as wheat or another grain whichever is the most common staple crop in the area. A مُدّ (mudd) is the fill of an average-size pair of cupped hands as was previously mentioned.

1) A dispensation is defined as the permission to do something that is originally unlawful like the permission to eat unlawful meat when there is a necessity.

Pilgrimage

(Section 23)

حَجَّ (Hajj) and عُمرَة (^Umrah) are obligatory once during the lifetime on the free accountable Muslim if one possesses the means [including funds]

Pilgrimage

After the author, may Allaah have mercy upon him, completed his discourse on fasting, he started talking about حَجَّ (Hajj), which is heading towards الكَعْبَة (the Ka^bah) to perform specific acts, and about عُمرَة (^Umrah) -the minor pilgrimage- which is visiting الكَعْبَة (the Ka^bah) to perform known acts. He said:

Section 23

Clarifying the rules of حَجَّ (Hajj) and عُمرَة (^Umrah)

حَجَّ (Hajj) and عُمرَة (^Umrah) are obligatory once during the lifetime. The obligation to perform them accepts being postponed as long as they are performed before death. حَجَّ (Hajj) and عُمرَة (^Umrah) are obligatory on the free accountable i.e., sane and pubescent Muslim. Hence, they are not obligatory on the original kaafir in the sense that they are not demanded from them while in the state of kufr. Also, they are not obligatory on the slave, whether partially or totally in bondage, nor the impubescent child and insane person. Also, the obligation of performing حَجَّ (Hajj) and عُمرَة (^Umrah) is conditional to being physically able i.e., if one possesses the means including funds, provisions, and other essential things to transport oneself [to Makkah] and back home, [if it is] in excess of what one needs to cover his debts, appropriate lodging and clothing, and provisions appropriated for those he is obligated to provide for from the time of one's departure until his return.

The Integrals of Pilgrimage are six:

The first is الإحرام (al-Ihram): that is to determine in one's heart "I initiate the act of حَجّ (Hajj) or عُمْرَة (Umrah)."

The second is to stay in عَرَفَة (Arafah)

to transport oneself to Makkah and back home, i.e., if it is in excess of what one needs to cover his debts, even if they were deferred debts, appropriate lodging, even if rented, and appropriate clothing. And his assets must also be in excess of the provisions appropriated for those he is obligated to provide for, such as his wife, destitute parents, and similar dependents from the beginning of his journey to the end: starting from the time of one's departure to حَجّ (Hajj) or عُمْرَة (Umrah), along with his stay in Makkah continuing until his return to his hometown.

The integrals of Pilgrimage are six. The integral here refers to the acts without which Hajj is invalid and are not compensated for with slaughter. The first integral is الإحرام (al-Ihram) that is the intention to engage in the ritual of Hajj or Umrah, for example to determine in one's heart: "I initiate the act of حَجّ (Hajj) if one wants to perform Hajj or عُمْرَة (Umrah)" if one wants to perform عُمْرَة (Umrah). One is allowed to combine both in the intention. The second integral of حَجّ (Hajj) is to stay in عَرَفَة (Arafah) i.e., to be in any part of the land of عَرَفَة (Arafah) sometime between the sun's declination westward on the day of عَرَفَة (^Arafah) until dawn of عيد (^Eed) day.

The third is الطَّوَّافُ (at-Tawaaf): [that is] to circumambulate الكَعْبَة (the Ka^bah).

The fourth is السَّعْيُ (as-Sa^y): [that is] to traverse the area between the border markers of الصَّفَا (as-Safaa) and al-Marwah seven times.

The fifth is shaving or trimming one's hair.

The sixth is to observe the order in most of these integrals.

sometime between the sun's declination westward on the day of عَرَفَة (^Arafah) which is the 9th of ذُو الْحِجَّة (Dhul-Hijjah) until dawn of عيد (^Eed) day which is the 10th of ذُو الْحِجَّة (Dhul-Hijjah). The third integral is الطَّوَّافُ (at-Tawaaf) that is to circumambulate الكَعْبَة (the Ka^bah) seven times. Its time starts after midnight of the 10th of ذُو الْحِجَّة (Dhul-Hijjah). The fourth integral is السَّعْيُ (as-Sa^y) that is to traverse the area between the border markers of Mount الصَّفَا (as-Safaa) and Mount al-Marwah starting at الصَّفَا (as-Safaa) and ending at al-Marwah seven times. سَعْيُ (Sa^y) is performed after the major obligatory (Tawaaf) طَوَّافُ الْإِفَادَةِ (Tawaaf al-Ifaadah) or the arrival Tawaaf. The border markers of Mt. صفا (Safaa) and Mt. Marwah were physical markers identifying where one must reach for his سَعْيُ (Sa^y) to be valid. They have been destroyed in this era and other signs have replaced them. The fifth integral is shaving, i.e., removing the hair down to the root with a blade, or trimming one's hair, i.e., cutting three or more hairs without going as far as the root. Its time starts after midnight of the day of عيد (^Eed). The sixth integral is to observe the order in most of these integrals. Hence, it is obligatory to

These integrals are the same integrals of عُمْرَة (^Umrah) with the exception of staying in عَرَفَة (^Arafah).

These integrals have requisites and conditions which must be observed. Circumambulation requires one to move across a [specified] distance beginning at the black stone and ending back at the black stone seven times. Among its conditions is covering العَوْرَة (the ^awrah), purity, and having الكَعْبَة (the Ka^bah) to one's left without facing or turning one's back to it.

produce the intention of إِحْرَام (Ihraam) before all the other integrals and to delay one's طَوَاف (Tawaaf) and shaving or trimming until after one's stay in عَرَفَة (^Arafah).

These integrals are the same integrals of عُمْرَة (^Umrah) with the exception of staying in عَرَفَة (^Arafah). Consequently, it is known that the integrals of عُمْرَة (^Umrah) are five: إِحْرَام (Ihraam), طَوَاف (Tawaaf), سَعْي (Sa^y), shaving or trimming, and observing the order. These integrals have requisites and conditions which must be observed for الحَجَّ (the Hajj) or العُمْرَة (^Umrah) to be valid. For instance, circumambulation requires one to move across a specified distance defined by religious law: beginning at the black stone and ending back at the black stone seven times. Among its conditions is covering العَوْرَة (the ^awrah), purity from both states of ritual impurity as required for prayer, and having الكَعْبَة (the Ka^bah) to one's left during circumambulation without facing or turning one's back to it, rather one must walk forward.

Note: السَّعْي (The Sa^y) is not valid in the new مَسْعَى (mas^aa) - the new track - which goes beyond السَّعْي (the Sa^y) boundaries set by the Messenger of Allaah. An-Nawawiyy said in his book al-

It is unlawful for the pilgrim who has made the intention of إِحْرَام (Ih<sup>ra</sup>am) to:

- * Wear perfume
  - * Anoint one's beard or hair with oil, grease, or melted bees-wax
  - * Remove or cut one's nails or hair

Majmoo^ in the chapter of حَجَّ (Hajj), in the section of describing حَجَّ (Hajj) and عُمْرَة (^Umrah), “Sub-section: Ash-Shaafi^iyy and the top scholars of his school said it is not permissible to perform سَعْي (Sa^y) outside of its prescribed area. If a pilgrim walks beyond its boundaries, in the عَطَّارِين (^Attaareen) alley or elsewhere, his سَعْي (Sa^y) is not valid because السَّعْي (the Sa^y) is tied specifically to a place and it is not permissible to perform it elsewhere, as is the rule for طَوَاف (the Ta^waa^f)”.

After the author completed his discourse about the integrals of حَجَّ (Hajj) and عُمْرَة (^Umrah), he started talking about the prohibitions of إِحْرَام (Ih<sup>ra</sup>am). He, may Allaah have mercy upon him, said: It is unlawful for the pilgrim who has made the intention of إِحْرَام (Ih<sup>ra</sup>am) whether for حَجَّ (Hajj) or عُمْرَة (^Umrah) to do eight matters: The first prohibition is to wear perfume, i.e., for a male or female to use, on their clothes or on their body, a substance that is usually sought for its fragrance, such as musk. Doing this prohibition requires expiation (fidyah). The second prohibition is to anoint one's beard or head that grows hair with oil, fat, ghee, butter, grease, or melted bees-wax. Using such substances for other purposes, such as eating is not prohibited except if scented. The third prohibition is to remove or cut one's finger or toe nails or one's hair whether from the head or

- * Perform sexual intercourse or foreplay
- * Conduct a marriage contract
- * Hunt a wild edible land animal
- * [For the man to] cover the head or to wear a garment that envelops the body by way of seaming, felting, or the like
- * [For the woman to] cover the face or to wear gloves

If one commits any of these unlawful matters, elsewhere. The fourth prohibition is to perform vaginal or anal sexual intercourse or foreplay, such as lustful kissing, looking, and touching, even if with a barrier. The fifth prohibition is to conduct a marriage contract for oneself or others, such as for one's own daughter. Moreover, such a contract is invalid. The sixth prohibition is to hunt a wild edible land animal, i.e., to acquire it even by purchasing it. This excludes the inedible, water, or domesticated animal. The seventh prohibition is for the مُحْرِم (muḥrim)<sup>1</sup> man to cover the head with what is normally considered to be a head covering like a قَلَنْسُوَة (qalansuwah)<sup>2</sup> or to wear a garment that envelops all or part of the body by way of seaming, i.e., the way the garment envelops the body is by being seamed and sown together such as a gown, or by way of felting, or the like. The eighth prohibition is for the muḥrim woman to cover the face with what is normally considered to be a covering or to wear gloves.

If one commits any of these unlawful matters knowingly, one has sinned and is required to expiate. Additionally, sexual intercourse spoils the pilgrimage, enjoins one to immediately make it up, and continue with this spoiled pilgrimage.

intentionally, and willfully one has sinned and is required to expiate. Additionally, sexual intercourse before the first release from the state of إِحْرَام (Ihraam)<sup>1</sup>, spoils the pilgrimage, and enjoins one to immediately make it up, and to continue with this spoiled pilgrimage. Moreover, the one who has spoiled their pilgrimage by sexual intercourse, proceeds with it and does not interrupt it; then they make it up the following year. As for invalidating عُمْرَة (Umrah) by sexual intercourse, one finishes it, then immediately engages in making it up.

1) The first release from the state of Ihraam (in Arabic called التَّحْلُلُ الْأَوَّلُ tahlul al-awwal) is achieved by completing two of the following three: throwing the pebbles at جَمْرَةُ الْعَقَبَةِ (Jamratul-^Aqabah), طَوَاف (Tawaaf) along with سَعْي (Sa^y), and shaving or trimming.

[Requisites of Pilgrimage]

(Section 24)

It is an obligation to:

1. Make the intention of إِحْرَام (Ih<sup>ra</sup>am) before crossing المَيْقَات (the Meeqaat). The Meeqaat is the place designated by the Messenger of Allaah as the place where one establishes the intention of إِحْرَام (Ih<sup>ra</sup>am), like ذُو الْحُلَيْفَةِ (Dhul Hulayfah) for the people of Al-Madeenah and those traveling by that route

---

Section 24

Requisites of Pilgrimage

After the author finished discussing the prohibitions of إِحْرَام (Ih<sup>ra</sup>am), he started talking about the requisites of Pilgrimage. In the context of Pilgrimage, requisite refers to whatever is compensated for with slaughter, but leaving it out does not invalidate الْحَجَّ (the H<sup>ajj</sup>). He, may Allaah have mercy upon him, said: It is an obligation on the person aspiring to perform حَجَّ (H<sup>ajj</sup>) or عُمْرَةً (Umrah) to make the intention of إِحْرَام (Ih<sup>ra</sup>am) before crossing المَيْقَات (the Meeqaat). The Meeqaat is the place designated by the Messenger of Allaah as the place where one establishes the intention of إِحْرَام (Ih<sup>ra</sup>am). There are five sites مَوَاقِيت (Meeqaats) for establishing this intention like ذُو الْحُلَيْفَةِ (Dhul Hulayfah) nowadays known as أَبَا بَرٍّ عَلِيٍّ (aabaar ^Aliyy). It is considered المَيْقَات (the Meeqaat) for the people of al-Madeenah and those traveling by that route who are not from al-Madeenah.

2. Stay at night in Muzdalifah (according to one saying)

3. Stay at night in Minaa (according to one saying)

(There is also a saying that neither is an obligation)

4. Throw pebbles at جَمْرَةُ الْعَقَبَةِ (Jamrat al-^Aqabah) on the day of النَّحْر (Nahr)

It is a requisite in حَجَّ (Hajj)-not عُمْرَة (Umrah)- for the pilgrim to stay at night in the area of Muzdalifah i.e., to be present there after midnight of عِيد (Eed), even if it is for one moment. This ruling is according to one saying of Imaam ash-Shaa^fiyy. It is also a requisite to stay at night in Minaa, i.e., to be present there during most of the three nights of تَشْرِيق (Tashreeq), if one did not leave Minaa before the sunset of the second تَشْرِيق (Tashreeq) day. However, if one leaves before that, one is permitted to skip staying for the third night. This ruling is also according to one saying of Imaam ash-Shaa^fiyy. There is also a saying that neither staying in Muzdalifah nor Minaa is an obligation, rather they are recommended. Hence, omitting either of them does not render one sinful nor requires one to slaughter a sheep/goat.

It is a requisite to throw seven pebbles at جَمْرَةُ الْعَقَبَةِ (Jamrat-ul-^Aqabah) on the day of النَّحْر (Nahr)<sup>1</sup>. Its time starts after midnight and extends until the last day of تَشْرِيق (Tashreeq).<sup>2</sup> And

1) The day of نَحْر (Nahr) is the tenth day of ذُو الْحِجَّةِ (Dhul-Hijjah), also known as day of عِيد (Eed).

2) The days of تَشْرِيق (Tashreeq) are the eleventh, twelfth, and thirteenth days of ذُو الْحِجَّةِ (Dhul-Hijjah).

5. Throw pebbles at the three stations during the days of تَشْرِيق (Tashreeq)

6. The Farewell Circumambulation طَوَافُ الْوَدَاع (according to a saying in the Shaafi`iyy school)

The one who does not fulfill these six matters does not invalidate one's pilgrimage; however, they are sinful and required to expiate. This is different than not performing the aforementioned integrals, because pilgrimage is not achieved without these integrals. Therefore, slaughtering a sheep/goat does not compensate for neglecting the integrals.

it is a requisite to throw seven pebbles at each of the three stations in a specific order during the days of تَشْرِيق (Tashreeq) after the sun's declination westward from its zenith. The pilgrim starts with the station near the Mosque of Khayf, then proceeds to the one next to it, and then the one next it. One may delay throwing pebbles of the first two days until the third day.

Lastly, the pilgrim is required to perform the Farewell Circumambulation طَوَافُ الْوَدَاع according to a saying in the Shaafi`iyy School. And according to another saying, it is recommended to do so.

The one who does not fulfill these six matters does not invalidate one's pilgrimage because they are requisites not integrals; however, they are sinful and required to expiate. This is different than not performing one of the aforementioned integrals, because pilgrimage is not achieved without these integrals. Therefore, slaughtering a sheep/goat does not compensate for neglecting the integrals.

[Hunting] wild edible animals and [pulling or cutting the] plants of الْحَرَمَيْنِ (the two Harams) are forbidden for both the one who is in the state of Ihraam and the one who is not. [If the above mentioned is done] in Makkah, the obligation to expiate is added. There is no expiation due for hunting animals or cutting plants in the حَرَم (Haram) of al-Madeenah, i.e., the area between Mt. عَيْر (^Ayr) and Mt. Thawr.

Hunting wild edible animals and pulling or cutting the plants of الْحَرَمَيْنِ the two Harams:<sup>1</sup> the Haram of Makkah and al-Madeenah are forbidden. So it is not permissible to cut their trees or uproot them. This prohibition applies for both the one who is in the state of Ihraam and the one who is not. If the above mentioned is done in Makkah, the obligation to expiate is added. There is no expiation due for hunting animals or cutting plants in the Haram of al-Madeenah, i.e., the area between Mt. عَيْر (^Ayr) and Mt. Thawr.

Postscript: Visiting the Prophet's grave is recommended by unanimous consensus, whether the visitor is a resident of al-Madeenah or not and whether one is a pilgrim or not. The early and later Muslims did this habitually. Their unanimity in recognizing the rewardableness of this deed has been established. In this context, several Hadeeths were narrated, one of which is the Hadeeth narrated by ad-Daaraqutniyy:

من زار قبري وَجَبَتْ لَهُ شَفَاعَتِي

1) The two Harams are places in the الْحِجَاز (Hijaaz) region. The territory of the two Harams extends beyond the respective cities of Makkah and Al-Madeenah. Their limits are defined by the religion. This term signifies the special status that Allaah conferred on these two sites.

“Whoever visits my grave is guaranteed my intercession”.

Haafidhs as-Subkiyy, al-^Alaa’iyy, and others graded it as a حَدِيثٌ Hasan Hadeeth (well-authenticated).

Transactions

(Section 25)

It is obligatory on every accountable Muslim to refrain from engaging in anything until one knows what Allaah, the Exalted, ordained as lawful or unlawful of it, because Allaah, the Exalted, ordered us with things [to do and others to avoid], so we must observe what He ordered us with.

Allaah* made selling lawful and riba unlawful.

Transactions

After the author finished discussing Hajj, he started talking about transactions. The author, may Allaah be merciful to him, said:

Section 25

Shedding light on the importance of observing what is lawful and refraining from what is unlawful, and clarifying some of the rules pertaining to buying and selling, as well as other transactions

It is obligatory on every accountable, i.e., sane and pubescent Muslim to refrain from engaging in anything until one knows what Allaah, the Exalted, ordained as lawful or unlawful of it, because Allaah, the Exalted, ordered us with things to do and others to avoid, so we must observe what He ordered us with. This is done by learning the necessary religious knowledge, performing all obligations, and refraining from all sins. Allaah* made selling lawful and riba unlawful. Hence, we

The Islamic textual statements restricted this selling with the definite article because not every sale is permissible per se unless it satisfies the conditions and integrals; therefore, they must be observed. The person who wants to sell or buy must learn the requirements or else one will inevitably consume riba.

The Messenger of Allaah said what means: “The honest trader shall be assembled on Judgment Day with the Prophets, are obligated to observe such rules. The Islamic textual statements<sup>1</sup> restricted this selling, which it described as lawful with the definite article: الْبَيْع (al-bayʿ) which means “the selling,” as revealed in القرآن (the Qur’aan) ﴿وَأَحَلَّ اللَّهُ الْبَيْعَ وَحَرَّمَ الرِّبَا﴾ “Allaah made the (previously delineated) selling lawful and riba unlawful.” The function of the definite article in this context is to limit the scope of the word it’s attached to, thus indicating that the trade Allaah described as lawful in the aforementioned verse is that which was previously identified by the revealed texts as lawful. Hence, the person must be cautious in order to be safe from disobeying Allaah because not every sale is permissible per se unless it satisfies the conditions and integrals; therefore, they must be observed. The person who wants to sell or buy or conduct other dealings must learn the requirements i.e., their conditions and integrals or else one will inevitably consume *riba whether one means to or not.

The Messenger of Allaah, said what means: “The honest trader shall be assembled on Judgment Day with the Prophets, the righteous Muslims, and the martyrs,” this is due to what this person faces when struggling with their self and its desires, and subduing it to conduct contracts according to Islamic law; otherwise, the threat of Allaah to punish those who violate His laws is known.

One must also observe the conditions and integrals for the remaining contracts of renting and hiring, financing a profit-sharing venture, putting up collateral, the righteous Muslims, and the martyrs.” This حَدِيث (Hadeeth) was related by at-Tirmidhiyy. The honest trader is a person who observes the rules Allaah ordained in their trade; they avoid deceiving, cheating, misleading others, or anything else that Allaah made unlawful. This merit of the honest trader mentioned by the Prophet is due to what this person faces when struggling with their self and it’s desires, and subduing it to conduct contracts according to Islamic law; otherwise if one does not conduct oneself in such a manner when selling or buying, then the threat of Allaah with painful torment to punish those who violate His Laws is known.

One must also observe the conditions and integrals for the remaining contracts the details of which were mentioned by the Islamic jurists in their more advanced books: renting and hiring out a lawful thing, which means to transfer the right of its usage to the renter for a payment under the condition that the entity is not consumed. Financing a profit-sharing venture, which is to delegate and authorize a person to trade with one’s wealth in one or several types of trading for a shared profit. Putting up collateral, which is to pledge a security of monetary value as a commissioning others, depositing for safekeeping, lending, forging a partnership, or tending grape vines and palm trees for part of the crop. A marriage contract requires even more cautiousness and certainty for fear of what will result in the absence of its conditions and integrals. The Noble قرءان (Qur'aan) refers to this in the verse:

guarantee against a debt, whereby this entity will be used to collect the debt if it cannot be paid. Commissioning others, which is to appoint a person to carry out a task by proxy in a specific way during the commissioner's lifetime. Depositing for safekeeping, which is to entrust something to a person (who is not the owner) for safekeeping. Lending, which is allowing someone to use an article for free while preserving its entity. Forging a partnership, which is a contract establishing the rights of two or more people over something as a common property. Or tending grape vines and palm trees for part of the crop, which is a contract established between the owner of an orchard and the person who tends their trees and does related work for an agreed share of the fruits. There are also other types of contracts, the rules of which one must learn before conducting.

A marriage contract requires even more cautiousness and certainty because safeguarding one's marriage takes precedence over other contracts, for fear of what will result in the absence of its conditions and integrals, such as the nullification of the contract consequently leading to many obvious unlawful repercussions. The Noble قرءان (Qur'aan) refers to all of this in the verse in سورة التحريم (Soorat at-Tahreem):

﴿يَتَأَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ ءَامَنُوا قُواْ اَنْفُسَكُمْ وَاَهْلِيكُمْ نَارًا وَقُودُهَا النَّاسُ وَالْحِجَارَةُ﴾

This means, “O you who believe, protect yourselves and your families from Hellfire which is fuelled by people and stones.”

“Protection from Hellfire” was interpreted by learning how to pray and fast, how to sell and buy, how to marry and divorce. This interpretation is derived from some of عطاء (^Ataa’s) commentary.

﴿يَتَأَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ ءَامَنُوا قُواْ اَنْفُسَكُمْ وَاَهْلِيكُمْ نَارًا وَقُودُهَا النَّاسُ وَالْحِجَارَةُ﴾

This means: “O you who believe, protect yourselves and your families from Hellfire which is fuelled by people and stones.” Our Master ^Aliyy, may Allaah honor him, said: “Teach goodness to yourselves and your families.” This is done by learning religious knowledge and teaching it to one’s family. “Protection from Hellfire” was interpreted by learning how to pray and fast, how to sell and buy, and how to marry and divorce. This interpretation is derived from some of عطاء (Ataa’s) commentary.

(Section 26)

Ribaa is prohibited. It is forbidden to do it, consume its product, take it, document it, and be a witness to it. Ribaa is trading one of the two precious metals [i.e., gold and silver] for the other on a deferred payment or without exchanging goods [before parting].

Section 26

Shedding light on the rulings pertaining to riba

Ribaa* is prohibited. It is forbidden to do a contract involving it, to consume its product, i.e., to benefit from and utilize the item acquired through riba, to take it, to document it, i.e., to draw up a riba document, and to be a witness to it, i.e., to the riba contract.

Ribaa is comprised of several types such as usury ربا القرض (ribal-qard). Among the various types of riba: is trading one of the two precious metals, i.e., gold and silver for the other on a deferred payment, i.e., to postpone payment, even for a short period. This is known as ربا النسيأ (riban-nasaa). For example, one would say to another, “I will sell you this gold deenaar for ten silver dirhams on the condition that I deliver it to you in an hour”. Or making the sale without exchanging the aforementioned goods before parting, which means that both or even one of the transactors leaves the place of the sale without taking possession of their respective commodity. This is called ربا اليد (ribal-yad).

Just as riba may occur in exchanges of two different kinds of precious metals, it also occurs within the same kind and this is

It is also riba if they were of the same kind and were traded in the above manner, or with inequality.

The same applies to trading foodstuff for foodstuff; it is not permissible to sell one for the other when they are of different kinds, like barley for wheat, unless two conditions are met: no [payment] postponement and no separation [of the seller and buyer, i.e., by leaving the sale session] without exchanging [of the sold commodities]. In the case of the same kind, the same two conditions are set, along with what the author mentioned when he said: It is also riba if they were of the same kind of precious currency, namely, gold for gold or silver for silver, and were traded in the above manner, i.e., on a deferred payment term, or separating without exchanging goods, or with inequality between the two commodities in weight, such as trading one gold deenaar for two deenaars or trading one silver dirham for two. The same three prohibitions: postponement, separation before taking possession whether the traded items were of the same or different kinds, and inequality between the commodities that belong to the same kind- applies to trading foodstuff for foodstuff, which is food that is usually sought by people for consumption. Therefore, it is not permissible to sell one for the other when they are of different kinds like barley and wheat unless two conditions are met: no payment postponement and no separation of the seller or buyer, i.e., by leaving the sale session without exchanging of the sold commodities. In the case that both commodities are of the same kind, such as wheat for wheat, the same two conditions are set, along with a third condition, which is equivalence [in measurements].

It is prohibited to sell/trade:

- * What one has not yet received
  - * Meat for living animals
  - * One debt for another debt

equivalence, i.e., absence of any discrepancy in measurements.

It is prohibited to sell/trade:

- * What one has not received, i.e., it is not permissible for someone to sell merchandise they bought before taking possession of it. For example, if Zayd buys one صَاع (ṣaaʿ) of wheat from ʿAmr, he is not allowed to sell it unless he receives it first. Taking possession of the merchandise varies depending on the item. If the item cannot be transported, then taking possession is done by yielding control of the item to the buyer and by vacating the property of what does not belong to the buyer. If the item can be transported, then possessing it, is done by physically taking hold of it if possible, or else by moving it to a place that does not belong to the seller.
- * Meat for living animals, whether or not the animals are edible.
- * One debt for another debt, such as for person A to give a deenaar to person B on the spot in exchange for a صَاع (ṣaaʿ) of wheat that is to be delivered at an appointed time in the future, then for person A to sell the undelivered wheat to person C for a deenaar that is to be delivered at a later time.

- * What one does not own or is not authorized to sell
  - * What one has not seen
  - * (It is invalid) to buy of or sell to the non-accountable person, i.e., it is invalid for an insane person or non-pubescent to sell; on the other hand, it is permissible to trade with a child who has the capacity to discern according to the school of *Imaam Ahmad
  - * What cannot be delivered

- * What one does not own or is not authorized to sell in any religiously recognized manner such as the owner having commissioned one to do so. Hence, the sale is invalid.
- * What one has not seen firsthand, whether one or both contracting parties have not seen it before the contract. Although, according to a ruling of ash-Shaafi'iyy if the merchandise is described in a way that prevents the buyer's complete ignorance of it then the sale is allowed.
- * It is invalid to buy of or sell to the non-accountable person, i.e., it is invalid for an insane person or non-pubescent to sell or buy, because it is not permissible for any of the contracting parties to be unaccountable, i.e., to be insane or underage in the school of our Imaam ash-Shaafi'iyy, may Allaah raise his rank. On the other hand, it is permissible to trade with a child who has the capacity to discern with the permission of their guardian according to the school of Imaam Ahmad Ibn Hanbal, may Allaah raise his rank.
- * What cannot be delivered, such as selling a lost item or what was unjustly taken from the owner by a third party and

- * What has no [religiously considered] benefit
  - * (According to some scholars, it is also invalid) without a verbal statement. According to others mutual consent is enough
  - * (To sell) what is not owned, such as a free person or unowned land
  - * (To sell) the unknown

cannot be retrieved.

- * What has no religiously considered benefit, such as selling burnt bread or vermin that have no lawful benefit, such as beetles and scorpions.
- * According to some shaafi^iyy scholars, it is also invalid to transact anything without communicating a verbal statement such as, “I now sell you such-and-such”, or “I now buy such-and-such from you”, alongside other conditions. According to others among the shaafi^iyy school, mutual consent is enough, such as the buyer paying the price and the seller giving the item to him without words being exchanged. The position of the latter group of scholars on the said transaction is that it is valid and it is called a مُعَاطَاة (mu^aataah) contract- a give-and-take contract.
- * To sell what is not owned, such as a free person or unowned land. The unowned land refers to undeveloped and uncultivated land that no one owns.
- * To sell the unknown and unidentified, such as saying to the buyer “I now sell you one of these two garments” without specifying either of them. Such a sale is invalid.

- * (To sell) najas filthy substances such as blood and every intoxicant
  - * (To sell) prohibited articles such as the tunboor, a musical instrument which resembles the lute
  - * (It is also prohibited to sell) a lawful and pure article to someone you know wants to disobey Allaah with it, such as grapes to a person who will make wine out of them or a weapon to a person who will assault people with it
  - * (To sell) something while under duress

- * To sell najas filthy substances such as blood and every intoxicant beverage, such as wine, intoxicating fermented juices, and spirits including ethanol. All the aforementioned substances are najas filth, thus prohibiting their sale.
- * To sell prohibited articles, such as the tunboor, a musical instrument which resembles the lute. Other examples of prohibited articles are the flute and the darabouka<sup>1</sup>.
- * It is also prohibited to sell a lawful and pure article to someone you know wants to disobey Allaah with it, because it is not permissible to assist others in committing a sin, such as selling grapes to a person who you know will make wine out of them or a weapon to a person who you know will kill himself or will assault people with it
- * To sell something while under duress. Hence, if someone is coerced to sell something, the transaction is considered to be invalid and the ownership of the commodity is not transferred to the buyer unless the involuntary transaction was rightfully

Useful Information

It is invalid to distribute a deceased person's inheritance or to sell any of it until their debts are cleared and the will is executed. If the deceased person was required to perform حَجَّ (Hajj) and عُمْرَة (^Umrah) then the expense of performing them is deducted from the inheritance [before distributing it] as well. However, selling [the deceased's] assets to pay for decreed by the ruler or his deputy.

- * To sell a defective article without disclosing its defects. If this happens, the buyer is entitled to return the item immediately once they find out about the defect.

The author, may Allaah have mercy upon him, then mentioned some additional useful information about expenses deducted from the inheritance before it is divided among the inheritors. He, may Allaah grant him mercy and forgiveness, said: It is invalid to distribute a deceased person's inheritance among the inheritors or to sell any of it until their debts are cleared provided they had debts, including any due Zakaah they neglected to pay before their death, and until the will they instructed to implement after their death is executed. If the deceased person was required to perform حَجَّ (Hajj) and عُمْرَة (^Umrah), i.e., they were liable to perform them but neglected to do so until they died, then the expense of performing them is deducted from the inheritance before distributing it as well and is given to an individual who will do حَجَّ (Hajj) and عُمْرَة (^Umrah) on their behalf. However, selling the deceased's assets to pay for these things is permissible. The inheritance is like an item pledged as collateral, with regards to ensuring that the above mentioned matters are fulfilled before given the right of disposal. In the same respect, the inheritance is similar to the case of a slave who commits a certain offence, even if it was taking a دَانَق (daanaq). The slave is encumbered with the said debt, rendering his sale invalid until the debt is repaid or the creditor permits his sale.

these things is permissible. The inheritance is like an item pledged as collateral, with regards to ensuring that the above mentioned matters are fulfilled before given the right of disposal. Just as it is not allowed to dispose of a collateral (in any way that transfers its ownership to another) before the debt tied to it is fulfilled (unless the collateral is sold to pay off the debt), inheritance is also subject to the same rules. In order to make it easier to understand, the author, may Allaah have mercy upon him, then gave another example of sales that are not valid until the rights associated with them are paid. He said that in the same respect, the inheritance is similar to the case of a slave who commits a certain offence and thus destroys the property of another person, even if it was taking a دَانَق (daanaq)<sup>1</sup>. The slave is encumbered with the said debt, therefore rendering his sale invalid until the debt is repaid by the owner or the creditor permits his sale. The creditor is the person whose property was destroyed by the slave.

It is prohibited:

- * To weaken the desire of the buyer or the seller [by a third person] after the price has been agreed upon with the intention to sell to the buyer or buy from the seller. This [prohibition] is more severe if it is done during the cooling-off period, i.e., after the contract has been conducted

It is prohibited:

- * To weaken the desire of the buyer or the seller which is done by a third person telling the original buyer “I will sell you a better item for the same price”, or “I will sell you a similar item for a lower price” or telling the original seller “do not sell to that person, I will buy from you for a higher price.” This is unlawful after the price has been agreed upon, i.e., each of the buyer and the seller declared their acceptance of that price, otherwise it is not sinful. For example, if the seller was auctioning the item they own to see who would pay more for it, then this is not unlawful. Also, it is not unlawful to weaken the desire of the buyer or the seller for other than the purpose of buying from the seller or selling to the buyer. For this reason, the author said with the intention to sell to the buyer or buy from the seller. Furthermore, this prohibition is more severe if it is done during the cooling-off period<sup>1</sup>, i.e., after the contract has been conducted but before it is binding. This is the case whether the option to cancel the sale is restricted to the sale session, extends beyond that (provided the extra time was stipulated in the contract), or is contingent on finding the commodity defective.

- * To buy essential food, such as bread, dates, and similar staple foods, at a time of high prices and necessity in order to hoard it and sell it later at a higher price.
- * To offer a higher price for an article that is more than its value, without the intent to buy, but rather to deceive a third party, i.e., to fool them into thinking that this article has a high value and thus deceiving them into buying it.
- * To separate a female slave from her child through sale and the like, even if she accepts, before the child reaches the capacity to discern.
- * For either contracting party to cheat in dealings by hiding the defect, to deceive when measuring articles by volume, weight and arm-length, or in counting, or to lie, such as the seller saying that an item has a market value of such-and-such, while knowing that it is sold for less.

- * To sell cotton or other goods and then lend the buyer additional dirhams to raise the price of the merchandise because of this loan
- * To lend [money] to a weaver or other wage-earner and hire them for less than the going rate because of this loan, i.e., to make it as a condition. This is called in some places الرِّبْطَة (ar-rabtah)
- * To lend [money] to farmers until the harvest on the condition that they sell the lender their yield at a slightly lower price. This is called in some places المَقْضِيّ (al-maqdiyy)

- * To sell cotton or other goods to someone who does not have all the money to pay for the goods for instance, and then for the seller of the aforementioned goods to lend the buyer additional dirhams for example, in order to raise the price of the merchandise because of this loan, i.e., in such a manner that the extra charge is imposed as a condition because of the loan.
  - * To lend money to a weaver or other wage-earner and hire them for less than the going rate because of this loan, i.e., to make it as a condition. This is called in some places الرِّبْطَة (ar-rabtah).
  - * To lend money to farmers until the harvest on the condition that they sell the lender their yield at a slightly lower price. This is called in some places المَقْضِيّ (al-maqdiyy). The last three prohibited transactions are all forms of usury رِبَا الْقَرْض (ribal-qard).

Likewise, [prohibited are] many other dealings of the people of this time [because most] violate the religious law. Hence, the person who seeks the reward from Allaah, the Exalted, and desires to safeguard their religion and their life in this world [from the unlawful], must learn what is lawful and what is unlawful from a scholar who is scrupulous, edifying, and mindful of their [student's] religion; this is because seeking what is lawful is obligatory upon every Muslim.

Likewise, prohibited are many other dealings of the people of this time in which ignorance has increased and piety decreased because most of the contemporary transactions violate the religious law. Hence, the person who seeks the reward from Allaah, the Exalted, and desires to safeguard their religion and their life in this world from the unlawful, must learn what they need of the religious knowledge so that they know what is lawful for them to do and what is unlawful to do, before engaging in various dealings; via verbal transmission from a scholar who is scrupulous, God-fearing, edifying, and mindful of their student's religion; this is because seeking what is lawful, i.e., avoiding the unlawful ways of getting sustenance is obligatory upon every Muslim.

(Section 27)

It is obligatory on the solvent person to support one's poor ascendants, i.e., fathers [and forefathers] and mothers [and foremothers] even if they are able to earn a living. One is also obligated to support their descendants, i.e., their children and grandchildren who are poor and cannot earn a living because they are non-pubescent or handicapped by chronic illness preventing them from earning a living.

It is also obligatory on the husband to support his wife

Section 27

Clarifying the rules governing the support of dependents

It is obligatory on the solvent person to support one's poor ascendants, i.e., fathers and forefathers and mothers and foremothers regardless of how far up they are in the line of ascent even if they are able to earn a living. One is also obligated to support their descendants, i.e., their children and grandchildren whether males or females who are poor and cannot earn a living because they are non-pubescent or handicapped by chronic illness preventing them from earning a living. If the descendant is able to earn a living, then the guardian may make them do so and spend what they earn on them.

It is also obligatory on the husband to support his wife, by providing her with what she needs of food, clothes, and other needs, about which the scholars spoke in detail. This is the case as long as the wife does not prevent him from physically enjoying her. And the husband is also obligated to offer her a dowry<sup>1</sup> مَهْر (mahr).

If the marriage contract is breached by a cause other than that of the wife's, such as him divorcing her because of her bad manners<sup>2</sup> the husband must pay her a مُتْعَة (mut^ah)<sup>3</sup> (which is an amount of money paid by the husband to his ex-wife), given that she is not entitled to half the dowry. The ex-wife does not deserve a مُتْعَة (mut^ah) if she was the reason behind the marriage contract being breached, such as, if she apostatized and did not return to Islam before the post-marital waiting period expired.

The owner of male or female slaves or animals must support them, by providing them with food, clothes, and other necessities they have. He must not charge them with more work

1) The dowry is an obligatory payment by the husband in the form of wealth like gold, jewelry, paper money, etc., commodities like books, furniture, a car etc., or services like teaching her how to recite certain chapters of القرآن (the Qur'aan).

2) In this context the man (who divorces his wife because of her bad manners) is considered the cause of the marriage being breached.

3) A mut^ah is something of value given to the ex-wife as a consolation after separation.

than they can bear and must not beat them unjustly.

It is an obligation upon the wife to obey her husband in what he asks for pertaining to enjoying her, except in what is not permissible. She is not to fast an optional fast or to leave his house without his permission.

than they can bear and must not beat them unjustly.

It is an obligation upon the wife to obey her husband in what he asks for pertaining to enjoying her, through intercourse or other types of enjoyment and if he asks her to beautify herself it is her duty to do so. She must obey him sexually except in what is not permissible. So she does not allow him to have intercourse with her while in her menses or postpartum bleeding. She is not allowed to fast an optional fast (without his permission) if her husband is present in the same settlement or to leave his house without his permission unless there is a necessity.

The Obligations of the Heart

(Section 28)

Among the obligations of the heart are:

- * To believe in Allaah and in what Allaah revealed
  - * To believe in the Messenger of Allaah and in what he conveyed

The Obligations of the Heart

After the author, may Allaah be merciful to him, spoke about dealings, including marriage and obligatory support, he started talking about the obligations of the heart. He said:

Section 28

Clarifying the obligations of the heart, which are defined as the acts the accountable person must fulfill in their heart

Among the obligations of the heart are:

- * To firmly believe in the existence of Allaah, as befits Him; this, along with the belief in the Messenger of Allaah, is the foundation of all obligations. And to believe in what Allaah revealed, which means to believe in the veracity of all the divine orders, prohibitions, and tidings.
- * To believe in مُحَمَّدٌ (Muhammad) as the true Messenger of Allaah and to believe in what he conveyed of the religious rules.

- * To be sincere, that is to perform the good deeds in obedience to Allaah only
  - * To regret sinning
  - * To rely on *Allaah
  - * To maintain fear of Allaah in one's heart [so as to drive one to do the obligations and avoid the prohibitions.]
  - * Submitting to the Will of Allaah, i.e., surrendering to Allaah and refraining from objecting to Him
  - * To exalt the matters of the religion of *Allaah

- * To be sincere, that is, to perform the good deeds in obedience to Allaah only. The Muslim is obligated to clear one's intention from seeking praise and respect from people when doing good deeds.
- * To regret sinning, i.e., to feel regret in one's heart for disobeying Allaah. This is an obligation with regard to all sins, both major and minor.
- * To rely on Allaah only.
- * To maintain fear of Allaah in one's heart so as to drive oneself to do the obligations and avoid the prohibitions.
- * Submitting to the Will of Allaah, i.e., surrendering to Allaah and refraining from objecting to Him in what He predestined -be it sweet or bitter.
- * To exalt the matters of the religion of *Allaah, by holding them in the appropriate regard as enjoined by Allaah and not less, i.e., not to degrade them by lowering their status against Allaah's command.

- * To be thankful to Allaah for the blessings He gave by not using them in disobedience
  - * To be patient [by persevering] in the fulfillment of what Allaah obligated [one with], enduring abstinence from what Allaah made prohibited, and to be patient with the adversities that Allaah inflicted you with
  - * To hate the devil
  - * To hate sins
  - * To love *Allaah

- * To be thankful to Allaah for the blessings He gave by not using them in disobedience. This type of gratitude is mandatory.
- * To be patient, i.e., to discipline and impose on oneself to endure what one dislikes or to give up what one likes. Obligatory patience is of three types: patience by persevering in the fulfillment of what Allaah obligated one with, such as the prayer; patience by enduring abstinence from what Allaah made prohibited such as refraining from looking at what Allaah prohibited and from fornicating, and to be patient with the adversities that Allaah inflicted you with such as calamities and disasters, i.e., not to object to Allaah or to engage in what Allaah prohibited due to their occurrence.
- * To hate the devil. Devils are unbelieving jinn. The genitor of their kind is Satan (Iblees).
- * To hate sins, because Allaah dispraised them and made committing them unlawful.
- * To love *Allaah, i.e., to glorify Him as we must and to offer

and to love His Speech

- * To love His Messenger, the companions, the Muslim relatives and wives of the Prophet, and the righteous Muslims

Him the utmost submission and humbleness. And to love His Speech, i.e., to believe in القرآن (the Qur'aan) along with proper glorification.

- * To love His Messenger مُحَمَّدٌ (Muhammad), by exalting him in the appropriate way, and to love the rest of the Prophets.
- * To love the Prophetic companions en bloc<sup>1</sup>, by revering them and holding them in high regard, because they were the ones who supported Allaah's religion, particularly the first companions who believed in the message of Islam brought by Prophet مُحَمَّدٌ (Muhammad). A Prophetic companion refers to anyone who physically met the Prophet in an ordinary way while believing in his Prophethood and passed away with this belief.
- * To love the Muslim relatives and wives of the Prophet, because of the special merits they were granted and their close relation to the best of Allaah's creation.
- * And to love the righteous Muslims because they gained Allaah's acceptance for their superior status they achieved by their complete obedience to Him.

Sins of the Heart

(Section 29)

Among the sins of the heart are:

- * Insincerity-Seeking recognition and being noticed by performing virtuous deeds-, that is to perform [virtuous] acts seeking people's approval to praise him; it nullifies the reward and it is a major sin
  - * Vainglory- To pride oneself for one's obedience to Allaah. It

Sins of the Heart

After the author, may Allaah be merciful to Him, completed his discourse about the obligations of the heart, he started talking about the sins of the heart. He began with the sins of the heart before talking about other sins because the heart is the master of all body parts. He said:

Section 29

Clarifying the sins of the heart

Among the sins of the heart are:

- * Insincerity -Seeking recognition and being noticed by performing virtuous deeds-, such as Zakaah, fasting, and reciting the Book of God. That is, to perform virtuous acts seeking people's approval to praise him; it nullifies the reward of the deed with which insincerity simultaneously occurred and it is a major sin, may Allaah protect us from it.
- * Vainglory -To pride oneself for one's obedience to Allaah. It is to look upon one's worship as being the result of one's own merit while failing to notice that it is God given

- * Having doubt in [the existence of] Allaah
  - * Feeling safe from Allaah's punishment
  - * Despairing of Allaah's mercy
  - * Being arrogant towards Allaah's slaves, i.e., to reject the truth said by someone or to look down upon people is to look upon one's worship and good deeds as being the result of one's own merit while failing to notice that it is God given, i.e., neglecting to remember Allaah's grace upon one, reckoning one's obedience to be a result of one's virtue.

- * Having doubt in the existence, omnipotence, omniscience, or oneness of Allaah, or having doubt in any of the remaining thirteen attributes mentioned previously in the explanation of the first Testification of Faith. Such a doubt is kufr.
- * Feeling safe from Allaah's punishment, i.e., to be reliant upon the mercy of Allaah, while indulging in sin.
- * Despairing of Allaah's mercy, i.e., for the slave to have the conviction that Allaah will definitely not forgive them, and will inevitably torture them for their numerous sins.
- * Being arrogant towards Allaah's slaves, i.e., one's Muslim brothers and sisters. Arrogance is of two types: the first is to reject the truth said by someone because they are young for instance, while knowing that they are correct. Or to look down upon people because one has more money than them or has a higher social status than theirs, or the like. The latter is the second type of arrogance.

- * Harboring enmity in the heart if one acts accordingly and does not hate it
  - * Being envious, i.e., feeling bitter about a grace granted to a [particular] Muslim, finding it agonizing and acting accordingly
  - * Reminding a person of given donations. This behavior nullifies the reward [of the donations].

- * Harboring enmity in the heart towards a Muslim, if one acts accordingly and does not hate it, i.e., to be determined to harm a Muslim, to say harmful words to them or to physically harm them unjustly.
- * Being envious, i.e., feeling bitter about a grace granted to a particular Muslim, finding it agonizing and acting accordingly by having the firm intention to divest the envied person from their endowment or by actually doing so either verbally or physically.
- * Reminding a person of given donations, which means to enumerate the acts of charity one did for another to hurt their feelings, or to mention that charity to another person whom the recipient of the charity would not like to be informed, thus hurting the recipient's feelings. This behavior nullifies the reward of the donations, like saying to the recipient of the charity, "Did I not give you such-and-such dollars on such-and-such a day when you were in need?", with the purpose of breaking the recipient's heart, or to do so by similar harmful statements.

- * To persist on sinning
  - * To improperly think that Allaah will withhold (what one hopes from) His mercy in the Hereafter
  - * Thinking ill of Allaah's slaves
  - * Denying Predestination
  - * Being happy about a sin committed by oneself or others
  - * Betraying someone, even a non-Muslim, such as promising

- * To persist on sinning, i.e., for one's sins to be more than their good deeds. The habitual sinner falls into an [extra] enormous sin when the number of their past sins exceeds the number of their past good deeds.
- * To improperly think that Allaah will withhold (what one hopes from) His mercy in the Hereafter. This is similar to "Despairing of Allaah's mercy" that was mentioned previously.
- * Thinking ill of Allaah's slaves without relying on a valid indication, such as accusing someone of stealing one's money without having any valid indication of such.
- * Denying Predestination. Denying that all things are predestined by Allaah is among the sins of the heart that are judged as kufr. For example, to believe that a single event or a number of events occurred without the Destining of Allaah.
- * Being happy about a sin committed by oneself or others even if one did not witness that sin.
- * Betraying someone, even a non-Muslim, such as promising them safety and then killing them

- * Inflicting harm through deceit
  - * Hating the Prophet's companions, the Muslim relatives or wives of the Prophet, or hating the righteous Muslims
  - * Miserliness with regard to what Allaah made obligatory, parsimony, and greedy avarice.

them safety by telling them: “You are safe, I will not harm you”, and then killing them when one has the opportunity.

- * Inflicting harm through deceit.
- * Hating the Prophet's companions; the same applies to cursing them. Hating the Muslim relatives or wives of the Prophet, or hating the righteous Muslims. The righteous Muslims are the pious and God-fearing believers who perform the obligations and refrain from committing sins.
- * Miserliness (bukhl) which means stinginess with regard to what Allaah made obligatory, such as not paying the obligatory Zakaah.
- * Parsimony شَحْ (shuhh) is synonymous with miserliness (bukhl) except that shuhh in its technical sense signifies severe stinginess, such as one neither paying Zakaah nor supporting his wife.
- * And greedy avarice, which is having a strong desire to be rich, thus gathering money with disregard whether or not it is coming from lawful or unlawful sources with the purpose of showing off and looking down on others, and only intending to spend the money on unlawful things that one's desires dictate, may Allaah protect us from that.

- * To neglect the required respect for what Allaah glorified
  - * Belittling what Allaah magnified, be it obedience, sin, القرآن (the Qur'aan), Islamic knowledge, Paradise, or [the torment in] Hellfire

- * To display carelessness and to neglect the required respect for what Allaah glorified.
- * Belittling and trivializing what Allaah magnified, be it obedience or sin that was emphatically judged by the religious statutes as grave and serious. For instance, saying “What good is prayer going to do for you?” or “Will prayer provide food and clothes for you?” or as some people say referring to some sins, “I’ll do it, it’s harmless.” It is also prohibited to legitimize a sin, as mentioned previously.
- * Belittling القرآن (the Qur'aan) like al-Hallaaj who, when asked about something he was writing, said, “This is something to rival the Book of God”, i.e., I’m authoring something similar to it.
- * Belittling Islamic knowledge like Sayyid Qutub, who said “seeking the knowledge of religious rules is a waste of time and reward.”
- * Belittling Paradise, such as the saying of some people, “Paradise is a child’s game”. Or belittling the torment in Hellfire, such as saying, “Hellfire is a hospital and not a place of torture.”

(Section 30)

Among the sins of the abdomen are:

- * To consume the acquisitions of riba, taxes, the money of others taken from them by force, stolen money,

The Sins of the Seven Body Parts

After the author finished talking about the sins of the heart, he started talking about the sins of the seven body parts. He said:

Section 30

Clarifying the sins of the abdomen

Among the sins of the abdomen are:

- * To consume the acquisitions of *riba, which means to utilize and benefit from the product of a riba transaction, whether it is food that is orally consumed or other than that. All persons involved in the riba contract bear the sin, whether one's involvement was by accepting or offering the riba commodity, drawing up the riba document, or being a witness to the riba transaction.
- * To consume the revenues of taxes. Taxes in this context refer to what some unjust rulers impose on people's trade and what is similar.
- * To consume the money of others taken from them by force and to consume stolen money. Stealing is defined as taking others' money stealthily.

or anything acquired through a transaction that is prohibited in Islamic law

- * To drink wine. The [prescribed legal] punishment of the drinker who is free is forty lashes whereas the slave receives half of that. The ruler may add to this as a disciplinary action
  - * To consume whatever is intoxicating, impure (najas filth) or revolting

- * Or to consume anything acquired through a transaction that is prohibited in Islamic law, like some of the forbidden dealings previously mentioned.

- * To drink wine, which is any drink that alters the state of mind along with causing drunkenness and euphoria. The prescribed legal punishment of the drinker who is free is forty lashes whereas the slave receives half of that, which is twenty lashes. The ruler may add to this, until reaching a total of eighty lashes, as a disciplinary action, similar to what our Master ^Omar, may Allaah raise his rank, did. The 'disciplinary action' formerly mentioned refers to certain authoritative disciplinary measures enforced against someone who commits an act of disobedience that entails neither a prescribed legal penalty nor expiation in most cases.

- * To consume whatever [solid substance] is intoxicating. Intoxication means to induce loss of the mental faculty along with causing drunkenness and euphoria as was previously mentioned. It is also prohibited to consume any impure (najas filth), such as blood, pork and maytah meat, or eating any revolting substance even if it isn't judged as najas filth, such as semen or mucus.

- * To consume the money of an orphan
  - * To consume money from a religious charitable trust وَقْف (Waqf) in a way that is contrary to the conditions set by the one who endowed it
  - * To consume what was obtained by way of shyness without goodwill [of the giver]

- * To unrightfully consume the money of an orphan. Islamically, the orphan is an impubescent child whose father died. Also, it is prohibited to consume the money that comes from a religious charitable trust وَقْف (Waqf) in a way that is contrary to the conditions set by the one who endowed it. Hence, if a person dedicates a house as a وَقْف (Waqf) to shelter poor people, it is not permissible for other than poor people to live in it.
- * To consume what was obtained by way of shyness without goodwill of the giver, such as if one were to ask another to give them money in the presence of a group of people knowing that they would not turn them down out of shyness.

(Section 31)

Among the sins of the eye are:

- * [For men] to look at the [bare] faces and hands of marriageable women with desire and to look at other bare parts of their body. Likewise, [it is sinful] for women to look at men if their gaze is directed at what is between the navel and the knees [when the area is bare], and looking at the عَوْرَة (^awrah) overall is sinful

Section 31

Clarifying the sins of the eye

Among the sins of the eye are:

- * For men to look at the bare faces and hands of marriageable women with desire. However, looking at their faces and hands without desire is not prohibited, because a woman's face and hands are not عَوْرَة (^awrah). And it is also sinful to look at other bare parts of their body, whether they were looking with or without desire. It is evident that a man's wife and unmarried female slave are not intended in the above mentioned rulings.
- * Likewise, it is sinful for women to look, whether with or without desire, at all men apart from their husbands and owners, if their gaze is directed at the man's عَوْرَة (^awrah), which is defined as what is between the navel and the knees when the area is bare. However, it is permissible to look at other than the man's عَوْرَة (^awrah) as long as the look is void of desire. And looking at the عَوْرَة (^awrah) overall is sinful,

- * For men or women to uncover العَوْرَة (the ^awrah) in private needlessly. On the other hand, it is permissible to look at other than what's between the navel and the knees of the مَحْرَم (mahram) or a person of the same sex
  - * To look down on a Muslim, even if it was among members of the same sex such as a man looking at what is between the navel and the knees of another man; or a woman looking at what is between the navel and the knees of another woman. It is prohibited for men or women to uncover العَوْرَة (the ^awrah) in private needlessly. In this context, the man's عَوْرَة (^awrah) is his front and rear private parts, otherwise (if the person is not male) the ^awrah extends to what's between the navel and the knees. However, if there is a need to uncover العَوْرَة (the ^awrah), like cooling off, then it is permissible. On the other hand, it is permissible to look at other than what's between the navel and the knees of the مَحْرَم (mahram)<sup>1</sup>, such as a father with his daughter, or a person of the same sex, i.e., a man with another man, or a Muslim woman with another Muslim woman.

- * To look down on a Muslim because they are poor for instance.

1) A mahram is someone who you are permanently and unconditionally forbidden from marrying as a result of kinship and close relation, like one's parents, siblings and children; nursing like one's parents-through-nursing; or marriage, like someone's mother in law or his wife's daughter from a previous marriage after consummating the marriage to her mother.

- * And finally, it is prohibited to look into someone else's house at the various things inside, that bother the homeowner if seen by others provided this was done without their permission. Or to look at something they kept hidden that they would be bothered if others looked at without permission.

(Section 32)

Among the sins of the tongue are :

- * Backbiting, i.e., to mention something true about your Muslim brother [or sister] in their absence that they do not like [it mentioned about them]
  - * Tale-bearing, that is to relay statements [to others] in order to stir up trouble

Section 32

Clarifying the sins of the tongue

Among the sins of the tongue are:

- * Backbiting, i.e., to mention something true about your Muslim brother or sister in their absence -whether the subject of the negative gossip is old or young, deceased or alive- provided that, if they heard such statements, they would be discontent. Hence, an expression is judged as gossip if the absentee does not like it if the true and unfavorable statement was mentioned about them, whether it concerns their body, lineage, manners, disposition, or anything else having to do with them. If a person says something about a Muslim that is not true, then it is considered slander (buhtaan) we seek refuge with Allaah from that. Slander is more severe than backbiting.
- * Tale-bearing, that is to relay someone's statements to others in order to stir up trouble, such as going to Zayd and telling him that ^Amr said such and such about you, then going to ^Amr and telling him that Zayd said such and such about you,

- * To incite conflict without relaying words even if it is between animals
  - * To lie, i.e., to say something contrary to reality
  - * To solemnly swear to a lie
  - * [To utter] expressions of sexual defamation قَذْف (qadhf). These expressions are numerous and sum up to every expression that ascribes fornication to a person or an individual among their relatives.

with the intention of stirring up trouble between them.

- * To incite conflict, i.e., to cause trouble between two individuals by urging sinful acts to be committed even if this was done without relaying words between them, rather by gesturing with the hand for example. Such an act is sinful even if it is between animals, as some people do between dogs, roosters, or rams. However, if this is done between pigs, it is not unlawful.
- * To lie, i.e., to say something contrary to reality while knowing that what one is saying is not the truth. It is sinful whether one is serious or joking.
- * To solemnly swear by Allaah or by an attribute of Allaah to something that is a lie.
- * To utter expressions of sexual defamation قَذْف (qadhf) by accusing a person of adultery, fornication, or sodomy. These expressions are numerous and sum up to every expression that ascribes fornication or what is similar to a person or an individual among their relatives such as, their mother or

Hence, they are regarded as sexual defamation directed towards the victim, unconditionally, when [they are] said explicitly, or with that intention [i.e., sexual defamation] when [they are] said implicitly. The punishment for the defamer who is free is eighty lashes; a slave receives half of this sister. Hence, they are regarded as sexual defamation directed towards the victim, unconditionally<sup>1</sup>, when they are said explicitly. This means when the expression of sexual defamation is explicit such as saying: “This person is an adulterer or a sodomizer”, the defamer is charged with this sin unconditionally, i.e., whether or not قَذْفٌ (qadhf) was intended. If the defamer’s statement was not explicit, then it only amounts to قَذْفٌ (qadhf) if said with that intention, i.e., with the intention of sexual defamation. The expression is implicit if it bears the meaning of قَذْفٌ (qadhf) and other meanings, such as saying “You lecher,” or “You wretch.” Hence, when they are said explicitly whether or not one intends sexual defamation or implicitly while intending an accusation of قَذْفٌ (qadhf), then they are punished. The punishment for the defamer who is free is eighty lashes; a slave receives half of this, which is forty lashes.

- * To curse all the companions, which is kufr. As for cursing one of them, then it is considered an enormous sin, such as cursing Aboo Bakr or ^Omar. Saying about Mu^aawiyah and his group that they were transgressors is not considered

- * To give false testimony
  - * To put off paying a [due] debt despite being self-sufficient and able [to pay]
  - * To cuss
  - * To ask Allaah to damn someone (unrightfully)
  - * To mock a Muslim or say anything that harms them
  - * To lie about Allaah or His Messenger among the sinful cursing and disparaging of the companions, because this issue was explicitly mentioned by the Messenger of Allaah, in the Mutawaatir Hadeeth «وَيْحَ عَمَّارٍ تَقْتُلُهُ الْفِتَّةُ الْبَاغِيَّةُ» related by al-Bukhaariyy. This Hadeeth means “My sympathies for ^Ammaar, the transgressive group will kill him.”

- * To give false testimony, which means for someone to testify about a matter while lying. This is among the enormous sins.
- * To put off paying a due debt after the lender asked for the payment, despite being self-sufficient and able to pay
- * To cuss a Muslim unjustly.
- * To ask Allaah to damn someone unrightfully, such as saying to a Muslim “May Allaah damn you.” Being damned means to be kept away from goodness.
- * To mock a Muslim, i.e., to degrade them, or to say anything that harms them unrightfully.
- * To lie about Allaah or to lie about His Messenger. In some cases, doing this is kufr we seek refuge with Allaah from it. For example, falsely claiming that Allaah or His Prophet forbade something while knowing it is permissible.

- * To make a false claim
- * To issue an uncanonical divorce, which [is the divorce that] takes place during menses or during an interval of purity in which he had sexual intercourse [with his wife]
- * ظهار (Dhihaar), which is to say to his wife, “You are to me like my mother’s back”, meaning: I will not have sexual intercourse with you. If he does not divorce immediately [after saying that], expiation is due. The expiation is to free a non-defective Muslim slave. If unable, [he is obligated] to fast two

- * To make a false claim, for example, by suing another person unrightfully while relying on a false testimony.
  - * To issue an uncanonical divorce which is the divorce that takes place during menses or during an interval of purity in which he had sexual intercourse with his wife.
  - * ظهار (Dhihaar), which is to say to his wife, “You are to me like my mother’s belly, her hand, or her back”<sup>1</sup>, meaning: I will not have sexual intercourse with you just like I don’t have sexual intercourse with my mother. It is considered an enormous sin because of the harm that is inflicted on the wife. If he does not divorce immediately after saying that, expiation is due on the husband. The expiation is to free a non-defective Muslim male or female slave. Non-defective means clear of any defect that significantly inhibits the ability to work. If unable to free a slave, he is obligated to fast two

So, if his fasting is interrupted even for one day, he must start over. And if unable to fast, he is obligated to feed sixty poor or destitute people sixty *mudds<sup>1</sup> by giving each individual a mudd of what qualifies to be given for Zakaatul-fitr.

- * To recite القرآن (the Qur'aan) wrongly by affecting the meaning or the vowels even if it does not affect the meaning. Every Muslim must recite الفاتحة (the Faatiḥah) during prayer correctly.
- * For the person who has enough wealth to satisfy their basic needs or has the ability to earn what they need by taking up a lawful craft, to beg.
- * To make a vow with the intent of depriving an heir from his share of the inheritance. It is considered an invalid vow.
- * To neglect notifying another of a debt one owes or a

deposited object [for safekeeping] which no one knows about apart from them

- * To propose to a woman after the proposal of another Muslim brother to her [is accepted]

deposited object entrusted to them for safekeeping or for other similar reasons, which no one knows about apart from them, and due to a deadly illness the debtor or trustee are afflicted with for example, they fear that the trust or debt will not be paid back to their rightful owners. On the other hand, if another person is aware of the debt or trust whose testimony is accepted by an Islamic judge and there is no risk that they'll withhold knowledge of the aforementioned rights, then additional notification of the said rights is recommended.

- * To falsely claim to be the offspring of someone other than one's father, or for a former slave to claim to be liberated by other than one's former owner.
- * To propose to a woman after the proposal of another Muslim brother to her is accepted, i.e., for a prospective suitor to propose marriage to a woman to whom another already has, while knowing the first proposal has been accepted by someone on the woman's side whose acceptance is acknowledged, unless the first suitor gives him the permission to propose, or cancels his engagement.

- * To issue a [religious] ruling without knowledge
- * To teach or to seek harmful knowledge without an Islamically valid reason
- * To judge by other than the law of *Allaah
- * To wail or to lament

- * To issue a religious ruling about something without knowledge in the matter at hand.
  - * To teach or to seek what is religiously considered harmful knowledge like magic and witchcraft without an Islamically valid reason that allows a person to do so.
  - * To judge by other than the law of *Allaah and the rules of the religion that He revealed to His Messenger. This is an enormous sin. However, such a person falls into kufr if they reject the law of Allaah, or consider it equal to or less than the un-Islamic pronouncement.
  - * To wail, which means loudly eulogizing the deceased and enumerating their good qualities, such as to say: “wa Kahfaah”, “waa Jabalaah,” or “Yaa Sanadee”<sup>1</sup>. Or to lament, i.e., to scream voluntarily, in a way that reflects panic and impatience upon the death of a person.

1) These phrases were commonly used by wailers in the past, signifying that the deceased was a reliable person who would bear the burdens and responsibilities. Literally, they mean “Oh my cave”, “Oh my mountain”, and “Oh my support”.

- * To utter words that encourage one to do what's prohibited or discourage one from doing one's obligation
  - * [To utter] any words which defame the religion [of Islam], any Prophet, the scholars, the Book of God, or any matter widely known to be among the matters of [the religion of] Allaah
  - * To play the flute

- * To utter words that encourage one to do what's prohibited, such as saying to another "Hit Zayd" or "Kill Zayd", unrightfully. Or to utter words that discourage one from doing one's obligation, such as saying to another: "Do not pray right now, instead make up the prayer at home after the prayer time has expired."
- * To utter any words which defame, dispraise, or dispute the truth of the religion of Islam, such as saying the kufr statement: "Learning the matters of the religion makes the person complicated." To utter words which defame any Prophet, such as some people's claim that Prophet Yoosuf had a firm intention to fornicate. To utter words defaming the scholars, such as what some say (without any restrictions or limitations): "The scholars have made the religion complicated." To utter words which defame the Book of God, such as belying what was mentioned in it. Or to utter words which defame any matter widely known to be among the matters of the religion of Allaah, such as the prayer, Zakaah, Adhaan, Ablution and what is similar.
- * To play the flute.

- * To refrain from commanding the obligatory or from forbidding the unlawful without an excuse
  - * To withhold the obligatory knowledge from the one who requests it
  - * To laugh when one passes gas, or at a Muslim to degrade them
  - * To withhold testimony
  - * To neglect returning the salaam when it is obligatory on one

- * To refrain from commanding the obligatory or from forbidding the unlawful without an excuse, i.e., if one is able to do so without having any fear that they will be inflicted with physical harm or that their money will be taken from them or the like. On the other hand, if one believes that censuring the wrongdoer, whether by physical or verbal means will lead to a more severe prohibition, then they are not allowed to do so.
- * To withhold the obligatory knowledge (that they personally are required to teach) from the one who requests it.
- * To laugh at a Muslim when one passes gas, or to laugh at a Muslim to degrade them, because they are of a lesser social status than him or the like.
- * To withhold testimony without an excuse after being summoned to testify.
- * To neglect returning the salaam when it is obligatory on one to return it. It is an obligation to return the salaam when an accountable Muslim salutes<sup>1</sup> a specific accountable Muslim

- * It is prohibited for the person engaged in حَجَّ (Hajj) or عُمْرَة (^Umrah) to kiss [such as a husband/wife] lustfully. Similarly, it is prohibited to kiss lustfully while fasting an obligatory fast whether one was fasting رَمَضَانَ (Rama<sup>da</sup>an), or fasting to fulfill a vow or as an expiation, if one fears ejaculation because of this kiss.
- * To kiss those whom one is not permitted to kiss, like a marriageable woman.

Sins of the Ear

Section 33

Among the sins of the ear are:

- * To listen to a conversation of persons who kept it hidden from one. This is a form of forbidden spying.
- * To listen to the flute or the طَبُور (tunboor), because both are classified as unlawful musical instruments, the latter being a stringed instrument that resembles the lute and evokes feelings of elation and ecstasy. And it is prohibited to listen to the rest of the unlawful sounds.
- * Likewise, to listen to backbiting and tale-bearing, and the like, among other sins of the tongue, without censuring the wrongdoer while being able to do so. This is contrary to the one who hears this unwillingly and hates it in their heart. However, if one is able then one must oppose it using physical means, and if unable, then with verbal means, and if unable, one must hate it in their heart and leave the session in which the sin is being perpetrated.

(Section 34)

Among the sins of the hands are :

- * To cheat [by giving less than what is agreed upon] when measuring by volume, weight, or arm-length
  - * To steal- If one steals what equals the value of one quarter of a deenaar from its [proper] secured place, one's right hand is amputated. If one steals again the left foot is amputated then the left hand then the right foot.
  - * To loot [which is stealing in public]

Sins of the Hands

Section 34

Among the sins of the hands are:

- * To cheat by giving less than what is agreed upon when measuring by volume, weight, or arm-length. So as to take the merchandise they paid for in full when buying something and to shortchange the buyer when selling, by receiving the full price and giving them less than what they bought.
- * To steal, which means to take the belongings of another stealthily. If one steals what equals the value of one quarter of a pure golden deenaar from its proper secured place, i.e., a place that offers the adequate security for safeguarding such articles, then one's right hand is amputated at the wrist. If one steals again after imposition of the first punishment, the left foot is amputated at the ankle, then the left hand then the right foot. If they steal a fifth time, they are disciplined.
- * To loot which is stealing in public.

- * Forcible seizure
  - * Levying a tax
  - * Taking from the spoils of war before the religious division
  - * Homicide, for which expiation is (in any case) due. The expiation is to free a non-defective Muslim slave; if unable then one must fast two consecutive months. Murder subjects the murderer to being killed, unless the inheritors [of the deceased] forgive the murderer for compensation

- * Forcible seizure, i.e., to unjustly take control of someone else's right.
- * Levying a tax. Taxes are revenues unrightfully taken from traders on their merchandise and the like by some unjust rulers, such as imposing a one-tenth tax rate.
- * Taking from the spoils of war before the religious division, i.e., before they are distributed in the proper, religious manner.
- * Homicide, i.e., to kill someone unrightfully, for which expiation is (in any case) due whether the killing is through an honest mistake, or a mistake made in a deliberate injury, or is purely intentional. The expiation is to free a non-defective male or female Muslim slave. Non-defective means that the slave is free of defects that would greatly restrict their ability to work. If unable to free a Muslim slave, then one must fast two consecutive lunar months. Murder subjects the murderer to being killed unless the inheritors of the deceased forgo reciprocal killing and forgive the murderer for compensation or without cost. In the case of killing [someone] by mistake or semi-mistake, payment of blood money دية (diyah) is mandatory which is one hundred camels for a free male Muslim and half of that for a free female Muslim. The elements of the diyah vary according to the homicide

- * To beat a person unrightfully
  - * To receive or give a bribe

or without cost. Murder is defined as deliberately directing a fatal act of aggression against someone using a weapon or instrument that normally kills. In the case of killing someone by mistake, i.e., when there is no act of aggression intended for the victim, or killing someone by semi-mistake, i.e. in a semi-deliberate manner, which is to direct an act of aggression at someone that is generally not fatal, then the killer, in both cases is not killed in retribution, although payment of blood money دية (diyah) is mandatory which is one hundred camels for a free inviolable<sup>1</sup> male Muslim and half of that for a free inviolable female Muslim. The elements of the diyah vary according to the type of homicide.

- * To beat a Muslim person unrightfully or to terrorize them.
- * To receive or give a bribe. The bribe in this context means money that is given to another to establish what is unjust and to prevent what is just. Otherwise, offering money to ward off an injustice or to obtain a right is not sinful.

1) An inviolable person is someone who is religiously secure from being violated.

Anal intercourse between spouses or between a female slave and her owner is sinful but the offence is not subject to the specified penalty mandated by Islamic law for sodomy. The penalty of willful fornication for the مُحْصَن (muḥsan) free accountable person, whether male or female is stoning with midsized stones until death. The muḥsan is anyone who has had sexual intercourse with his or her spouse in a valid marriage. However, for other fornicators who never had sexual intercourse in a valid marriage, i.e., if the fornicator is a free male or female non-muḥsan, then it is an obligation to

- * To copulate during menstrual or postpartum bleeding even if there is a physical barrier covering the penis or to copulate after it has stopped but before the obligatory whole body wash has been performed or to copulate after the body wash was performed but without producing the proper intention or without fulfilling one of its other requirements even if the proper intention was made, for example if a woman makes غُسل (Ghusl) while there is a barrier that prevents water

- * To uncover one's عَوْرَة (^awrah) in view of those who are prohibited from looking at it or to uncover one's عَوْرَة (^awrah) while alone without a need
  - * To face قِبْلَة (the Qiblah) or turn one's back to it while urinating or defecating without a barrier, or when the barrier is more than three cubits away or less than two thirds of a cubit high, unless it is in a place prepared for this [i.e., for urinating or defecating]
  - * To defecate on a grave from reaching part of her body.

- * To uncover one's عَوْرَة (^awrah) in view of those who are prohibited from looking at it or to uncover one's عَوْرَة (^awrah) while alone without a need. On the other hand, if it was done for a valid reason, such as to cool off, then it is permissible, as mentioned before.
- * To face الْقِبْلَة (the Qiblah) or turn one's back to it while urinating or defecating without a barrier between one and الْقِبْلَة (the Qiblah) or when the barrier is more than three cubits away or less than two thirds of a cubit high, unless it is in a place prepared for this i.e., for urinating or defecating, like a toilet. Any object (that is two-thirds or more in length) erected in front of the person is a sufficient barrier.
- * To defecate or urinate on a grave, whether the grave was in a Muslim cemetery or was isolated elsewhere.

- * To urinate in a mosque (even if done in a container), or on a revered object
  - * For an adult to neglect circumcision, but it is allowed according to *Maalik

- * To urinate in a mosque (even if done in a container), or to urinate on a revered object, i.e., on what is considered Islamically glorified. Also it is prohibited to urinate in a narrow place designated for حَجَّ (Hajj) or عُمْرَة (Umrah).
- * For an uncircumcised adult to neglect circumcision after being able to do so. For males, circumcision consists of removing the foreskin covering glans of the penis and for females, removing part of the clitoral hood. The clitoral hood is a fold of skin above the clitoris which looks like the rooster's comb. But it is allowed according to *Maalik to neglect circumcision because he does not hold that it is an obligation for males or females.

Among the sins of the foot are :

- * To walk to commit a sin, such as walking to accuse a Muslim falsely before a ruler or [walking] to kill them unrightfully
  - * The absconding of a slave, a wife, or one who owes a right to others such as a prosecution, a debt, obligatory expenditures, dutifulness to one's parents, or child-rearing
  - * To strut arrogantly

Sins of the Foot

Section 36

Among the sins of the foot are:

- * To walk to commit a sin, such as walking to accuse a Muslim falsely before a ruler. It is sinful because of the harm it causes for the wrongly accused Muslim. Or walking to kill them unrightfully, or walking for the purpose of fornicating or committing any prohibited sexual enjoyment.
- * The absconding of a male or female slave from their owner, or a wife from her husband. It is also prohibited for anyone who owes a right to others to run away and evade their legal responsibilities such as a prosecution if they had intentionally killed a Muslim unrightfully, for example, a debt that they must fulfill, obligatory expenditures that are due on them, dutifulness to one's parents, or child-rearing.
- * To strut arrogantly which is to walk haughtily and pompously.

- * To step over people's shoulders except to fill a gap
  - * To pass in front of a person performing the prayer [with a barrier in front of that person] if the conditions of the sufficient barrier are fulfilled
  - * To extend the leg towards the Holy Book if it is not in a raised location
  - * Any walking to commit what is prohibited or to leave an obligation

- * To step over people's shoulders if this annoys them, except if one does so to fill a gap that cannot be reached otherwise. Then it is not forbidden.
- * To pass in front of a person performing the prayer with a barrier in front of that person if the conditions of the sufficient barrier are fulfilled. For the barrier to be valid it must be at least two-thirds of a cubit high and three cubits or less away from the praying person.
- * To extend the leg towards the Holy Book<sup>1</sup> if it is close and not in a raised location, such as being placed on a table.
- * Any walking to commit what is prohibited, such as walking to a place for the purpose of consuming alcohol. Or walking to leave an obligation, such as walking that results in leaving out the obligatory prayer in its prescribed time.

(Section 37)

Among the sins of the body are:

- * To harm one's parents severely
  - * To flee the battlefield, i.e., to withdraw oneself from the ranks of those engaged in Islamically exhorted combat
  - * To sever the obligatory ties of kinship
  - * To inflict harm upon a neighbor, even an unbeliever who

Section 37

Clarifying the sins of the body, which are sins nonexclusive to a particular body part

Among the sins of the body are:

- * To harm either one or both of one's parents severely (judged as such by common standards).
- * To flee the battlefield, i.e., for a person to withdraw oneself from the ranks of those engaged in Islamically exhorted combat provided that the number of the kaafir force is less than twice that of the Muslims'.
- * To sever the obligatory ties of kinship. 'Kin' includes anyone who is commonly acknowledged as one's paternal or maternal relative. This occurs when a relative is estranged from another relative because of the latter's neglect to visit or support them financially (when they are in true need) while being able to do so.
- * To inflict harm upon a neighbor, even an unbeliever who was granted safety

- * To dye the hair black
  - * For men to imitate women or vice versa; i.e., in what is specific to one gender in clothing and other things
  - * To let one's clothes down out of vanity, i.e., hang lower than the ankle bones out of pride
  - * For a man to dye his hands and feet with henna unnecessarily
  - * To interrupt an obligation without an excuse

was granted safety by Muslims, such as hitting or cursing them and the like.

- * To dye the hair black for both males and females.
- * For men to imitate women or vice versa; i.e., in what is specific to one gender in clothing and other things, such as manner of speech and walk. Women imitating men is more severe than the opposite.
- * For a man to let one's clothes down out of vanity, i.e., to let them hang lower than the ankle bones out of pride and conceit.
- * For a man to dye his hands and feet with henna unnecessarily. This is prohibited because such an act entails imitating women in something that is specific to them. However, it is permissible if it was for medical treatment.
- * To interrupt an obligation whether it is performed during its prescribed time or afterwards, such as interrupting the obligatory prayer or the obligatory fasting without an excuse.

- * To interrupt an optional حَجَّ (Hajj) or عُمْرَة (^Umrah)
  - * To imitate a believer mockingly
  - * To spy on people to pursue their defects
  - * To tattoo
  - * To shun a Muslim for more than three days without an Islamic excuse

Otherwise, if a person interrupted an obligatory worship to save an inviolable<sup>1</sup> drowning person, then it is not sinful.

- * To interrupt an optional حَجَّ (Hajj) or عُمْرَة (^Umrah) because once one starts either, it becomes an obligation to complete them.
- * To imitate a believer mockingly in their sayings, doings, or gestures.
- * To spy on people in order to pursue their defects by looking for their faults which they do not want others to know about.
- * To tattoo, which is for someone to prick the skin with a needle until blood comes out, then to inject color pigments on the punctured skin until the place becomes black or blue.
- * To shun a Muslim by refraining from talking to them, inasmuch as a mere salaam for more than three days and nights without an Islamic excuse, such as if they were an alcoholic.

1) An inviolable person is someone who is religiously secure from being violated.

- * To sit with a heretic or major sinner entertaining them during their enormity
  - * (For a man) to wear gold, silver, silk, or what is in weight mostly made of silk; except a silver ring [for it is permissible]
  - * To be alone with a marriageable woman without the presence of a third male or female, in front of whom one would be shy [to commit an indecent act]
  - * (For a woman) to travel without a مَحْرَم (mahram) or someone like him

- * To sit with a heretic or major sinner entertaining them during their enormity, such as sitting and conversing with a person who is drinking alcohol without a need.
- * For a man to wear pure gold unconditionally, or to wear silver, pure silk which is produced by silkworms, or what is in weight mostly made of silk such as if two-thirds of its weight was silk-except wearing a silver ring; this is permissible.
- * For a man to be alone with a marriageable woman without the presence of a third person whether male or female who is either trustworthy or a مَحْرَم (mahram) in front of whom one would be shy to commit an indecent act. However, if the third person is too young to be shy of or is blind, then it is sinful.
- * For a woman to travel even a short distance without a male مَحْرَم (mahram), such as her brother or someone like him, such as her husband.

- * To coerce a free person to work [for free]
- * To have enmity towards a *waliyy
- * To help others to sin
- * To circulate counterfeit money
- * To use golden or silver utensils or retain them
- * To neglect an obligation or to perform it

- * To coerce a free person to work for free.
  - * To have enmity towards a *waliyy, i.e., to regard them as your adversary and to engage in harmful activities against them. A waliyy is a Muslim who fulfills what Allaah required them to do and refrains from what Allaah prohibited them from doing and supplements that with the habitual performance of many supererogatory deeds, even if they only perform one or two kinds of them.
  - * To help others to sin, such as serving alcohol to a person who wants to drink it.
  - * To circulate counterfeit money such as dealing with phony silver dirhams as if they are real, or gold plating copper pieces to trick people into thinking that they are gold deenaars and selling them as such.
  - * To use golden or silver utensils such as to eat and drink out of them, or to merely retain them, even without the intent of using them.
  - * To neglect an obligation by not fulfilling it, such as not performing an obligatory prayer; or to perform it superficially while leaving out an integral or a condition, or to do something that invalidates it

- * To neglect [performing] الْجُمُعَة (the Jumu'ah) prayer when it is mandatory on him, even if he prays the Early-Afternoon Prayer الظُّهْر (adh-Dhuhr)
- * (For persons like the inhabitants of a settlement) to [all] neglect praying the [five] ordained prayers in congregation
- * To delay fulfilling an obligation within its time without an excuse

while leaving out an integral, such as praying without a valid intention, or while leaving out a condition, such as praying without Ablution or to do something in the obligatory act that invalidates it, such as engaging in extraneous movements with the purpose of playing during prayer.

- * To neglect performing الْجُمُعَة (the Jumu'ah) prayer when it is mandatory on him, even if he prays the Early Afternoon Prayer الظُّهْر (adh-Dhuhr) instead.
- * For persons like the inhabitants of a settlement to all neglect praying the five ordained prayers in congregation or to pray them in congregation in a way that the rite of the prayer is not made public<sup>1</sup>.
- * To delay fulfilling an obligation within its time without an excuse, such as for one to delay praying الْعَصْر (the Asr) Prayer until sunset, or for one to, inexcusably, neglect paying Zakaah

1) By praying in private places which cause the congregators unease and timidity to enter and join.

- * To hunt with a heavy object that quickens the animal's death; i.e., what kills by its weight, such as a rock
  - * To use an animal [while alive] as a [shooting] target
  - * (For a woman observing a post-marital waiting period) to leave her home without an excuse and to fail to observe إِحْدَاد (Ihdaad) for her dead husband to those who rightfully deserve it after the year elapses.

- * To hunt with a heavy object that quickens the animal's death; i.e., what kills by its weight, such as a rock.
- * To use an animal while alive as a [shooting] target.
- * For a woman observing a post-marital waiting period after being divorced three times or after the death of her husband to leave her home, without an excuse. Hence, if she leaves the house in the daytime to buy food or the like, or to sell fabric that she wove, or to gather firewood and the like, then it would be permissible. Also, it is permissible, with certain conditions, for her to visit her female neighbor at night and return to her house to sleep therein. She is excused to leave the house if she fears that the house will collapse or the like. If the woman is divorced less than three times, then she has the same judgment as being his wife in regards to requiring the husband's permission to leave the house. And it is also sinful for the widow to fail to observe إِحْدَاد (Ihdaad) for her dead husband. إِحْدَاد (Ihdaad) is refraining from adornment and using perfume until her waiting period expires. If the widow is pregnant, her waiting period expires upon delivery, otherwise her waiting period is four lunar months and ten days.

- * To stain the mosque with a najas filth or to make it dirty even with a pure material
- * To be negligent in performing Pilgrimage (after being able) until death befalls one
- * To take a loan while knowing one's inability to repay it from an obvious source and without the lender being informed
- * To refuse to grant the insolvent [debtor] more time
- * To spend money in sin

- * To stain the mosque with a najas filth such as urine or blood or other types of najas filth, or to make it dirty even with a pure material such as spit or mucous.
  - * To be negligent in performing pilgrimage after being able to do so until death befalls one before performing it.
  - * To take a loan while knowing one's inability to repay it from an obvious source, such as having no possessions or craft that enable one to pay the debt, and without the lender being informed about the debtor's inability. However, if the debtor knows that the lender is aware of their situation and still granted them the loan, then taking the loan is not sinful.
  - * To refuse to grant the insolvent debtor more time and thus harassing and following them or requesting their imprisonment for example, while knowing that they are unable to pay back the debt.
  - * To spend money in sin, such as spending money to listen to forbidden musical instruments.

- * To fail to [properly] honor the Holy Book or any Islamic knowledge books and to enable a mumayyiz child to touch it [i.e., القرآن (the Qur'aan)]
- * To change property markers, i.e., to unjustly change the boundary between one's own property and that of others
- * To use the street in a way that is not allowed
- * To use a borrowed item in a way that is not permitted by the owner, to keep it longer than permitted,

- * To fail to properly honor the Holy Book or any Islamic knowledge books like books of Islamic jurisprudence. Actions denoting lack of proper glorification of the Book of God or other religious books are sinful. If the lack of glorification reaches the level of belittling and degrading, then it is kufr. Among what constitutes as failure to properly honor القرآن (the Qur'aan) is to enable a mumayyiz child whose Ablution is nullified to touch or carry it [i.e., القرآن (the Qur'aan)] for other than studying purposes.
  - * To change property markers, i.e., to unjustly change the boundary between one's own property and that of others, such as unjustly annexing part of their neighbor's property.
  - * To use the street, i.e., a non-dead-end road, in a way that is not allowed, because the harm it causes the passersby.
  - * To use a borrowed item in a way that is not permitted by the owner, such as borrowing an animal to ride, but instead transporting one's furniture on it. Or to keep it longer than permitted, such as borrowing an outfit to wear for a week, but

or to lend it to a third party

- * To ban others from something that is a public domain like grazing, collecting firewood, extracting salt from its source, or extracting gold, silver, or other resources from their sources, if all of that takes place in an unowned land, or [to ban others from] the consumption of drinking water from a self-replenishing source that is refilled by more as it is consumed
  - * To use a lost-and-found article

instead wearing it for two weeks without the consent of the owner, or to lend it to a third party without permission from the owner.

- * To ban others from something that is a public domain like beaches and riverbanks, grazing land for livestock, public areas for collecting firewood or preventing others from extracting salt from its source, e.g., the seas, or from extracting gold, silver, or other resources from their sources, i.e., if all of that takes place in an unowned land; or to ban others from the consumption of drinking water from a well he dug in unowned land even though this well is a self-replenishing source that is refilled by more as it is consumed. However, if someone takes water in their own container from the sea or river, this water becomes their own property, thus they are not obligated to give it to others.
- * To use a lost-and-found article, i.e., a lost article that someone unintentionally dropped or left behind and was found by another person. If the person who found the article

before satisfying the conditions of notification

- * To sit in a session while witnessing unlawful matters committed without an excuse
  - * To gatecrash banquets, i.e., to attend without permission or to embarrass people into admitting one in

uses it before satisfying the conditions of notification, they commit a sin. If the person who picked up the lost article wants to assume ownership of it, then they must publicize the article for one full year while having the intention of owning it if its owner does not show up. If one announces it in the proper way and despite that, the owner of this article is not found, only then it is permissible for the finder to assume ownership and thus consume or utilize it with the intention that if the owner appears later on, they would either return the same item to them, or pay them its value<sup>1</sup>.

- * To sit and continue sitting in a session while witnessing unlawful matters committed therein, not for the purpose of censuring the unlawful matters; this is prohibited if done without an excuse. Otherwise, if one has a valid excuse to stay, then it is not sinful.
- * To gatecrash banquets, i.e., to attend uninvited without permission or to embarrass people into admitting one in, i.e., doing so while knowing of their apprehension to refuse them.

1) The person pays the value when the lost article was consumed for example. There are extra important details pertaining to this issue that are discussed in books of Islamic jurisprudence.

- * To treat wives unequally in terms of [obligatory] spending and overnight stays, however, feeling preference in love and attraction is not a sin
  - * (For a woman) to go out with the intention to pass by marriageable men to seduce them
  - * [To engage in] sorcery
  - * To rebel against the Imaam, like those who rebelled against عَلِيٍّ (^Aliyy) and fought him.

- * For a man married to two women or more to treat his wives unequally in terms of obligatory spending and overnight stays, by adding for one of his wives in either one or both of these rights. However, feeling preference in love and attraction is not a sin. Also, it is permissible to have more sexual intercourse with one or spend on her more (than his other wives) in other than what is obligatory on him towards his wives.
- * For a woman to go out of her house with the intention to pass by marriageable men to seduce them and lure them into sinning, even if she was covering her عَوْرَة (^awrah).
- * To engage in sorcery, which is of two types. One type is only carried out by doing or saying kufr; therefore this type of sorcery is kufr. The other type is carried out by doing what is less than kufr. Engaging in this type of sorcery is a major sin.
- * To rebel against the *Imaam after he has been legally invested with the caliphate, like those who rebelled against the Commander of the Believers عَلِيُّ بْنُ أَبِي طَالِبٍ (^Aliyy Ibn Abee-Taalib) and fought him unrightfully in the three battles

Al-Bayhaqiyy said, “All those who fought ^Aliyy were transgressors” likewise said ash-Shaafi^iyy before him, even though some of them were among the best companions, because it is not impossible for a waliyy to sin, even if it is an enormous sin

- * To harbor and protect an unjust person from those who seek them to obtain their rights of al-Jamal, صِفِّينَ (Sifteen), and an-Nahrawaan. The jurist and Haafidh, Aboo Bakr al-Bayhaqiyy said: in his book al-I^tigaad “All those who fought ^Aliyy were transgressors”, i.e., they were unjust. Likewise said Imaam Muhammad Ibn Idrees ash-Shaafi^iyy before him, as narrated by al-Bayhaqiyy and others. Hence, those who participated in the mutiny against ^Aliyy wronged him even though some of them were among the best companions like az-Zubayr and طَلْحَة (Talhah), may Allaah raise their ranks, because it is not impossible for a waliyy to commit a sin, even if it is an enormous sin. However, they repent of it before death. Hence, both az-Zubayr and طَلْحَة (Talhah) repented from that sin before their death as was confirmed in the books of Hadeeth.

- * To foster an orphan, manage a mosque, or act as a caliph or judge and the like while knowing that one is unable or unfit to fulfill the responsibility as per the religion.
- * To harbor and protect an unjust person; helping them escape from those who seek them to obtain their rights such

- * To terrorize Muslims
  - * To waylay; the waylayer's punishment corresponds [in degree] to the crime committed. [Their punishment is] either a disciplinary action, or the cutting off of their hand of one side and foot of another if they [took money but] did not kill, or executing and hanging them on a pole if they have killed
  - * To neglect fulfilling a vow

as if one killed a Muslim unjustly and another harbored the killer to prevent the rightful claimants from obtaining their rights.

- * To terrorize Muslims, by pointing a blade or weapon at them for the purpose of scaring them.
- * To waylay, even if the waylayer doesn't kill anyone or take their money. The waylayer's punishment corresponds in degree to the crime committed. Their punishment is either a disciplinary action such as imprisonment, a beating or the like, provided that the waylayer only terrorized the passersby; or they are punished by the cutting off of their hand of one side and foot of another if they took money equal in value to one quarter of a pure golden deenaar or more but did not kill. For the first offence their right hand and left foot are cut off and for their second offence their left hand and right foot; or the waylayer is punished by executing them without hanging their body on a pole if they kill but do not take any money; or by both executing and hanging them on a pole if they have killed and misappropriated money.
- * To neglect fulfilling a vow which meets all the conditions of a valid vow.

- * To practice a continuous fast, that is to continue fasting for two or more days without consuming anything (which discontinues the fast)
  - * To occupy someone else's sitting place [in a mosque, street, or the like], to harmfully crowd another, or to take another's turn

- * To practice a continuous fast, that is, to continue fasting for two or more consecutive days without consuming anything which discontinues the fast purposely and without a valid excuse.
- * To occupy someone else's sitting place in a mosque, street or the like, or to harmfully crowd another, or to take another's turn in watering rights and the like.

After the author, May Allaah have mercy upon him, finished clarifying the types of sins, he mentioned how the wrongdoer can repent from his sins so that he will not be held accountable for them in the Hereafter. He said:

Repentance

(Section 38)

The immediate repentance from sins is an obligation upon every accountable person.

Repentance comprises: remorse, leaving the sin, and the resolve never to return to it. If the sin was neglecting an obligation, one must make it up. If the sin involved the violation of a human's right, one must restore it or

Repentance

Section 38

Clarifying the integrals of a valid repentance

The immediate repentance from all sins is an obligation whether the sin was enormous or small upon every accountable person. Repentance comprises the following integrals: remorse for having disobeyed Allaah, leaving the sin immediately, and the resolve never to return to it. If the sin was neglecting an obligation such as an obligatory prayer, then one must fulfill the aforementioned three integrals and make it up immediately. If the sin involved the violation of a human's right such as unjustly seizing the money of another person, then repentance has four integrals: the first three previously mentioned in addition to clearing oneself of the right owed to the other person. Hence, the wrongdoer must restore the right to the victim, by giving the money back to its owner if they still have it, or else they are required to pay its value. If the wrongdoing pertains to verbally seek the person's satisfaction.

harming someone for example then they must seek the person's satisfaction and forgiveness, along with performing the other aforementioned integrals.
